ADDITIONS AND CORRECTIONS.

A.—VOLUME III.

Page 226.—When publishing the Âlampûṇḍi plate of Virûpâksha, I had to suspect its genuineness, owing partly to the numerous mistakes which it contains, and mainly owing to the absence of any reference to this son of Harihara II. in the published records of the first Vijayanagara dynasty. The historical information conveyed by the plate is however, confirmed now from an unexpected source. In his Report on a Search for Sanskrit and Tamil Manuscripts (p. 96), Mr. Seshagiri Sastri, Professor of Sanskrit at the Madras Presidency College, has published extracts from a Sanskrit drama entitled Nârâyaṇivilâsa. This drama was composed by a royal author named Virûpâksha, who was the son's son (here the published reading putrô, 'son,' has to be corrected into pautrô, 'son's son') of king Bukka, the daughter's son of king Râma, and the son of king Harihara. Of Virûpâksha it is further said that he was the lord of the Karpâṭa, Tuṇḍîra, Chôla and Pâṇḍya countries, that he planted a pillar of victory in the island of Sîmhala (Ceylon), and that he was devoted to the performance of the 'sixteen great gifts.' In describing the genealogy of Virûpâksha and his conquests, the Âlampûṇḍi grant and the drama Nârâyaṇivilâsa are practically at one with each other. The performance of the 'sixteen great gifts,' which is mentioned in the latter in connection with Virûpâksha, is attributed in the former to his father. There is no doubt whatever as to the identity of the author of the Sanskrit drama in question with prince Virûpâksha of the Âlampûṇḍi grant. The former is more explicit in describing his relationship to king Râma, inasmuch as he is there called 'the daughter's son' of king Râma, while the latter simply says that his mother Mallâdêvî belonged to 'the family of Râmadêva.' It may therefore be concluded that Râmadêva, whom I proposed to identify with the Yâdava king Râmachandra (above, Vol. III. p. 225), had a daughter named Mallâdêvî, who married Harihara II. of the first Vijayanagara dynasty, and that prince Virûpâksha, who was born of this marriage, made extensive conquests in Southern India.—V. Venkayya.

B.—VOLUME IV.

Page 195, l. 10 ff.—Mr. Ramayya has kindly informed me (through Dr. Hultsch), that the correct spelling of the modern name of the village is Dendulûru, not Deṇḍalûru, as given in Mr. Sowell's Lists of Antiquities.—As regards the identification of other localities mentioned in the Chikkulla plates, Mr. Sowell has been the first to write to me that Râvirêva (in line 20) might be the village of 'Raveralah' (Râvirêla) on the north bank of the river Kṛishṇâ, just at the top of its great bend, long. 80° 10' E., lat. 16° 50' N. The same identification was afterwards suggested by Dr. Fleet and by Mr. Ramayya. Mr. Ramayya further writes that about six miles to the east of Râvirêla there is the village of Navâbupêta, with a temple of Sômanâthasvâmin which may be the Sômagirîśvaranâtha temple in line 23 of the inscription. The country in which the villages were situated is called Nat[ri]paṭi

(in line 19). This Mr. Ramayya believes to be the more modern Nātavāḍa, "which is mentioned in an inscription of Śaka 1123 at Bezvāḍa, in which the donor is described as Nātavāḍi Rudradēvarājulu, i.e. Rudradēvarāja of Nātavāḍa. The capital of this chief was Maḍapalla or Maḍapalli, and there is a village of this name, reported to contain the ruins of an old fort, close to the west of Madhira, a station of H. H. the Nizam's State Railway, and not far from Konḍapalli."—F. Kielhorn.

Page 206, line 8 of the text.—I have altered the original reading -Pāṇḍy-Ūtpala-mahipatayō to -Pāṇḍy-Ūtkala-mahipatayō, which on page 207 I have translated by "the Pāṇḍya and Utkala kings;" but I was wrong. The original reading Pāṇḍy-Ūtpala is correct, and the translation should have been "the Pāṇḍya and king Utpala." Utpala is another name of the Paramāra king Muñja, who is mentioned under that name also in line 42 of the Kauhēm plates of Vikramāditya V. (Ind. Ant. Vol. XVI. p. 23, where he is described as kavirishā, i.e., kavindraḥ), and in the Miraj plates of Jayasimha II. and the Yêûr inscription of Vikramāditya VI. (ibid. Vol. VIII. p. 15, where the text has Utkala with the various reading Utpala).—F. Kielhorn.

From the information given by him there, it appears that, in a Jain record, any such expression as "the first Nandīśvara day, or the first day of the Nandīśvara," would denote the day of the eighth tithi of the bright fortnight of the month Āshāḍha, Kārtika, or Phālguna, as the case may be, but that any such expression as "the chief Nandīśvara day, or the chief day of the Nandīśvara," might, perhaps, rather denote the day of the full-moon tithi if the Nandīśvara-pūjā ended with any very special observances on that day.—J. If the akshara after kurushva is an imperfectly formed tha, as it seemed to be, we can only conclude that the composer was using kurushva atha, and, misled by the metre, carelessly combined them into kurushvathā instead of kurushva=ātha. But it now seems more likely that the composer wrote kurushva vai; that the writer wrote kurushva vē, omitting the subscript stroke which would turn vē into vai; and that the engraver did not complete the v, and did not cut clearly the superscript ē, of which some indications can be detected.

„ „ text line 37, for muṃ-kott=it=āv[u]d=āvudu*, read muṃ-kottad=āvad=āvudu.—Also, for Bāpa-Dinīśāla, read Bāp-[ā]di-nikhīla*. I am indebted to the courtesy of Mr. H. Krishna Sastri for this, and for several other suggestions, some of which I find it most convenient to acknowledge by connecting with them his initials in brackets.—J. F. F.

„ 248, text line 42, for meḃi-gaydanē, read meḃi-g[e]ydanē; and in note 5 substitute Read meḃ-geydanē, which seems to mean, somehow or other, "did he shrink?"

„ „ text line 62.—It might perhaps be better to take ākhyāna as a mistake for ākhyāta, and, further on, to analyse the text into dhātri par-āhri(hṛi)tey=āge.—(H. K. S.)

„ 250, note 14, for jī-nṇ, read jirṇ.

„ „ text line 100, for idir-erdda, read idir-erdd[u]*.—(H. K. S.)

„ 255, line 1, "the congregation (of Sairas on the earth) has been afflicted among the Jains and Buddhists." There is a difficulty here in connection with the word utkaṣa, qualifying saṃaya, which latter word may mean either 'congregation' or 'time.' Mr. H. Krishna Sastri considers that, instead of connecting utkaṣa with its meanings of 'uneven, difficult; intoxication, pride; affliction,' it is better to take it in its meaning of 'mad, furious.' In this case, the translation would be—"there became a mad or furious congregation or time among the Jains and Buddhists;" or freely, "an opportunity arose for the Jains and Buddhists to become furious (and aggressive)."

„ 256, line 1, in accordance with the corrected reading in line 37 of the text, notified above, for the devout Gaṇas Bāpa and Dinīśāla, and so many others, read Bāpa and all the other numerous devout Gaṇas.

„ „ line 16 ff., "While the disciples were saying," etc. Mr. H. Krishna Sastri has sent an interpretation of the first part of this verse, which has given the clue to a better rendering of it. Regarding are-gaḃi-gomḃane and meḃi-gaydanē, see the corrections, notified above, for text line 42, and notes 4 and 5, on page 248. In gomḃane, nōḃidane, geydanē, and pārdane, the e, ē, is the particle of questioning, not of emphasis. It is better to take kārpu in its meaning of 'sharpness,' than in its meaning of 'valour.' The proper nominative for enutām is, of course, Rāmaṃ.

And we must find the verb for bhaktar in bālge, which, therefore, is not the dative of bāl, 'a sword,' but is from bāl, as the later (and now customary) form of bāl, 'to live, to live prosperously, happily,' with ge, an optional affix for the third person of the imperative. The translation, then, will be:—Did he hesitate?; did he draw the sword simply to gaze at it?; fearing the sharpness of it, did he shrink?; did he look for calamity (i.e. did he anticipate evil in the shape of failure to win his wager)?; (No!; but), in the very act of saying "May (all) believers prosper!," Rāma, that man of ability, etc.

- Page 256, note 4, the following may be added:—In line 24 of the Tērdāḷ record of A.D. 1123 (Ind. Ant. Vol. XIV. p. 17), mention is made of kaḍaṅguva Mārī, "the raging Mārī." And in line 48 of a Baḷagāmi inscription of some date after A.D. 1054 (P. S. O.-C. Insers. No. 158, and see Mysore Insers. p. 124), in a long and curious description of the five hundred Svāmins of Ayyāvoḷe, we have the phrase hōha Mārīya[m] challav-āḍuvaruṁ baha Mārīyan=īdir-ggolavaruṁ,—"who make the departing Mārī flee confusedly in all directions, and who confront the coming Mārī."
- „ 257, line 10, in accordance with the corrected reading in line 52 of the text, notified above, for the friend of those who swing the sword in seizing the wives of inimical kings, read whose friend (assistant) in seizing the wives of inimical kings is the sword of his arm which is (as līthe) as a creeper.
- „ „ the last paragraph. If the alteration suggested for line 62 of the text and noted above, is adopted,—(in favour of which it may be said that dhātṛipa, with the long ī, would be a more correct word for 'king' than dhātṛipa, with the short i),—the translation would be:—"When (many) kings, who were possessed of glory and renowned fame and valour, and whose prowess has been recited in stories, had passed away in the lineage of the Chalukya kings which caused itself to be called the chief ornament of the Lunar Race, and when the earth had (for a time) been seized by others, then Tailapa (II.), who may be called," etc. And, in that case, note 5, on page 257, should be cancelled. On the other hand, the actual reading is ākhyāna, not ākhyāta; and a Tailapa—(who, however, may be Taila III.)—was occasionally quoted as an instance; see the example given under sūtra 117 of Kēśirāja's Śabdamanidarpana, p. 142,— "the sword of the arm of Tailapa caused itself to be called the Rudra who is the fire that is to destroy the world."
- „ 258, lines 14 to 16.—Mr. H. Krishna Sastri considers that, for "(to restrain him from altogether too excessive conquests)," we should adopt the explanation "(that is to say, was always holding him tight, clinging tightly to him, was always remaining with him)."
- „ 259, last line, and page 260, line 1, for and, to shew that there is no doubt about this, he¹ quotes the sayings of Manu of former times, read, in accordance with the remark on line 94 of the text (see above), and the precepts of Manu have said, in former times, that there is no doubt about this being the case; and cancel note 1 on page 260.
- „ 260, line 16 f., for Saying "(As) I am thus (notoriously) a very treasury of austerities directed towards Hara, any small effort is not (becoming to me)," Rāma, etc., read Having acquired a very treasury of austerities in Hara (i.e., having practised great austerities in his devotion to Hara); and having (done so in such a way that he) caused it to be said that his zeal was not small, Rāma, etc.
- „ „ line 19.—Mr. H. Krishna Sastri remarks that it would be no credit, from the stand-point of a Hindū, to build a temple with contributions from kings, and that the translation should be:—Not spending (in vain) even so much as a *hāga*² which the devotees, standing in front (of Siva), gave with reverence for (the building of) the temple, and not going to the kings and with humility importuning them (for contributions), through the inexhaustible favour, etc.

Page 263, text line 6.—Mr. H. Krishna Sastri considers that it is not necessary to correct dāna-vidan into dāna-vidhan, which latter word assumes an adjective based upon dāna with vidhā in the sense of 'act, action.' And dāna-vida, with the meaning 'who has acquired (the habit of) giving' or 'who bestows gifts,' can be justified by the analogous words kīrti-vida, 'a man who has acquired fame,' and suwayō-vida, 'one who has attained the prime of life' (for these two words, see Kittel's Kannada-English Dictionary,) and the Vêdic varivō-vid, 'bestowing freedom, repose, treasures' (see Monier-Williams' Sanskrit Dictionary).

„ „ text line 7, for *nôppada*¹³ purutara, read nô[r]ppad=ap[p*]=urutara*; and cancel note 13.—(H. K. S.).—It may be added that, as Kittel's Dictionary does not give any forms from nôdu or nôl introducing an r, perhaps we ought to consider that the text contains a mistake for nôlpada, rather than for nôrpada.

„ 264, lines 18 to 21, in accordance with the corrected reading in line 7 of the text, notified above, read who is devoted to the water-lilies that are the feet of spiritual preceptors,— who is a man possessed of the very greatest resoluteness such as is not seen anywhere else.

EPIGRAPHIA INDICA.

VOLUME V.

NO. 1.— THE ASOKA EDICTS OF PADERIA AND NIGLIVA.

By G. BÜHLER, PH.D., LL.D., C.I.E.

THE two new Aśoka edicts of Paḍēria and Niglīva are edited here according to inked estampages, furnished by their discoverer, Dr. A. A. Führer, who found the second in March 1895 and the first in December 1896. Both come from the Nepal Terai, where Niglīva is situated 38 miles north-west of the Uaka Bazar station of the Bengal and North-Western Railway, in the Nepalese tahsil Taulihvā of the zillah Butaul.¹ Paḍēria lies two miles north of the Nepalese tahsil Bhagvānpur of the same zillah, and according to Dr. Führer's estimate about thirteen miles from Niglīva.² Both are incised on mutilated stone pillars, and the Paḍēria edict, which was found three feet below the surface of the ground, is in a state of perfect preservation, while that of Niglīva has suffered a great deal on the left side and has lost the first five letters of line 3 as well as the first seven of line 4.

The characters of the two edicts agree exactly with those of the north-eastern pillar-edicts of Radhia, Mathia and Rāmpūrvā.³ And their language is the Māgadhi of the third century B.C., which is found also in the other pillar-edicts, in the Kālsi, Dhauli and Jaugaḍa versions of the rock-edicts, in the two Bairāt and the Sahaśrām edicts, in the cave-inscriptions of Barābar, and in the Sōhgaurā copper-plate, and which may be recognised by the invariable substitution of la for ra and of na for ṣa, by the nominatives singular in e, and by the word hida for idha. A peculiarity which re-occurs only in the north-eastern pillar-edicts, is the comparatively frequent shortening of final d in piyadasina, lājina, atana and kālāpita. New words and forms, not found in the other Aśoka edicts, are aṭṭabhāgiye (Paḍēria, l. 5), āgācha (Paḍēria, l. 2; Niglīva, l. 3), ubaliḥe (Paḍēria, l. 4), usapāpīte (Paḍēria, l. 3; Niglīva, l. 4), Bhagavan (Paḍēria, l. 4), mahīyite (Paḍēria, l. 2; Niglīva, l. 3) and vigaḍabhi (Paḍēria, l. 3), to which may be added the names of Konākamana (Niglīva, l. 2), Luhminigāma (Paḍēria, l. 4) and Sakyamuni (Paḍēria, l. 2). The wording of the two inscriptions agrees very closely, and leaves no doubt that they were incised at the same time. It makes also the restoration of the lost portions of the Niglīva edict easy and absolutely certain.⁴

The great importance of the Paḍḍia inscription for the topography of ancient India and the sacred history of the Buddhists has been fully recognised by Dr. Führer, who has discussed it in an article in the Pioneer of December 1896.¹ It fixes with absolute certainty the situation of the garden of Lumbini where according to the Buddhist tradition prince Siddhārtha was born. No adverse criticism can shake the evidence of the repeated assertion: "Here Buddha Śākyamuni was born," and: "Here the worshipful one was born," as well as of the mention of Luhminigāma, the first part of which name agrees with Lumbini in accordance with the analogy of Pāli ammā for ambā and ārammana for ālabana. Even the possible, but a priori improbable assumption that the pillar might have been brought to Paḍḍia from some other place, is barred by the fact mentioned by Dr. Führer, that the site is still called Rummin-dēi, and by the evidence of Hiuen Tsiang. The Chinese pilgrim,² as Dr. Führer has duly noted, mentions the pillar as standing close to four Stūpas, the ruins of which are still extant. He further says that it was broken in the middle through the contrivance of a wicked dragon; and its upper part actually seems to have been shattered by lightning, which the Buddhists ascribe to the anger of the Nāgas, called 'dragons' by the Chinese. If Hiuen Tsiang omits to mention the inscription, the reason is no doubt, as Dr. Führer thinks, that it was covered at the time of his visit by an accumulation of débris. As stated already, it was found three feet below the ground, and the portion of the pillar which was visible on Dr. Führer's arrival, a piece only nine feet high, is covered with pilgrims' records, one of which was incised about A.D. 800. It is evident that the Aśoka inscription must have been covered at least at that date.

The Paḍḍia edict, of course, fixes also the site of Kapilavastu and of the sanctuaries in its neighbourhood. Fahien says³ that the Lumbini garden lies 50 li or, adopting Sir A. Cunningham's reckoning,⁴ 8½ miles east of the capital of the Śākyas, and Dr. Führer has found its extensive ruins eighteen miles north-west of Paḍḍia "between the villages of Amauli and Bikuli (north-east) and Rāmghāt on the Bangaṅgā (south-west)," covering a space seven miles long and from three to four miles broad. The country of the Śākyas, it now appears, has been looked for too far south by Sir A. Cunningham and his assistants. Sir A. Cunningham's error has been caused by the vague statements of the Chinese pilgrims, who both say that in travelling from Śrāvastī to Kapilavastu they went south-east. As he had discovered by epigraphical evidence⁵ the identity of Śrāvastī with the modern Sēt or Sahēt-Mahēt between Akaona and Balrāmpur, it was but natural for him to infer that Kapilavastu must lie either in the Basti district or in Gōrakhpur. Nevertheless, the town lay much further north, and it may be pointed out that its real position agrees with the hints, given in the Ceylonese canonical books. According to the *Ambaḥḥa-Sutta*⁶ the banished sons of Ikshvāku or Okkāka settled yattha Himavāntapassē pōkharaniyā tirē mahā sākasandō; "where there was a great grove of sāka trees (Tectona grandis) on the bank of a lake (situated) on the slopes of the Himālaya." This description fits the Nepalese Terai better than the absolutely flat districts of Basti and Gōrakhpur,⁷ which are still some distance from the hills. The fact that the Śākyas were real jungle-Rājputs is not without importance for their history and the explanation of their curious customs. It makes their assertion that their ancestors were forcibly ejected from the more civilised districts in the south very credible, though the truth of the cause of their banishment, stated in the Buddhist work quoted above, may be doubted. Further, their isolation in the jungles may have led, as the canon alleges, to their custom of endogamy, so repugnant to all Rājputs and to all the higher castes in India. And this custom, — not their pride of race, as they themselves asserted, — was no doubt the reason why the other royal families¹ of Northern India did not intermarry with them. This isolation and the consequent estrangement from the rest of the Hindū population probably accounts also for their disinclination, mentioned in the Ambaṭṭha-Sutta, to show hospitality to the Brāhmanas who came to their settlement from Śrāvastī or other parts of India. Their religion, however, was Śaivism and of the ordinary type of Hindūism. Hiuen Tsiang² was still shown near the eastern gate of Kapilavastu the old temple of Īśvara, where the infant Siddhārtha was taken by his father, because “the Śākya children who here seek divine protection always obtain what they ask.” According to the legend the stone image then raised itself and saluted the prince. Mr. Beal has correctly recognised that the scene is represented on the Amarāvati Stūpa. The legend is therefore ancient and undoubtedly points to the conclusion that Śiva was the kuladēvatā of the Śākyas. Perhaps Dr. Führer will pay special attention to this temple, which certainly must be one of the oldest Śivite monuments of which we have knowledge and possesses great interest for the history of the Brāhmanical religions.

In addition to the ruins of Kapilavastu Dr. Führer has also succeeded in tracing the site of Napeikia-Nābhika,³ the supposed birth-place of the mythical Buddha Krakuchchanda, and of the Stūpa of his Nirvāṇa, which is still eighty feet high, exactly in the position indicated by Fahien,⁴ viz. one yōjana or “7 miles” south-west of Kapilavastu. The important sites of Rāmagrāma and of Kusinārā, where Aśoka’s pillar with an undated record of Śākyamuni’s Nirvāṇa existed in Hiuen Tsiang’s time, will have to be looked for in the eastern portion of the Nepalese Terai. If the direction given by the Chinese, — east of Lumbinī, — is correct, Kusinārā cannot be identical with Kasia in the Gōrakhpur district, where Sir A. Cunningham and Mr. Carlleyle believed to have found its ruins.

The value of the Nigliva edict for the history of Buddhism has been pointed out in my preliminary notice of the document.⁴ As the Stūpa of Kōṇākamana was “increased” or enlarged for the second time in Aśoka’s fifteenth year, it would appear that the monument had been erected before the beginning of the king’s reign, or before B.C. 259. Kōṇākamana or Kōṇāgamana belongs to the long series of purely mythical predecessors of the historical founder of Buddhism. The mythology of Buddhism must not only have been developed, but the myths must have been fixed locally, before it could occur to the Faithful to build Stūpas in honour of their heroes. It seems difficult to believe that all these stages of the development could have been accomplished in a short time. As they had been completed in the first half of the third century B.C., it becomes probable that the origin of Buddhism lies very much earlier and that, therefore, it is impossible, as some scholars have done, to fix the Nirvāṇa in B.C. 350 or in B.C. 325. The remoter date, viz. B.C. 477, is, also on this consideration, the more probable one. I regret that, when writing my first notice, I overlooked that the Stūpa, the pillar and its inscription are mentioned by Hiuen Tsiang in the Siyuki, Vol. II. p. 19. If I had noticed this, I might have announced at once that the site of Kapilavastu must be looked for in its neighbourhood. Dr. Führer, who years ago had shown Mr. Carlleyle’s identification of Bhūla with Kapilavastu to be erroneous, apparently found the passage and hence gave expression to the expectation of discovering the Śākya capital near Bhagvānpur in his Progress Report of 1895-96. According to an article in the Calcutta Englishman of June 1st and extracts in the Journal of the Mahābōdhi Society, Vol. V. pp. 82 and 83, Dr. L. Waddell made the same discovery in 1896, published it in the Englishman, and applied for permission to proceed to Nepal.

As regards Aśōka's history, the two edicts inform us that in the twenty-first year of his reign he went on a pilgrimage to the sacred places of the Buddhists situated in the extreme north. Very probably he visited on this occasion, as the legend in the Dīvyāvadāna, p. 386 ff. (Cowell and Neil), asserts, not only the Stūpa of Kōṇākamana and the Lumbini garden, but also further east the site of Buddha's Nirvāṇa and Rāmagrāma, and further west Kapilavastu, the Stūpas of Krakuchchanda and the old town of Śrāvastī, in several of which localities, pillars with his inscriptions were extant in Hiuen Tsiang's times. The Archæological exploration of the Nepalese Terai will bring certainty on this point. Aśōka's route from Pāṭaliputra towards the Terai is perhaps marked by the series of pillars extending from Bakhra near Vaiśālī through Radhia and Mathia to Rāmpūrva in the Champāran district, most of which were later on inscribed with the so-called pillar edicts. The fact that Aśōka undertook such a journey may be interpreted as indicating that he was at the time a believing Buddhist. But it may also be looked upon as one of the dhammayāts which, as the eighth rock-edict says, he undertook regularly since the eleventh year of his reign in order to obtain enlightenment.

The two edicts tend also to show that the Nepal Terai formed part of Aśōka's dominions. This is indisputable if the Padēria inscription declares that the king remitted the taxes of the village of Lūmmini. But even the mere fact that Aśōka planted his pillars all over the Terai favours the view that it was subject to his rule.

TRANSLATION.

King Piyadasi, beloved of the gods, having been anointed twenty years, came [1]² himself and worshipped [2], saying [3]: "Here Buddha Śākyamuni was born." And he caused to be made a stone (slab) bearing a big sun (?) [4]; and he caused a stone pillar to be erected [5]. Because here the worshipful one was born, the village of Lūmmini has been made free of taxes and a recipient of wealth [6].

REMARKS.

1. Agācha stands for Pāli agachcha, Sanskrit āgāya, and shows the substitution, frequent in the Prākṛits, of a single consonant for a double one as well as the then necessary lengthening of a preceding short vowel.

2. Mahiyite stands for mahiyitam. The construction is the bhūvē prayōga, and the literal translation: "it has been worshipped," or "worship has been performed." The verb mahīy in the sense of 'to worship' occurs also in Sanskrit; see the larger St. Petersburg Dictionary, s. v.

3. Ti, rendered here by 'saying,' may of course also be translated by 'for' or 'because.'

4. The translation of vigaḍabbhī is not certain. It may be a word governing sīlā, and a technical term of unknown meaning. My translation is based on the supposition that it is a compound adjective, qualifying sīlā and equivalent to Sanskrit vikaṭābhṛī. Vikaṭābhṛī might be represented in a Prākṛit dialect of the Pāli type by vigaḍabbhī, which would become vigaḍabbhī according to the popular spelling of the edicts. For ga instead of ka occurs in Āmṭiyoga (Kālsi edict ii. 1. 5, ed. xiii. 2, l. 9) for Āmṭiyoka (in the other versions), in loga (Jaugaḍa sep. ed. ii. 1. 7) for loka, and in adhigicha (Bairāt i. 1. 6) for adhikṛīya. And ḍa instead of ṣa is found in ambavaḍikā (Allahabad, queen's edict) and ambāvaḍikya (Delhi Sivalik pillar-edict vii. 2, l. 2) for Pāli ambavāḍikā, in Bhasikaḍa (Cunningham, Sāñchi Stūpa, i. No. 156) for kaṣa*, and in apaḍihata on the Indo-Grecian coins for Pāli apaḍihata and Sanskrit apratihata. If my transliteration vikaṭābhṛī is correct, the second part of the word must be either abhṛī or abhra. The first will not do on account of its meaning, and the second will suit only if it is taken to mean 'the sun,' which meaning is assigned to abhra in the Kōśas. A stone slab, bearing a large representation of the sun, might have been put up in the Lumbini garden in order to indicate that Śākyamuni claims to be arkabandhu or ādityabandhu, a scion of the solar race of Ikshvāku. Professor Pischel, whom I consulted regarding the three difficult hapax legomena of this inscription, takes the word differently. He says: "I suspect that vigaḍabbhī is the Sanskrit vigardabhi. According to Hémachandra, ii. 37, gardabha becomes in Prākṛit gaddaha or gaḍḍaha. In Marāṭhi it becomes gāḍhava and is according to Molesworth also 'a term for a rude block or a rough stone.' Hence vigaḍabbhī might mean 'finely wrought, polished,' or something like it. Literally it would be 'not so uncouth as a donkey.'"

5. Usapāpīte is equivalent to Pāli ussāpītā and Sanskrit uchchhrāpitaḥ. For the double pa compare likhāpāpītā, Delhi Sivalik pillar-edict vii. 2, l. 10, and Pāli viññāpāpēti.

6. I here adopt M. Barth's rendering, published in the Journal des Savants, 1897, p. 73. M. Barth explains ubalike, in accordance with a suggestion of M. Senart, as equivalent to Sanskrit udbalikah* and derives aphabhāgiye from arthabhāga. The explanation of the second word is unobjectionable and is supported, as M. Barth points out, by the statement of the Divyāvadāna (p. 390), according to which Aśoka presented on his visit to Lumbinivāna one hundred thousand (suvarṇas) to the people of the country. The identification of ubalike with udbalikah*, which was suggested to me also by Professors Leumann and Oldenberg, offers some difficulties. Taken as a Bahuvrīhi compound, udbalikah* would mean udbhūtaḥ or udastaḥ balih yasya saḥ, 'rich in taxes' or 'with raised taxes,' in accordance with the analogy of utpakṣha, utpucchha,¹ udagra, udambhas, etc. And as far as I know, there is no Bahuvrīhi in which ut is used in the sense of mukta. Taken as a Tatpurusha, irregularly enlarged by the addition of ka, udbali(ka)* must stand, according to the Kāśikā, loc. cit., for balēḥ utkrāntaḥ, 'one who has left the taxes,' compare also the numerous analogous compounds like uchchhrīṣṭa-khala, utpucchha, utsūtra, udbila, udvāsa, unnidra, etc. The use of udbalikah* in the sense of 'exempt from taxes' would therefore be unidiomatic, and it is not supported by any analogies, as compounds like utkara* for akara or nishkara, udrina* for anrina or nirrina, and uchchhulka* are not found. Perhaps it will be better to explain ubalike, as Mr. Tawney has suggested to me, by avabalikah* or apabalikah*; regarding the contraction of ava and apa to o, ū or u in Pāli, see E. Müller, Simplified Pāli Grammar, p. 42 f.

No. 2.—YEKKERI ROCK INSCRIPTION OF THE TIME OF PULIKESIN II.

By J. F. FLEET, PH.D., C.I.E.

Yekkēri is a village about four miles towards the north by east from Saundatti, the chief town of the Parasgaḍ tāluks of the Belgaum district. The record is engraved on a rock in a glen, somewhere about a mile or a mile and a half to the north-east of the village. The existence of it was brought to my notice in December, 1894, by Venkangaṇḍa bin Yellapagaṇḍa, of the neighbouring village of Hāli. I edit it from ink-impressions which Dr. Hultzsch was kind enough to obtain for me.

The whole writing covers an area about 7' 2" broad by 3' 11" high. About two feet of the breadth, however, are occupied by the benedictive and imprecatory verses, which stand on the proper right of the essential part of the record: to avoid reducing the scale of the collotype too far, it has not been thought necessary to include them in the Plate; but the mi of bhūmi, line 13, is discernible just before the commencement of line 3; and the marks below it represent, imperfectly, parts of the word phalaṃ, line 14.—The characters are of the regular type, for the locality, of the period to which the record refers itself, viz. the first half of the seventh century A.D.; and they are boldly formed and well cut. They include numerical symbols in lines 5, 7, 8.³ The size of the ordinary letters ranges from $\frac{1}{8}$ "

² Restore silāthābe-cha usapāpita, according to the Paḍḍia edict.

³ In line 5 we have, for 'four,' the symbol which Pandit Bhagwanlāl Indraji has given in Ind. Ant. Vol. VI. p. 44, col. 4, from the Gupta records; but it seems pronounceable as pka or pkra rather than aka.—In the same line we have, for 'five,' the symbol which the Pandit has given in col. 5 of his Table (see the central one of the three forms) from the Valabhi plates; he admitted that it looks like ad (as it does here), but held that it is only a corruption of trā. It must be noted that, in the collotype published herewith, the symbol has not come out well from the ink-impression—(on the whole, the better of the two)—which I selected for reproduction; the lower side-stroke, to the right from the bottom part of the akshara, shows only faintly: in the other impression, the akshara is quite clear and unmistakable; and there it distinctly reads as ad.—In the same line, again, we have, for 'eight,' a symbol which, in the side-stroke to the left from the top of the akshara, in the down-stroke on the right from the end of the top-stroke, and in the line across the centre of the body of the akshara, differs a good deal from any of the forms given by the Pandit and interpreted by him as hira or hrā.—In line 7 we have, for 'fifty,' a symbol from which the symbol given by the Pandit in col. 5 of his Table, from the Valabhi plates, may very easily have been derived by corruption. But, whereas he held that his symbol is a corrupted form of the śaṇḍaika, turned the wrong way, we seem to have here clearly the akshara ba. And I notice that Mr. Bendall

(in the pa of nrupa, line 1) to $2\frac{1}{2}$ " (in the bha of bhagavatā, line 4). The śrī of rājya-śrī, line 2, is $5\frac{1}{4}$ " high.—The language is Sanskrit; and, except for the two benedictive and imprecatory verses, the whole record is in prose. The record was composed, however, by someone who had a very imperfect knowledge of the language, and who could neither construct his sentences properly nor even spell correctly. I have noted, in and below the text, a few corrections of the more simple kind. But, from udita, line 1, to rājyē, line 4, the whole text requires emendation: either the whole must be turned into a compound,—in which case, we must read (line 2) prithivī-svāmi, and (line 3) prithivy-apratiratha and śrīmat; or else mahārāja (line 4) must be turned into the genitive, mahārājasya, and we must read (line 1) prasūtasya and bhūtasya, (line 2) svāmīnaḥ and rājya-śrīyaḥ, and (line 3) maṇḍalasya, apratirathasya, and śrīmataḥ.—In respect of orthography, the only point calling for special notice is the unnecessary insertion of the anusvāra before the nasals in vaṁśa, line 1 (twice), sāmañta and mañḍala, line 3, pañcha, lines 5 and 6, puṁnyaṁ, lines 6 and 9, pañchāśat, line 7, and vasuñdharaṁ, line 16.

The inscription refers itself to the reign of the Western Chalukya king Pulikēśin II.¹ It is dated in one of his regnal years; but all that can be made out here is a numerical symbol which, if we contrast it with the symbol for 'eight' which we have in line 5, must, I suppose, be interpreted as meaning 'six:' just before it, there is an illegible akshara, which may be either the syllable ṇi or ṇām of sañvatsarāṇi or sañvatsarāṇām, or a numerical symbol meaning 'ten,' 'twenty,' or some higher figure: the date mentions also the full-moon tithi of the month Kārttika; but it does not include any details that admit of calculation. The object of the inscription was to record that certain lands, in certain towns, were the property of the god Mahādēva (Śiva).

Mention is made of villages or towns named Benira, Dhutipura, and Āgariyapura, and perhaps Kṛishṇapura; but these places cannot now be traced on the map.

About four feet away to the left of the above record, there is engraved on the rock, in similar characters, another inscription, of four short lines, covering an area about 2' 0" broad by 1' 10" high. The first line of it is illegible. The remainder speaks of four nivartanas of land at a place named, apparently, Sindavaḷaga.

has found ba used to denote 'fifty' in a syllabic system in Malabar which has survived to even the present century (Jour. R. A. Soc., 1896, p. 789 ff.)—In line 8 we have a symbol to which the closest resemblance that can be detected in the Pandit's Table is to the found in the centre one of the three symbols for 'eight' given in his col. 5, from the Valabhi plates (it must be noted that the faint line upwards from the right end of the lower part of the body of the akshara, which appears in the collotype published herewith, is due to a depression in the stone; it is not an engraved part of the akshara). But, in the face of the symbol for 'eight' which we have in line 5, it cannot be taken as meaning 'eight.' And I can only take it as a symbol for 'six,' approximating to the symbol for that numeral given by the Pandit in col. 3 of his Table, from the Kalatrappa coins and inscriptions. The Pandit considered that his forms of the symbol for 'eight' are the akshara hṛa or hrā; and that 'six' is phra or phrā, or some other akshara containing ph. Here, in this record, the akshara closely resembles ha; as it also does, to my eyes, in the form given by the Pandit in his detailed account of the symbol for 'eight' (loc. cit. p. 46): and Mr. Bendall gives ha for 'six' in the syllabic system of Malabar described by him.

TRANSLATION.

Om ! Hail ! The reign being current of the Mahārāja, the glorious Satyāśraya-Pulekēśin (II.), the favourite, who has been born in a race of princes who rose to the front by confronting difficulties, who has become the forehead-ornament of his race, who is the lord of the (whole) country of the region of the south, who has acquired the sovereignty over the (whole earth) girt about by the four oceans, who has bowed down the entire group of chieftains by the excess of (his) prowess, (and) who has no antagonist (of equal power) in the world,¹³— it is written as follows :—

To the divine (god) Mahādēva there belong four, (or in figures) 4, nivartanas (of land) at (the village of) Benira ; eight, 8, nivartanas at the town of Dhutipurā ; five, 5, nivartanas, Whosoever confiscates land that has been given whether by himself or by another, he is cooked in hell for sixty thousand years! Hail to the writer and the reader!

No. 3.—INSCRIPTIONS AT MANAGOLI.

By J. F. FLEET, PH.D., C.I.E.

Managōli³ is a village about eleven miles to the north-west of Bāgewādi, the chief town of the Bāgewādi tāluka of the Bijāpur district. With the difference of the lingual n for the dental n, its name occurs in the ancient records as Manigavalli (e.g., A. below, lines 18, 19) and Maningavalli (e.g., ibid. line 17); and we also have the Sanskritised form Mānikyavalli, "the village of rubies" (e.g., ibid. line 20). From A. below, lines 18, 24, we learn that it was in the group of towns and villages which was known as the Tardavādi thousand, and which took its name from a town that is now represented by the small village of Taddewādi,—the 'Tuddehwarree' and 'Tudewadee' of maps,—on the south bank of the Bhīmā, in the Inḍi tāluka, about thirty-seven miles to the north of Bijāpur.⁴ And line 54 of the same record mentions it as an agrahāra; in consequence of which we may perhaps reckon it among "the eighteen agrahāras" which are spoken of in other records.⁵

The records at Managōli are on stone tablets which have been built into the walls of a modern temple of Hanumat. I edit them from ink-impressions made by my own man.

A.—Of the time of Bijjala; A.D. 1161.

The writing of this record covers an area about 2' 10" broad by 4' 6½" high. From the beginning of line 36 to the centre of the last line, there is a fissure by which the tablet has

been broken into two pieces: but even along this fissure there are but few letters that have been destroyed; and the rest of the record is in a state of very good preservation.—The sculptures above it, at the top of the tablet, are, in the centre, a liṅga, with the sun and moon above it; on the proper right, a seated figure; and, on the proper left, a crooked sword, dagger, or knife, and a cow and calf.—The characters are Kanarese, of the regular type of the period to which the record refers itself; and they are well formed and well executed throughout. They include decimal figures in lines 39, 43, 46, and 60, and the distinct form of the lingual ḍ all through: the virāma is represented sometimes by its own proper sign, as in satiyoḷ, line 4, ḍḍaḷ, line 8, tiruvār, line 46, naḍasul, line 64, sthaḷadal, line 66, and samayaṁgaḷ, line 67, and sometimes by the sign for the letter u, as in pogaḷalu, line 17, maḥḥadalu, line 44, and kayyalu, line 52; cases in which the two methods of expressing it are pointedly contrasted, are, enal and enalu, lines 24 and 30, and paḍuval, mūḍal, baḍagal, paḍuvalu, mūḍalu, and baḍagalu, lines 42, 47, and 48. The size of the letters ranges from about $\frac{3}{8}$ " to $\frac{5}{8}$ ".—The language is Kanarese.¹ There are ordinary verses in lines 1 to 35, and some of the customary benedictive and imprecatory verses in lines 55 to 59. We have the nominative plural ending in u, as in the modern or colloquial form of the language, in aynārvvaru, line 24, where the metre shews that the u is to be pronounced; and with this we have to contrast the archaic or stilted form samayaṁgaḷ, in line 67: cases in which it is not certain whether the u is to be pronounced, or whether it represents the virāma, are illustrated by paṁḍitaru, line 50, and koffaru, line 67, as contrasted with paṁḍitar, line 51, and koffar, line 67. The accusative singular neuter in v occurs in gōkuḷavam, line 59; but, otherwise, the archaic form in m appears throughout, as in jasaman, line 27, āspadamam, line 32, kaumāramam, line 44, and dharmmamam, line 54.—In respect of orthography, the only points that call for special notice are (1) the use of ri for ṛi, throughout, as in ālamkṛiti, line 3, and nripatige, line 7; (2) the use of b for v in sḥyam, line 24, and dibya, line 31; and (3) an affected use of the Drāviḍian ḷ in Chālukyār, line 5, and ālamkārav, line 24.

The inscription is a record of the time of the Kaḷachurya king Bijjala. Before, however, it proceeds to recite certain donations made in his reign, it makes reference, in lines 1 to 59, to certain events of the time of the Western Chālukya king Perma-Jagadēkamalla II. In that part of the record, after some introductory genealogical and historical matters, a register is made of certain grants which were bestowed by Perma-Jagadēkamalla II. himself, and by other people, on the god Śiva, in the form of the local god Kalidēvēśvara,—“the Siddhalinga of the south,”—of Maṇigavallī. The introductory part mentions a person named Īśvaraghaṇiśāsa, of the Harita gōtra (line 16), who, it asserts, was a Jagadguru or leading pontiff in the time of the Western Chālukya king Taila II., and was endowed by that king, at his coronation, with the town of Maṇigavallī; and in the lineage of this person it places a certain Mādhava (line 20), who is to be identified with the Mādirāja (line 37) who held the post of Mahāprabhu of the village at the time when the grants were made. It further tells us that the temple of Kalidēvēśvara had been built by a certain Basava (line 28) or Basavarasayya (line 30), son of Chandra or Chandirāja and Chandrāmbike (line 28), who belonged to the Kāśyapa gōtra (line 25) and was one of the five-hundred Mahājanas or Brāhman² of Maṇigavallī. And the occurrence of the names of Basava and Mādirāja in this Śaiva record from the neighbourhood of Bāgewāḍi, and in connection with the foundation and endowment of a liṅga-temple which was evidently of some considerable size and repute, is rather suggestive of our having at last met with an epigraphic mention of the original of that Basava who, according to the Liṅgāyat traditions as embodied in the Basava-Purāṇa and Channabasava-Purāṇa, was born at Bāgewāḍi to a Śaiva Brāhmaṇ named Mādirāja, and subsequently, becoming the prime-minister of the Kaḷachurya king Bijjala, overthrew the Jains, revived Śaivism, and established the sect of Vira-Śaivas or Liṅgāyats. The remainder of the record, line 59 to the end, refers to the reign of the Kaḷachurya king Bijjala; and it registers a variety of grants made by various persons to the same god Kalidēvēśvara.

The record contains two dates. As the first date (lines 38-40), for the donations that were made before the time of Bijjala, it cites the tenth tithi, coupled with Thursday and the winter solstice, of the bright fortnight of the month Pausha of the Dundubhi samvatsara, which was the fifth year of the reign of Perma-Jagadēkamalla II. The given samvatsara was Śaka-Saṃvat 1065 current. And this date does not work out correctly. The tithi ended, at about 14 hrs. 2 min. after mean sunrise (for Bombay), not on a Thursday, but on Tuesday, 29th December, A.D. 1142; and this was four days after the winter solstice, which, as represented by the Makara-samkrānti or passage of the sun into Capricornus, occurred at about 3 hrs. 8 min., again not on a Thursday, but on Friday, 25th December. There must, therefore, have been some mistake made, either in taking the date from the archive from which the material for this part of the record was derived,—(the characters shew that the whole record was put on the stone at one and the same time, by one and the same hand),—or else in the original computation of the date.¹ The second date (lines 59, 60) is the sixth tithi, coupled with Tuesday, of the dark fortnight of the month Bhādrapada of the Vishu samvatsara,² which was the sixth year of the reign of Bijjala. The given samvatsara was Śaka-Saṃvat 1084 current. And the corresponding English date is Tuesday, 12th September, A.D. 1161, on which day the given tithi, of the amānta Bhādrapada, ended at about 18 hrs. 8 min. after mean sunrise. In line 64, the tithi is mentioned by the technical name of kapila-chaṭṭi.

* * * * *

In lines 67, 68, mention is made of a festival called nūla-parvan. The reference must be to the nūla-hunṇuve or full-moon of the month Śrāvaṇa. And it may be useful to give here the Kanarese names of all the full-moons and new-moons, as given to me on three or four different occasions, with the explanations of them as far as they can be determined at present.³ As will be seen further on, there are references to some of these special names in other epigraphic records.

The month Chaitra; March-April.—The full-moon is called davanada-hunṇuve;⁴ because, I am told, on this day the people place the fragrant leaves of the davana-plant on the images of the god Mallikārjuna of Śrīśaila.⁵ The new-moon is called akshatadige-amavāse; because

it is followed, on Vaiśākha śukla 3 (tadige = trityā), by the festival called aksha-tadige, i.e. akshaya-trityā or akshaya-trityā.¹ This new-moon name occurs in records of A.D. 1054 and 1195 (see page 14 below).

Vaiśākha; April-May.—The full-moon is called agi-hunnuve; apparently because the time then arrives for transplanting the seedlings (agi) of rice, tobacco, pepper, etc.—The new-moon is called bādami-amavāse; because, it is suggested, worship is then done to the goddess Banasāmkari of the well-known temple two or three miles south of Bādāmi in the Bijāpur district.

Jyāishṭha; May-June.—The full-moon is called kāra-hunnuve; from kāru, “the rainy season,” which commences in this month. On this full-moon day there is celebrated the festival called kari hariyuva habba, when bullocks are raced,—the winner being the one that first reaches and breaks a string of leaves drawn across the course,—in order to obtain an augury as to the prospects of the season.²—The new-moon is called manṇettina-amavāse; because the people then make clay images of bullocks (manṇ-ettu), and worship them.

Āshāḍha; June-July.—The full-moon is called kaḍlegaḍabina-hunnuve. Two explanations are suggested: one, that the people then make cakes (kaḍabu) of gram (kaḍle, kaḍule) and offer them to the goddess Yellamma; the other, that the cultivators then decorate the necks of their bullocks with strings of such cakes.—The new-moon is usually called vāgara-amavāse; because it is followed, on Śrāvaṇa śukla 5, by the nāga-pāñchamī, when worship is done to the cobra (nāga, nāgara-hāvu). But it appears to be also sometimes known as Divāṣī-amavāse; because, it is said, girls, after marriage, then worship images of a goddess named Divāṣī.

Śrāvaṇa; July-August.—The full-moon is called nūla-hunnuve; because on this day the ceremony is annually performed of renewing the sacred thread (nūlu, otherwise called janivāra, and in Sanskrit yajñopavīta).—The new-moon is called chauti-amavāse; because it is followed, on Bhādrapada śukla 4 (chauti, chauti, = chaturthī), by the Gaṇēśa-chaturthī, when worship is done to the god Gaṇēśa. For the same reason, it is sometimes called benakana-amavāse; Benaka being a corruption of Vināyaka, one of the names of Gaṇēśa.

Bhādrapada; August-September.—The full-moon is usually called anantana-hunnuve; because the preceding day is the ananta-chaturdaśī, which, Molesworth's Marāṭhī Dictionary says, is sacred to the god Viṣṇu, in the form of Ananta. It seems to be sometimes also called jokyāna-hunṇuve; but I have not obtained the explanation of this.—The new-moon is called navarātri-amavāse, or mahānavami-amavāse; because it is immediately followed, on Āśvina śukla 1, by the nine-days festival (nava-rātri) of the goddess Durgā, ending with the dasarā-holiday on the ninth day which is called mahā-navamī, “the great ninth tithi.”¹

² This festival is described in the Basava-Purāṇa (see the Rev. G. Wüth's translation, Jour. Ro. Br. E. As. Soc. Vol. VIII. pp. 90, 91): it is there placed on the full-moon of the third month of the Hindū year (i.e. Jyāishṭha); and we are told that, if a black bullock breaks the string, all sorts of leguminous fruits will succeed, while, if a white bullock breaks the string, the white millet will thrive.—Kittel, also, in his Kannada-English Dictionary, s.v. kāru, places it on the kāra-hunnuve in the third month. Under the word kari (3), ‘unpropitiousness,’ he explains that kari kari means “to tear, i.e. do away with, unpropitiousness; an act that, on a certain day (kāra-hunnuve) is represented by throwing an iron ball, that is attached to a rope, over a tōraṇa, and thus pulling down the tōraṇa, when the ornamented bullocks of the place, that previously had “passed under the tōraṇa, are playfully driven about.” But the ceremony described in the Basava-Purāṇa is the one with which I am familiar: except that the divination seems to be more directed to the comparative prospects of the early and late crops; the idea being that, if a white bullock is the winner, the later crops will be the better, whereas, if a bullock of another colour wins, the early crops will give the better yield.—Reeve and Sanderson's Canarese Dictionary, s.v. kari, explains the festival as “a ceremony of breaking in two, by bullocks or other means, the triumphal arch of a gateway, the day after pongal-feast,” and thus (see Kittel's Dictionary, s.v. pongalu) would place it the day after the Mukara-samkrānti, in the month Pausa.

Āśvina; September-October.—The full-moon is called sigi-hunṇuve; because, it is said, on this day the people worship the goddess Gaurī under the name of Sigi-Gaurī.² It appears to have been called in ancient times herjuggiya-hunṇuve, “the full-moon of the principal harvest-time” (see page 15 below).—The new-moon is called dipāvālī-amavāse, or divalige-amavāse; because during the same or the immediately following night there is the dipāvālī, divālī, or divalige festival of lamps, when the houses and streets are illuminated.

Kārttika; October-November.—The full-moon is called gaurī-hunṇuve; because, it is said, on this day worship is done to the most honoured form of the goddess Gaurī, as Hirē-Gaurī, “the great or original Gaurī.”—The new-moon is called chaṭṭī-amavāse; because it is followed, on Mārgaśīrṣa śukla 6 (chaṭṭī = śaṣṭhī), by the chāmpā-śaṣṭhī, when, according to Molesworth’s Marāṭhī Dictionary, there is a festival of the god Khaṇḍobā or Khaṇḍerao, an incarnation of Śiva.

Mārgaśīrṣa; November-December.—The full-moon is usually called hostala-hunṇuve; because thresholds (hostalu) are decorated and worshipped on this day. But it seems to be sometimes also called raṇḍē-hunṇuve; in some connection, it is said, with the goddess Yellamma as a widow (raṇḍē).—The new-moon is called yellā-amavāse; because it stands next before the Makara-saṁkrānti or winter solstice, in celebration of which complimentary packets of sesamum seeds (eḷlu, yellu) are sent about to friends and acquaintances.³

Pauṣa; December-January.—The full-moon day is called banda-hunṇuve, or banada-hunṇuve; either, it is suggested, because the trees of the forests (banda, vana) begin to sprout at about this time, or because on this occasion there is another festival of the goddess Banaśāmkarī of the well-known temple near Bādāmi.—The name of the new-moon has been given to me as avarātra-amavāse, āvātra-amavāse, and avarātri-amavāse; I have not succeeded in obtaining any explanation of the name, or even in determining the exact form of it.

Māgha; January-February.—The full-moon is usually called bhārata-hunṇuve, or sometimes bhārati-hunṇuve; apparently in some connection either with the public reading of the Mahābhārata, or with some worship of the goddess Bhārati (Sarasvatī). It appears, however, to be also known as guḍī-hunṇuve; because, it is said, the people imagine that on this day the gods go from the temples (guḍī) to the houses of their worshippers, who, accordingly, welcome them during the night with shouts of “the gods have come,” and with the sounds of gongs and other musical instruments.⁴—The new-moon is called śivarātri-amavāse; because just before it there is the well-known great festival called mahā-śivarātri in honour of the god Śiva. In the twelfth century A.D., this new-moon was called kāman-amavāse, “the new-moon of Kāma” (see page 15 below); evidently in connection with the ensuing hōḷī-festival of Kāmadēva, the god of love, which ends with the burning of an effigy of

² I cannot verify this in any way. And it seems more likely that the name has some connection with the ripening of the pods of the siḡe-shrub, which are used like soap for washing the hair, etc.

him in commemoration of his having been reduced to ashes, by the flames from the third eye in the forehead of the god Śiva, when he was trying to inspire Śiva with love for Pārvati.

Phālguna; February-March.—The full-moon is usually called hōḷi-huṇṇuve; in connection with the hōḷi-festival, (see above, under Māgha), which ends on this day. Kittel's Kannada-English Dictionary, s.v. kāma, gives it also the name of kāmana-huṇṇuve, "the full-moon of Kāma;" in the same connection.—The new-moon is called ugādi-amavāse, i.e. yugādi-amavāse; because the next day,—Chaitra śukla 1; usually known as samvatsara-pratipaddā,—is the commencement (ādi) of the new year (yuga is here used in the sense of samvatsara or varsha).

Of epigraphic instances of the mention of special names of the full-moons and new-moons, four can be quoted, in addition to the reference to the nāla-huṇṇuve in the present record:—

1.—An inscription at Baḷagāmve in Mysore (Pāli, Sanskrit, and Old-Kanarese Inscriptions No. 158; Mysore Inscriptions, p. 121) is dated—Sa(śa)ka-varshada 976neya Jaya-samvatsarada Vaiśākha bahuḷa akshaya-tri(tri)tiyad-amavāse Adivāra-nimittam; "on account of Sunday (coupled with) the new-moon of the akshaya-trītiya of the dark fortnight of Vaiśākha of the Jaya samvatsara, which was the Śaka year 976 (expired)." Here, a mistake was made, through carelessness on the part of the writer of the record, either in allotting the new-moon in question to Vaiśākha, instead of to Chaitra, or in allotting the akshaya-trītiyā tithi to the dark fortnight, instead of to the bright fortnight, of Vaiśākha; the text may be construed either way. As regards the results for the date,—in the given year, the new-moon tithi of Chaitra ended, as required, on Sunday, 10th April, A.D. 1054, at about 19 hours after mean sunrise; whereas, the new-moon tithi of Vaiśākha ended at about 6 hours on Tuesday, 10th May, and cannot be connected with a Sunday at all.¹

2.—An inscription at Taḍi-Māḷingi in Mysore is dated, according to the romanised text (Inscriptions in the Mysore District, Part I. p. 146, No. 31),—Saka-varśada 1118neya Rākshasa-samvatsarada yaksha-tadige Bihavāra sūryya-grahanāḍalu; "at an eclipse of the sun (on) Thursday (coupled with) the aksha-tadige (new-moon) of the Rākshasa samvatsara, which was the Śaka year 1118 (current)." Here, according to this version of the text, the new-moon tithi is not expressly mentioned; though the text in Kanarese characters indicates otherwise, having the curious and meaningless expression 'yakshatahelamāsa, instead of yaksha-tadige. But, however that may be, the mention of an eclipse of the sun shows that the new-moon tithi was meant; not the akshaya-trītiyā tithi. And the new-moon tithi of Chaitra, in the given year, ended at about 3 hours after mean sunrise on Wednesday, 12th April, A.D. 1195; and on this day there was a total eclipse of the sun, perhaps visible in Southern India (see Von Oppolzer's Canon der Finsternisse, pp. 230, 231, and Plate 115). This is, perhaps, not the given week-day. But the want of agreement between the romanised and Kanarese texts suggests that the original may not have been read correctly, and that the real reading may be Budhavāra (Wednesday), not Bihavāra (Thursday).

3.—The Kargudari inscription (Ind. Ant. Vol. X. p. 249) is dated—śrīmach-Chālukya-Vikrama-varshada 33neya Sarvvadhāri-samvatsarada herjuggiya-puṇṇamī Sōmavārad-andina śubha-lagnadoḷ; "at an auspicious moment of Monday (coupled with) the herjuggi full-moon of the Sarvvadhāri samvatsara, which was the 33rd (year) of the glorious Chālukya-Vikrama-varsha." Here, the given year is Śaka-Samvat 1031 current. The month is not specified. And this full-moon name is not to be found in any of the lists given to me. But Mr. Venkat Rango Katti, of Dharwar,—one of the gentlemen by whom the lists were made out for me,— informed me eventually (see loc. cit. p. 254, note 30) that, "though the name is but rarely used "now, herjuggi, or, in its modern form, hejjuggi, is at some places still known among the "Lingayat cultivators as another name of the sigl-hunṇuve or full-moon of Āśvina; and that "the explanation is that on that day the cultivators prepare a huggi, or mess of boiled rice mixed "with split pulse, salt, pepper, cummin seeds, etc., and, taking it to their fields, scatter it abroad "in handfuls at every step (hejje)."¹ And, as a matter of fact, the full-moon tithi of Āśvina, in the given year, did end, as required, on Monday, 21st September, A.D. 1108, at about 23 hrs. 48 min. after mean sunrise.¹ Now, the above explanation of the name cannot be accepted; for the reason that herje does not occur as the older form of hejje. But the true explanation can be established. In Kanarese, an initial s is liable to become j in composition.² We have a clear instance in the name of the perjuṅka or hejjuṅka tax,—mentioned in many epigraphic records,—which unquestionably comes from per, her, 'large, great,' + suṅka, 'toll, duty, customs.' On the analogy of this, herjuggi is to be derived from per, her, + suggi, 'harvest-time,' and is to be interpreted as meaning "the great or principal harvest." Thus, the herjuggi full-moon is the harvest moon. And this name exactly fits the Āśvina full-moon, next before the autumn harvest, when the muṅgūri, kharif, or early crops, sown just before the commencement of the rains, are gathered.³

4.—An inscription at the temple of Virabhadra in the fort at Lakkunḍi in the Gadag tāluka, Dhārwar district (I quote from an ink-impression), is dated—śrīmach-Chālukya-Vikrama-varshada 45ṇeya Sārvarī⁴-samvatsarada Māgha-māsada Kāman-amavāsye punyadinad-amdu; "on the meritorious day (of) the new-moon of Kāma, of the month Māgha of the Śārvarin samvatsara, which was the 45th (year) of the glorious Chālukya-Vikrama-varsha." Here, the given year is Śaka-Samvat 1043 current. And the corresponding English date is the 19th February, A.D. 1121, when the full-moon tithi ended at about 2 hrs. 8 min. after mean sunrise. For the meaning of the name, see page 13 above.

⁶ This word is represented here by an ornate symbol,—by a somewhat less elaborate symbol in line 36 (before evati), and in line 59,—and by plain symbols near the end of this line, and in lines 31, 35 (the first Om), 46, 48, 49, and 53.

ABSTRACT OF CONTENTS.

After an invocation of Śiva (line 1), and a verse in praise of the same god under the name of Śaṁbhu, the inscription proceeds to recite that, in the centre of the earth, there is the mountain Mandara (l. 3), the ornament of the seven continents and the seven oceans. Over the land of Kuntala (l. 3), which was considered to be a lock of hair (kuntala) of the woman who was the land to the south of the golden mountain (Mêru), there reigned the Chalukyas (l. 4), in so praiseworthy a manner as to illustrate well the observances of the code of Manu (l. 4). When they had continued during eighteen successions,³ among the renowned Chalukyas (l. 5), in the eighteenth (succession), in the descent of the royal Chalukyas who claimed to be born in the lineage of the younger brother of the father of Kattiyaradēva (ll. 5, 6)⁴ whose hereditary capital was the world-renowned Kisuvolaḷ (l. 5),⁵ there was king Ayyanadēva (I.) (l. 7). To him there was born Vikramāditya (V.) (l. 7), whose wife was Bonthādēvi (l. 8), daughter of king Lakshmaṇa of the Paṇaḷa country. And then,—prosperity returning to the Chaluki family, which had suffered mishap through being bruised by the race of the demons in the shape of the Baṭṭa kings (ll. 8, 9),—their son was Taila (II.) (l. 10), a very incarnation of Kṛṣṇa, who fought a hundred and eight⁶ battles out in the open country, and captured eighty-eight fortresses. None of the hostile kings could shake off this Āhavamalla-Taila (II.) (l. 12), who, resembling Death, annihilated those kings, the pillars of Kakkara⁷ (l. 12) in war, the moons of the sky which was the Bāshtrakūṭa (race), and, amidst the applauses of the whole world, with an exceedingly great effort acquired the sovereignty of the land of Kuntala (l. 13). Just as (the god) Sarasijaṇābha (Vishṇu), in the form of the primal boar, lifted up the earth which had sunk into the lower regions, so Taila (II.) (l. 15), bearing the crest of a boar, lifted up the Chalukya sovereignty which had fallen through being over-

³ This is an imaginative statement, not in accordance with facts.

⁴ This is a purely imaginary person, not mentioned in any other record that has yet come to notice; unless, indeed, the name is intended for that of Kirttivarman II., who, however, did not stand in the asserted relationship to Ayyana I.

thrown by the Raṭṭa kings. So this Nūrmaḍi-Taila (II.), otherwise called Trailōkyamalla¹ and Āhavamalla (ll. 15, 16), became the lord of the whole earth; and, at the festival of his installation in the sovereignty, when his name, "the grindstone of the Raṭṭas," began to fill the earth, he gave (the town of) Maṇigavaḷḷi, with libations of water, to Īśvaraghaḷisāsa, the Jagadguru or pontiff of the world, the sun of the water-lilies that are (the members of) the Harita (gōtra), who was considered to be the cause of the great growth of his sovereignty (ll. 16, 17). And Īśvaraghaḷisāsa, the leader of the family of the Haritas, whose feet were worshipped by king Taila (II.), the leader of the Chalukyas, gave the choice Maṇigavaḷḷi, in the Tardavāḍi thousand, to the five-hundred excellent Brāhmanas of whom he himself was the chief, as a grant to endure as long as the moon and sun might last (ll. 17-19).

In the lineage of that lord (l. 19), there was a certain Mādhava (l. 20), the Prabhu of the town of Māṇikyavaḷḷi, the very Vishṇu of the renowned Harita gōtra. And now to describe the greatness of the five-hundred Mahājanas (l. 20):— [Here come (ll. 21-24) two verses in praise of the virtues and accomplishments of the five-hundred Brāhmanas of Māṇikyavaḷḷi or Maṇigavaḷḷi, followed by a repetition of the statement that Maṇigavaḷḷi was in the Tardavāḍi thousand; and then we are told that]— Among the five-hundred of Maṇigavaḷḷi, there sprang up a certain Gōvardhana (l. 25), the moon of the ocean that was the Kāśyapa gōtra, an excellent member of the race of Vājins.² His son was Rēvadāsa (l. 26). The latter had four sons,— Nāgadēva, Vishṇu, Goyyarasa, and Hulidha (l. 27). The youngest of these became the greatest, and, under the name of Chandramas, made his reputation reach even as far as the Himālaya mountains. To that lord Chandirāja (l. 28) and to Chandrāmbike there was born a son, Basava. There were none who were like him in devotion to the feet of (the god) Mahēśvara (Śiva); and this Basava (l. 30) attained the fame of being esteemed the sun that caused to bloom the water-lily that was the affection of the five-hundred Brāhmanas of Maṇigavaḷḷi. This Basavarasayya (l. 30) came to be considered the father of the world, since the whole world, putting their hands to their foreheads, saluted him with the words "Our virtuous father;" and thus he brought greatness to the famous Maṇigavaḷḷi. Manifesting the height of graciousness in saying "This is the abode of the essence of the three Vēdas; this is the accomplishment of that which has no end and no beginning; this is the lustrous divine liṅga" (l. 31), he caused to be made for the beautiful (god) Kalidēvēśa (l. 32) a dwelling-place, the abode of the joy of mankind, which gathered together in itself all the fame of his lineage. Saying "Basava made this beautiful abode, in such a style that it surpasses the silver mountain (Kailāsa); the excellent Brāhmanas of Maṇigavaḷḷi are full of devotion, so as to rival Kubēra; I will abide here always," the great lord Kalidēva (l. 33) approved of the abode. And so this glorious pleasure-house of Kalidēvēśa (l. 35), the chief beauty of the world, shall be charming for ever.

Hail! (l. 35). While the asylum of the universe, the favourite of fortune and of the earth, the Mahārājādhirāja, the Paramēśvara, the Paramabhāttāraka, the glory of the family of Satyāśraya, the ornament of the Chalukyas, the glorious and valorous emperor Jagadēkamalladēva (II.) (l. 36), was reigning, with the pleasure of an agreeable interchange of communications (with his feudatories),³ at the capital of Kalyāṇapura,— on his feudatory, the most intrepid Daṇḍanāyaka, the Manevergaḍe Bammanayya (l. 37), preferring a request, with the assent of the five-hundred Mahājanas headed by the Mahāprabhu Mādirāja,— the glorious Jagadēkamalladēva (II.) (l. 38), having well thought over it,— to the god Kalidēvēśvara, the holy Siddhaliṅga of the south, of Maṇigavaḷḷi,— on account of the vyatipāta and parvan of the Uttarāyana-samkrānti of Thursday (coupled with) the tenth tithi of the bright fortnight of (the month) Pausa of the Dundubhi samvatsara which was the fifth of the years marked by the name of the victory of his arms (l. 39), — having laved the feet of the youthful Brahmachārin, the illustrious Sadyōjātapanditadēva (l. 40), who was the glory of the Bhujangavallī family, eminent in the world, who was completely conversant with the Kālamukha doctrines, who performed the most austere penances, and who belonged to a family of Brāhmanas, — with libations of water, — for the purpose of maintaining the rites of the god, — gave fifty mattars (of land) in (the hamlet of) Mogeṇāda of the southern fields of Manīngavallī, (according to the measure) of the pole¹ called the board-staff (of the length) of forty spans, on the west of the road to Kallamguru, on the east of the cultivable land of the Honnoleyavarū, on the north of the cultivable land of the goddess Keṅganavve of (the shrine of) the Mūlasthāna god, and on the south of the of the ridge of the paddy-field² of Cheuna-Gēsimaṃya. In those fifty mattars (l. 43), twenty-five mattars were for the aṅgabhōga of the god, and for the purificatory rites of (the month) Chaitra, the waving of burning incense, and the repair of whatever might become broken or torn or worn-out; eight mattars were for the aṅgabhōga of the goddess Sārādādēvi of the maṭha, and for the provision of food for ascetics; five mattars were for the teachers who explain the *Kaumāra*³ in the maṭha; eight mattars were for the four (Brāhmanas whose households made up the) Brāhman settlements⁴ of the god; and four mattars were an outright allotment, free from all demands, to Amṛitarāśipandita. As the aruvana-tax on these fifty mattars, they shall pay one on each mattar.

For the flower-garden of the god (l. 46), they gave one mattar of the circle (of lands), (by the measure) of the Brāhmanas' staff, as a sarvanamasya-grant, on the north of the stream called Nīrguḷi, on the east of the garden of Valajikaveya-Kēśaya, on the south of the garden of Mahāvishṇubhaṭṭa, and on the west of the garden of the Jain temple called Kuḷiya-basadi.

On the west of the house where food and shelter were given gratis (l. 48), on the north of the road to the street of (the goddess) Bhagavatī, on the east of the king's highway, and on the south of the shop of Aytamasetṭi, they gave to the god four shops, as a sarvanamasya-grant.

In the street of the god (l. 49), they gave one oil-mill, as a sarvanamasya-grant, for the perpetual lamp of the god.

In the street of the god (ll. 49, 50), Amṛitarāśipandita gave four sites to the four (Brāhmanas whose households made up the) Brāhman settlements of the god; and one site there was given to the teachers of the Kaumāra.

In the street of the god (ll. 50, 51), on the south of the site of the Brāhman settlements of the god, Amṛitarāśipandita gave one site for the sauvarṇa.

The measure of those sites (l. 51), from south to north, in cubits of the measure of four spans, was six cubits of breadth and fifteen cubits of length for each site.

Then comes (l. 53) a mandate to the five-hundred Mahājanas, headed by the Mahāprahla, of the excellent agrahāra of Manīngavallī, to preserve this act of religion, as if it were their own act, as long as the moon and sun may last. And this part of the record ends (ll. 55-59) with five benedictive and imprecatory verses, — two in Sanskrit, and three in Kanarese.

⁴ A literal translation would be "to the four persons (who are) the Brāhmaṇ towns."

Hail! (l. 59) On Tuesday (l. 60) (coupled with) the sixth tithi of the dark fortnight of (the month) Bhādrapada of the Vishu samvatsara which was the sixth of the years of the glorious Kalachurya Bijjaladēva (l. 59), an emperor by the strength of his arm, the sole hero of the three worlds,—when, headed by the five-hundred Svāmins of the famous (town of) Ayyāvole¹ (l. 61) who were preservers of the strict Banaṣṭja-religion, the sixteen of the eight districts (l. 62), and the Gavaras of many districts, and the Mummuridaṇḍa, were met together in a great district (assembly) at the royal abode Maniṅgavalli, and were standing in one place,—and when, headed by the Prabhu of that place (l. 63), the two five-hundreds,² and the Seṭṭis of the locality, and the Nakaras, and the Seṭṭis who made a business of lading, and the betel-leaf Gātrigas, and the guild³ of oilmen, and the sealer of flour and churning-sticks⁴ of the Tardavāḍi thousand, were met together and were standing in one place,—on account of the festival of the vyatīpāta of the (tithi called) kapila-chaṭṭi (l. 64), to the god Siddhalinga-Kalidēvēśvara, in order to continue the rites of the god, the Nakaras gave⁵ half a *viśa*⁶ per *honnu*⁷ on each bale⁸ of the things which they bought, including rubies and all the stock⁹ of cotton and the twelve kinds of grain; and the Gātrigas (l. 65) gave fifty betel-leaves per honnu on the betel-leaves that they sold; and the loading Seṭṭis (l. 66) gave a viśa per honnu on the sale of such things, including rubies and all the stock of the twelve kinds of grain, which they imported from outside, and a viśa per honnu on the paddy which they bought and loaded in the locality itself; and the guilds of the oilmen (l. 67) gave one haḷige of oil on each oil-mill, for the perpetual lamp of the god; and the guilds of the weavers, headed by the Gauḍa,¹⁰ gave five viśas per poll,¹¹ year by year, for the nālu-festival; and the *Kottali*s of the god (l. 68) gave five viśas per poll, year by year, for the nālu-festival, on those who dealt in milk, thread, and; and the guilds of artisans gave five viśas per poll of the Kuriba-sēnigas (l. 69), year by year, for the nālu-festival; and the three-hundred of the caste of toddy-drawers (?) (l. 69) gave a handful of dried unripe fruit and a handful of ripe fruit on each basketful that they sold of ripe fruit,, and dried unripe fruit; and the basket-makers and mat-makers (l. 70) gave a flower-basket and, in order to maintain for ever the at the maṭha: and the groups of the kinsmen of the village-headman, headed by the Gauḍa himself, gave, as a perquisite of the god, five viśas on each marriage (l. 71), no matter whether of a boy or of a girl, and two baḷis year by year.

The record ends (ll. 71, 72) with a mandate to the people of the district and to the three-hundred of the caste of toddy-drawers, to preserve this act of religion.

B.—Of the time of Bijjala; A.D. 1165.

² i.e. the five-hundred Svāmins of Ayyāvole, and the five-hundred Mahājanas of Maniṅgavalli.

³ Kittel's Dictionary explains kottali (which would become gottali in composition) as 'a multitude or assemblage, as of fishermen, etc.'

⁵ i.e. here, and throughout, "agreed to give annually."

⁷ The same explains honnu as 'a gold coin, the half of a vardā (one rupee, seven annas, four cash).'

¹¹ i.e. a capitation-tax of five viśas each.

another from the top of the tablet to about the centre of line 10: but very few letters have been completely lost thereby, except near the middle of lines 1 to 8; and in other respects the record is very well preserved.—The sculptures at the top of the tablet have been so much damaged that it is difficult to make out what they are.—The characters are Kanarese, of the regular type of the period to which the record refers itself; and they are well formed and boldly executed. They include decimal figures in lines 18, 25, and 26, and the distinct form of the lingual ç all through: the virāma is represented by the mark for the vowel u, throughout; and a pointed instance of this is the word śabuda, line 4. The average size of the letters is about $\frac{1}{2}$ ".—The language is Kanarese; except for the two opening Sanskrit verses.—As regards orthography, the only points calling for special notice are—(1) the use of ri for ri, e.g. in vrittiya, line 24; (2) the use of b for v in byatīpāta, line 20; and (3) a frequent confusion between the sibilants, e.g. in vriśabha, line 5, and aṁkusaṁ, line 7.

The inscription is a record of the time of the Kaḷachurya king Bijjala. And it registers certain grants that were made to a temple of the god Viṣṇu in the form of Channa-Kēśava.

It is dated at the time of an eclipse of the sun on Sunday coupled with the new-moon tithi of the month Mārgasīra of the Pārthiva samvatsara, which was the tenth year of the reign of Bijjala. The given samvatsara was Śaka-Saṁvat 1088 current. And the corresponding English date is Sunday, 5th December A.D. 1185, when the new-moon tithi ended at about 8 hrs. 28 min. after mean sunrise. On this day, however, there was no eclipse of the sun.¹

ABSTRACT OF CONTENTS.

The record opens with invocations of the god Vishṇu as the boar (line 1), and as Śārṅgin (ll. 3, 4). It then refers itself to the time of the Bhujabala-chakravartin Bijjaladēva (l. 10),—the Mahārājādhirāja who had attained the pañchamahāśubda (l. 4); the supreme lord of Kāḷañjara, the best of towns (l. 5); he who had the banner of a golden Garuḍa; he who was heralded in public by the sounds of the musical instrument called ḍamarugu (ll. 5, 6); the sun of the water-lily that was the Kaḷachurya family (l. 6),—who was reigning at the capital of Kalyāṇa (l. 10) with the pleasure of an agreeable or friendly interchange of communications (with his feudatories) (l. 11).

All the Mahājanas, headed by Mādirāja (l. 14), the Prabhu of the agrahāra of Maṇigavaḷli, and the Karaṇas,⁶ headed by the Mahāpradhāna and Daṇḍanāyaka Ammanayya (l. 15),—for the aṅgabhōga, and for the repairs of whatever might become broken, torn, or worn-out, of (the god) Channa-Kēśava (l. 17), which had been established by Daṇḍeya-Vāsudevanāyaka (l. 16),—on account of the vyatipāta of an eclipse of the sun (l. 20) (on) Sunday (coupled with) the new-moon tithi of (the month) Mārgaśīra of the Pārthiva saṃvatsara which was the tenth year of the Kaḷachurya emperor Bijjaladēva (l. 18),—gave a plot of cultivable land (l. 20) on the west of the road to *Ukkali*⁷ (ll. 20, 21), on the north of the cultivable land called Tupparaju-geyyi, on the east of the road to (?) Balakkiyabbeya-Haṇchike, and on the south of the cultivable land called Harekāra-geyyi. (And) Daṇḍeya-Siṅgarasa and Daṇḍeya-Vāsudevanāyaka (l. 23) allotted twelve mattars, (by the measure) of the big staff, as a sarvanamasya-grant, in the site of their⁸ allotment. For the perpetual lamp of the god, there was allotted one oil-mill (l. 26), as a sarvanamasya-grant. (And), headed by the

C.—Of the time of Saṅkama; A.D. 1178.

The writing of the whole record covers an area about 1' 11½" broad by 2' 11" high. The tablet, however, is broken into four pieces, of which one, containing portions of lines 15 to 25, has been lost. In addition to this, many of the letters in the two extant upper fragments, which extend as far as line 23, are a good deal obliterated. And it has, therefore, been found convenient to reproduce the text from line 24 only, from which point it is all on one fragment of the stone and in a state of much better preservation; giving, in the abstract of contents, the substance of lines 1 to 23, which can be read quite sufficiently for that purpose, though they cannot be edited in full.—The sculptures at the top of the tablet are, in the centre, a līnga, with the sun and moon above it; on the proper right, a squatting figure, facing full-front; and on the proper left, a cow and calf.—The characters are Kanarese, of the regular type of the period to which the record refers itself; and they are well formed and boldly executed. They include decimal figures in line 25, and the distinct form of the lingual ḍ: the virāma is represented by the sign for the vowel u, throughout; and pointed instances of this are śrīmatu, line 24, and pārthivēन्द्रānu, line 41. The average size of the letters is about ⅓".—The language is Kanarese; there are ordinary verses in lines 10 to 24, and some of the customary benedictive and imprecatory verses in lines 40 to 46. The accusative neuter singular occurs both with the archaic m, e.g. dhanamam, line 33, and with the v, e.g. dharmavaimn-, l. 38, where, from the use of the anusvāra before the n, we seem further to have exactly the modern form, dharmavannu.—In respect of orthography we need only notice an occasional confusion of the sibilants, illustrated by varśada, line 24, and sudhḍha, line 25.

The inscription is a record of the time of the Kaḷachurya king Saṅkama. And it registers grants that were made, by the direction of the king himself, to the Mahājanas or Brāhmanas of Maṇigavallī, headed by the Mahāprabhu Īśvaradēva, and to some other persons.

It is dated at the time of the Dakṣiṇāyana-saṁkrānti or summer solstice, coupled with Sunday and the eleventh tithi of the bright fortnight of the month Āśāḍha, of the Viḷambin saṁvatsara, which was the third year of the reign of Saṅkama. But the date does not work out correctly. The given saṁvatsara was Śaka-Saṁvat 1101 current. And the given tithi ended, not on a Sunday, but on Tuesday, 27th June, A.D. 1178, at about 14 hrs. 34 min. after mean sunrise; while the saṁkrānti also, which occurred on the preceding day, Monday, at about 18 hrs. 58 min., cannot be connected in any way with the Sunday.

ABSTRACT OF CONTENTS.

The record opens with an invocation of the god Vishṇu under the name of Purushōttama (line 1), followed (ll. 1, 2) by the well-known verse Jayaty=divishkrītam̐ Vishṇōr, etc., in praise of the incarnation of the same god as a boar. It then refers itself to the time of the asylum of the universe (ll. 2, 3), the favourite of fortune and of the earth, the Mahārājā-dhīrāja and Paramēśvara, the supremelord of Kālañjara the best of towns, he who had the banner of a golden Garuḍa (l. 4), he who was heralded in public by the sounds of the musical instrument called damaruga, the sun of the water-lilies of the Kalachurya family (ll. 4, 5), he who was successful (even) on a Saturday (l. 6), the champion against hill-forts, the Kalachurya-bhujabala-Chakravartin, the glorious Śaṅkamaḍēvarasa (l. 8), whose victorious reign was continuing, with perpetual increase, so as to endure as long as the moon and sun and stars might last, at the nelevidu of Navile (l. 9), with the pleasure of an agreeable or friendly interchange of communications (with his feudatories) (ll. 9, 10). He who subsisted (like a bee) on the water-lilies that were his feet, was the Daṇḍādhipa Kēśava (l. 12). The Mahāprabhu of Maṇigavaḷḷi (l. 16) was Īśvaradēva. His son (l. 18), a very moon of the ocean of the Harta family, was the Prabhu Mādirāja (l. 19), whose virtues are praised in the next few lines, with another mention of Maṇigavaḷḷi in line 23.

On account of the festival of the sun's commencement of his progress to the south (on) Sunday, (coupled with) the eleventh tithi of (the month) Āshāḍha of the Viḷambin saṁvatsara, which was the third of the years of the Kalachurya emperor Śaṅkamaḍēva, (ll. 24, 25),— at the command of the emperor,— the Daṇḍāṇḍyaka Kēsimayya (l. 26), a very Nārāyaṇa among leaders of the forces, and his nephew the Mahāpradhāna and Daṇḍāṇḍyaka Brahmadēva (l. 27), and the Hergaḍe of the latter, Maṭṭarasa, gave the following religious grants to all the Mahājanas, headed by the Mahāprabhu Īśvaradēva, of the agrahāra of Maṇigavaḷḷi (l. 28) which was the seat of their authority, and to the Māligas (l. 29) and to of the five maṭhas, and to all the people, and to all the castes; namely,¹ at Maṇigavaḷḷi (l. 30), if any one should die without sons, his wife, female children, divided parents and brothers and their children, , and any kinsmen and relatives of the same gōtra, who might survive, should take possession of all his property, such as bipeds, quadrupeds, coin, grain, house, and fields; and, if none such should survive, (the authorities of the village) should make over that property, as a religious grant, to those who hold the grants of the gods. And they gave, as a sarvanamasya-grant, twenty matṭars (of land), (by the measure) of the large staff, to the god Shambikēśvara (l. 34), in order to do worship after proclaiming the aindra-festival² and making Brāhmanas read who are versed in the Vēdas; this they gave with libations of water, saying that³ should not be said in the houses of Brāhmanas.

The record then ends (ll. 36 to 46), with a mandate to the Adhikḍrin, the Karāna, the Prabhu, the Mahājanas, and all the people, to maintain these grants, and with five of the customary benedictive and imprecatory verses.

D.— Of the time of Jaitugi I.; about A.D. 1200.

The writing covers an area about 2' 6" broad by 2' 3" high. It is mostly in a state of very good preservation. But, from half-way through line 29, all the formal part of the record has been broken away and lost.— The sculptures above it, at the top of the tablet, are, towards the proper right, a liṅga, with the sun and moon above it, and a standing figure on each side of it; and towards the proper left, a cow and calf.— The characters are Kanarese, of the regular type of the period to which the record refers itself; and they are well formed and well executed throughout. The formal part of the record, commencing with line 27, is separated from what precedes it by a blank space about four inches high; and, though written apparently by the same hand, it was probably put on the stone at a subsequent time. The characters include the distinct form of the lingual ç all through. The virāma is represented by the sign for the vowel u and pointed instances of this occur in pogaḷaluka, line 15, and chaṃchadu-brāhma, line 22. The size of the letters ranges from about $\frac{3}{8}$ " to $\frac{1}{2}$ ".—The language is Kanarese; and lines 1 to 26 are all in verse, with a few short connecting prose links. The accusative singular neuter in v occurs in pradēśavan, line 18. In lines 12, 13, we have two rather peculiar or unusual words; kharvaḍa, = kharvaṭa, karvaṭa, which apparently means 'a market-town'; and maḍamba which I do not find in any dictionary, but which must denote some other kind of village.—In respect of orthography we may notice (1) the use of ri for ṛi, throughout; (2) the use of b for v in braja, line 9, sēbyam, line 15, and bratīśvaran, line 25; (3) the use of v for b in dōrvvaḷa, line 5; (4) a good deal of confusion between the sibilants, illustrated by viṣayam, line 14, ṣaṣṭi, line 17, and śiṣyam, line 25; and (5) the doubling of t before y,—very exceptional at so late a period,—in apattya, line 25.

² Apparently, some festival on "the eighth day in the second half of the month Mārgaśīrṣa, and of the month Pauṣa" (see Monier-Williams' Sanskrit Dictionary, s. v. aindra).

³ The meaning of kāḷa, line 36, is not apparent.

The inscription is a record of the time of the Dēvagiri-Yādava king Jaitugi I. The introductory portion of it is complete. But the formal part, containing the date and the details of the grants that were recorded in it, has been broken away and lost.

ABSTRACT OF CONTENTS.

The inscription opens with a verse, occurring also in A., which mentions the mountain Mandara (line 2). It then mentions Jambûdvîpa, or the central division of the world (l. 3); and then, again, the mountain Mandara, to the south of which there is the land of Bharatakshêtra or India, in which there is the country of Kuntala (l. 4). The ruler of that country, born in the race of Yadu (l. 5), was Bhillama (l. 6). And his son was Jaitugidêva (I.) (ll. 6, 7), also called Jaitapâla (l. 7), who conquered the Gurjaras, the Pândyas, and the Chôlas, and the countries of Lâla (Lâta) and Gaula (Gauda, part of Bengal). One of Jaitugi's officers was the Danḍanâtha Sahadêva (l. 8), who defeated the leaders of the forces of Mâlava, Kâlinga, and Pânchâlaka (l. 9), of the Turushkas, and of Népâlaka. And Sahadêva's elder brother was Mallidêva (l. 11), who also held the post of Danḍêsa (l. 12) or Danḍanâtha. His authority appears to have been limited to the district known as the Taddavâdi thousand (ll. 14, 15). In that district there was the town of Manigavalli (l. 15) or Manimgavalli (l. 17), which Îsvaraghalisâsa, of the Harita family, had presented to the five-hundred Brâhmanas (l. 16). And the Mahâprabhu of that town was Îsvaradêva (l. 17), son of Mâdirâja, a very moon of the ocean that was the Harita family (l. 18). The record then mentions a Prabhu of the town of Mânikyavalli (l. 20) named Mâdhava, of the Harita gôtra,—evidently identical with the Prabhu Mâdirâja, son of Îsvaradêva, who is mentioned in C. line 19, though the verse used to describe him here is that which in A., lines 19, 20, is applied to his grandfather Mâdhava or Mâdirâja, the father of Îsvaradêva. It then proceeds to recite the virtues and accomplishments of the five-hundred Mahâjanas or Brâhmanas of Mânikyavalli or Manimgavalli (ll. 20 to 24). And this part of it concludes by telling us that, in the lineage of the Āchâryas, there was a certain Gauḍadeva (l. 25); his chief disciple was Malayâla-Jñânarasi, and the son of the latter was Dharmarâsi (l. 26).

The formal part of the record commences with line 27. The name of the king, in line 28, is almost quite illegible. But he is described as belonging to the Yâdava family (ll. 27, 28). And the superscript i near the end of line 28, clearly discernible in part and at just the place where it should be, enables us to recognise that the inscription is a record of the time of Jaitugi I. himself,—not of one of his successors.

No. 4.—FOUR PILLAR INSCRIPTIONS OF EASTERN CHALUKYA CHIEFS AT SRIKURMAM.

By E. HULTZSCH, PH.D.

The Vishnu temple of Kûrmêsvara at Srikûrmam near Chicacole in the Gañjâm district contains many inscribed pillars of hard black stone, which have successfully withstood the influence of the climate. Most of their inscriptions are consequently in much better preservation than other stone records in the Telugu country. Four of the pillars bear the subjoined four inscriptions of three chiefs who profess to have been descendants of the Eastern Chalukya king Vimalâditya (A.D. 1015 to 1022) (A. verse 1) and of his son Râjarâja (A.D. 1022 to 1063). This king resided in Râjamâhêndrapaṭṭana (A. v. 4) and is said to have translated with the help of scholars the history of the Bhârata race into Telugu (ibid v. 3). Here we have an important epigraphical confirmation of the tradition according to which Nannayabhaṭṭa, the first Telugu translator of the Mahâbhârata, wrote his work at the direction of Râjarâja of Râjamahêndri.¹

A descendant of this Râjarâja was Vijayâditya (I.) (A. v. 6). The latter had a son named Râjarâja, who was the minister of Viranṣisimha (A. v. 7). This Râjarâja had two sons, vis. Vijayâditya (II.) (A. v. 9) or Vijayârka (D. v. 1) and Purushôttama (B. v. 1, and D. v. 2). Purushôttama's son, Jagannâtha or Viśvanâtha, was a vassal of Virabâṇudêva (C. II. 11 to 15). For Vijayâditya II. we have the date Śaka-Saṃvat 1195 (A.), for Purushôttama Śaka-Saṃvat 1199 (B.) and 1240 (D.), and for Jagannâtha Śaka-Saṃvat 1231 (C.). Consequently king Viranṣisimha whom Râjarâja, the father of Vijayâditya II., served as minister (A. v. 7), has to be identified with the Gaṅga king Viranarasimha I., whose reign ended 18 years before that of his grandson Viranarasimha II., the 21st year of whose reign corresponded to Śaka-Saṃvat 1217.¹ Virabâṇudêva, the sovereign of Jagannâtha or Viśvanâtha, is identical with the Gaṅga king Virabâṇudêva II., the successor of Viranarasimha II.²

The alphabet of the four inscriptions is Telugu. The language of A. and D. is Sanskrit verse, and that of B. and C. Sanskrit verse and Telugu prose. A. records that Vijayâditya (II.) granted twenty-five cows, the milk of which had to be used for ghee to feed a lamp in the temple. B. contains a similar grant of fifty-two³ ewes for a lamp by Purushôttama.

C. consists of 49 lines, of which I am publishing only lines 1 to 16 and 28 to 30, omitting two passages in Telugu prose, which enumerate various offerings and the persons among whom they were distributed, and one imprecatory verse (eva-dattâm etc., l. 47 f.). The inscription records a grant of 40 half-pagodas (niṣka, l. 4 f., or gaṇḍamâḍa, l. 28) by Viśvanâtha for providing offerings to the god. D. was composed by the poet Nṛisimha (l. 6 f.) and states that Purushôttama granted a golden necklace to the god.

⁴ Regarding this date and the corresponding one in the Telugu portion (ll. 10-12) Professor Kielhorn remarks:— “I have not found Kauntēya anywhere for 5 (or any other number); but taking the date to be Śāka-Saṃvat 1231, Thursday, the 5th tithi of the bright half of the lunar month Āśvina and the solar month of Kanyā, I find that it is incorrect for Śāka-Saṃvat 1231 current and expired (as well as for 1230 current and 1232 expired). It would correspond, for Śāka-Saṃvat 1231 current, to Friday, 20th September A.D. 1308, when the 5th tithi ended 23 h. 39 m.; and for Śāka-Saṃvat 1231 expired, to Tuesday, 9th September A.D. 1309, when the 5th tithi ended 23 h. 5 m. So the date is of no value.”

No. 5.—TWO GRANTS OF DADDA IV. PRASANTARAGA ; [CHEDI-]SAMVAT 392.

By G. BÜHLER, PH.D., LL.D., C.I.E.

I here re-edit the two inscriptions of the Gurjara chief Dadda IV.,⁷ which were discovered in 1895 by Mr. Vithal Nāgar of Baroda.⁸ At my request, Dr. Hultzsch obtained the originals from the owner, Dhed Narayan of Saṅkhēḍā in the Baroda division, through the kind offices of Colonel N. C. Martelli, Agent to the Governor-General at Baroda. Dr. Hultzsch's impressions yield some better readings, among which however only one, khadira for viḥira (No. II. l. 11) affects the sense. The grants, which have been drawn up on the same day, by the same writer, and in favour of the same person, are written each on two plates, showing, as is usual in Gurjara śāsanas, each two holes for the (now lost) rings. The plates of No. I. measure 10 inches by 5½, and those of No. II. 10 inches by 6.

The characters show the western variety of the southern alphabets, which is found regularly in the inscriptions of the kings of Valabhī, of the Gurjaras of Broach, of their successors, the Rāthōrs, and of some other dynasties.⁹ As might be expected, they agree in particular very closely with the Khēḍā grants¹⁰ of the same Dadda, written in (Chēdi-)Sāmvat 380 and 385 by the same writer, with which they share the use of the characteristic little buttons at the tops of the vertical strokes. Nevertheless there are small differences in some letters, which extend even to these two new documents, where e.g. the medial f of No. I. does not agree with that of No. II. Much greater and more important variations appear in the

⁷ Those who consider the three Gurjara grants of Śāka-Sāmvat 400, 415 and 417 to be spurious, call this prince Dadda II. Prāśāntarāga.

¹⁰ Jour. Roy. As. Soc., N. S., Vol. I. p. 247 ff. ; Ind. Ant. Vol. XIII. p. 78.

Valabhi śāsanas, stated to have been written by the same writer, as may be seen from a comparison of those drawn up by the divirapati Skandabhāṭa. Among the signs of interpunctuation we find, besides single and double vertical strokes, a single dot, e.g. after °simni (No. I. l. 10) and after °sandhiś=cha (No. I. l. 13), as well as a double point,¹ looking like a visarga, after vaṭavrikshaś=cha (No. II. l. 11). The language, except in the imprecatory verses from the Mahābhārata, is good Sanskrit prose, and the orthographical and clerical mistakes are very few.

The form of the two grants, likewise, closely agrees with that of the Khêḍā śāsanas, differing chiefly by the shortness of the Prasasti. While the Khêḍā grants contain, in accordance with the rules of the Smṛiti,² descriptions of three generations of princes, the new inscriptions offer only the eulogy of the donor. This, of course, is literally identical in the four documents. In the technical parts of the four inscriptions there are only small verbal differences, which, however, extend even to the two Saṅkhêḍā śāsanas. Though they do not affect the general meaning, they are very instructive for the manner in which the clerks of ancient India worked. These men apparently cared for exactness not more than the modern Karkuns, since we see here that the same writer, though working according to an older office copy, permitted himself to introduce small changes in two documents which he drafted on the same day.

The object of the grants is to convey two fields, one at Suvarṇārapalli (No. I.) and one at Kshirasara (No. II.) in the Samgamakhêṭaka-vishaya, to the Brāhmaṇa Sūrya for the purpose of defraying the expense of his sacrifices. The gain from these inscriptions for the history of the Gurjaras of Broach is but small. Their date, the full-moon day of Vaiśākha of (Chêḍi-)Samvat 392, shows, however, that Dadda IV. Prasāntarāga ruled at least until A.D. 641-2, and that the Saṅkhêḍā grant³ of (Chêḍi-)Samvat 391 was really issued during Dadda's reign as Mr. Dhruva conjectured. Its grantor, Ranagraha, the son of Vitarāga, whom Mr. Dhruva rightly considers to be a brother of our Dadda, probably held some villages as his grāds. Further, the two inscriptions show that the territory of the Gurjaras extended up to the frontiers of Khandesh and Mālva. For the town, after which the Samgamakhêṭaka-vishaya was named, is undoubtedly the modern Saṅkhêḍā. Samgamakhêṭaka means etymologically 'the village at the confluence (of two rivers),' and the Unchh and the Or⁴ join near Saṅkhêḍā. The vishaya or province of Samgamakhêṭaka probably included the Saṅkhêḍā Prānt of the Gaikōvād's possessions, as well as the neighbouring portion of the Rêvākāṇṭhā Agency, still called Saṅkhêḍā Mēvās.⁵ The partial identity of the names of the two districts indicates that they once belonged to a larger province, the capital of which was Saṅkhêḍā. As the Trigonometrical Survey maps of these districts are not accessible to me, I am unable to fully prove these assertions by the identification of the villages of Aṭavipāṭaka, Kukkuṭavallikā, Kshirasara and Suvarṇārapalli, mentioned in the two grants. But I may state that an old map of Gujarāt in my possession shows south-east of Saonkaira (Saṅkhêḍā) the village of Kookreylee (Kukrêli), the name of which corresponds to Kukkuṭavalli.

The donee, the Brāhmaṇa Sūrya, who lived in Kshirasara, belonged to the Bharadvāja gôtra and studied the Mādhyandina recension of the White Yajurveda, was an emigrant from Daśapura, the modern Man-Dasôr in Western Mālva.⁶ The corporation of the Chaturvêdins of

Daśapura is mentioned in the spurious grant¹ of Dharaśēna II., dated Śaka-Saṁvat 400, and a member of the Brāhmaṇ caste of Daśapura (Daśapura-jñātī) composed the Chitōrgaḍh inscription of Mōkala of Mēvād.² At present Daśapurīyas are not found in Gujarāt.

The writer of the grant, the Sāṁdhivigrahika Rēva, is known from the Khēḍā grants. The name of the dūtaka, Karka, in No. II. line 27, is new. His title, bhōgikapālaka, literally 'the protector of the bhōgikas or village proprietors,' the technical meaning of which is not known to me, occurs also in the Saṅkhēḍā grant of Saṁvat 391, where in line 9 the facsimile has dūtako=tra bhōgikapālaka-Dujjāna, and not, as Mr. Dhruva reads, bhōgika-Pālakaṣu-jñāna.

No. 6.—EIGHT VATTELUTTU INSCRIPTIONS OF CHOLA KINGS.

By E. HULTZSCH, PH.D.

Professor Bühler in his Indian Palæography (p. 72 f. of the German edition) and Mr. Venkayya in his paper on the Kōttayam plate of Vira-Rāghava (above, Vol. IV. p. 293) have lately urged the necessity of publishing Vatteluttu inscriptions, the dates of which can be fixed with some certainty. Hence I take this opportunity for issuing mechanical copies of eight Chōla inscriptions. None of these is in a condition of complete preservation; but I trust that, even in their necessarily imperfect state, the accompanying facsimiles will prove useful for tracing the development of the Vatteluttu alphabet.

Five of the inscriptions (A. to E.) are engraved on two boulders in the Sthāpūnātha temple at Suchindram between Kōttāgu and Cape Comorin in the Travancore State, and the remaining three (F. to H.) on the north wall of the shrine in the Rāmasvāmin temple at Shērmādēvi in the Tinnevely district. They belong to the reigns of the Chōla kings

² No. II has राजभिश्च.— In No. II. line 23 ends with यस्य यस्य.— Read यानीह दत्तानि with No. II.

³ In No. II. line 24 ends with 'यशस्कराणि'.— No. II. has निर्बन्धु.

⁴ In No. II. line 25 ends with यदाद.— No. II. has महीं.— Read महीनतां.— No. II. has 'पादमः' इति.

Parakésarivarman (A.), Parántaka I. (B.), Rájarája I. (C. to G.) and Rájendra-Chôla I. (H.). The fact that all these inscriptions are found in the extreme south of the peninsula proves, what the Vatṭeluttu inscriptions of the earlier Pāṇḍya kings suggest, that, about the 10th century of our era, the Vatṭeluttu was current in the country of the Pāṇḍyas, but unknown in the native territory of their Chôla conquerors.

The characters of the subjoined inscriptions agree more closely with those of the Coochin and Tirunelli plates¹ than with those of the plates of Jaṭilavarman.² Throughout F., G. and H. once in C.³ and twice in D.⁴ occurs a variant of y, which is known from the Kōṭṭayam plates of Sthāpu-Ravi.⁵ In H. the double k is written as a group, as in many inscriptions in the Tamil alphabet. As in all other Vatṭeluttu inscriptions, Grantha letters are occasionally used in the subjoined eight records. The following is a list of the Grantha words and letters:—

Svasti śrī at the beginning of each of the eight inscriptions.—A., l. 11, sabhai.—C., l. 4, brahma; l. 5, Mahādē; l. 11, sabhai.—D., ll. 4 and 6, ja of Rájarája; l. 7 f., brahma and m of brahmadēyam, and Sujintira.—E., l. 8, brahmadē and mah[ā]sabhai*.—F., ll. 3 and 4, Rájarája; l. 4 f., brahma, mahā and cchaturvė.—H., l. 1, śrī and jendra of śrī-Rájendra, ja of Irđarája; l. 2, brahma; ll. 2, 8 and 9, sa of Vaigāṇasa; ll. 5 and 6, śrī.

A.—Inscription in the Sthāpunātha temple at Śuchindram.⁶

This inscription records the gift of a lamp to the Śiva temple at Tiruchohivindiram, the modern Śuchindram, and is dated in the 34th year of the reign of the ancient Chôla king Parakésarivarman.⁷ As we know from the large Leyden grant and from actual examples in the history of the later Chôlas that the titles Rájakésarin and Parakésarin were borne alternately by reigning kings,⁸ some of those inscriptions which are dated in the reign of Parakésarivarman—without any distinguishing epithet, as Madirai-konḍa in the case of Parántaka I.,—may perhaps be attributed to Vijayālaya, the grandfather of Parántaka I. and the earliest historical person that is referred to in two genealogical inscriptions of the Chôla dynasty.⁹

Hail! Prosperity! In the year thirty-four (of the reign) of king Parakésarivarman,—in this year Araiyan Aravindaṇ of Talaikkulam in the southern country (Teṇ-ṇāḍu) gave to (the temple of) Mahādēva (Śiva) at Tiruchohivindiram in Nāñji-nāḍu one sacred perpetual lamp, to burn without fail (one) uḷakku of ghee per day, as long as the moon and the sun exist. For (this lamp he) gave fifty full-grown ewes, which must neither die nor grow old.¹ These fifty (ewes were made over) to the members of the assembly² (of the village).

B.—Inscription in the Sthāpūnātha temple at Śuchindram.³

This inscription is dated in the 40th year⁴ of the reign of “Parakésarivarman who conquered Madirai (Madhurā) and Īlam (Ceylon),” i.e. the Chōla king Parāntaka I.,⁵ and records that a merchant of Karavandapuram⁶ granted two lamps to two shrines of Viṣṇu, which seem to have been located in the Śiva temple at Śuchindram.

This inscription is dated in the 3rd year of the reign of the Chōla king Rājēndra-Chōla I., who ascended the throne in A.D. 1001-2.³ It records that certain Vaikhānasas pledged themselves to supply daily one half of the amount of ghee that was necessary to keep one lamp burning in the temple, which bore the name Nigarili-Śōla-Viṇṇagar.⁴ Shērmādēvi itself had then the surname Nigarili-Śōla-chaturvēdimaṅgalam. These two surnames suggest that Nigarili-Śōlaṇ, i.e. 'the unequalled Chōla,' was a biruda of Rājēndra-Chōla I.

"In the year fifteen (of the reign) of king Rājarāja-Kēsarivarman,—on the day of Pūrva-Bhadrāpadā, which corresponded to a Tuesday, three evenings having expired³ of the month of Kanyā in this year."

We have found before (above, Vol. IV. p. 266) that Rājarāja's reign commenced between the 24th December A.D. 984 and the 26th September A.D. 985. A date of the month of Kanyā (August-September) of the 15th year of his reign, therefore, will be expected to fall either in A.D. 999, in Śaka-Samvat 921 expired, or in A.D. 1000, in Śaka-Samvat 922 expired. As a matter of fact, this new date works out correctly for Śaka-Samvat 921 expired.

In Śaka-Samvat 921 expired the month of Kanyā lasted from the 27th August to the 25th September A.D. 999, and during this period the moon was in the nakshatra Pūrva-Bhadrāpadā—by the equal-space system for 15 h. 6 m., by the Brahma-siddhānta for 3 h. 56 m., and according to Garga for 3 h. 17 m., after mean sunrise—on Tuesday, the 29th August A.D. 999, which was the third day of the month of Kanyā⁴ (and the full-moon day⁵ of the month of Bhādrapada).

The date reduces the period during which the reign of Rājarāja must have commenced to the time from the 24th December A.D. 984 to (approximately) the 29th August A.D. 985.⁶

"In the 48th year (of the reign) of king Rājakēsarivarman, alias the emperor of the three worlds, the glorious Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷadēva,—on the day of Ādrā, which corresponded to a Monday and to the thirteenth tithi of the first fortnight of the month of Makara."

Above, Vol. IV. p. 263, we have seen that a day in the month of Kumbha of the 48th year of the reign of Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa I. corresponds to the 25th January A.D. 1118. This date, of the month of Makara which immediately precedes the month of Kumbha, of the same 48th year, will therefore be expected to fall within a month before the 23rd January A.D. 1118, the first day of the month of Kumbha of that other date. And so it really does. For, the date corresponds to Monday, the 7th January A.D. 1118, when the 13th tithi of the bright half (of the month Māgha¹) ended 15 h. 1 m., and when the nakṣatra was Ādrā, by the equal-space system for 14 h. 27 m., by the Brahma-siddhānta for 0 h. 39 m., and according to Garga for 2 h. 38 m., after mean sunrise.

No. 8.— RAYAKOTA PLATES OF SKANDASISHYA.

By E. HULTZSCH, PH.D.

This inscription is edited from two sets of Sir Walter Elliot's ink-impressions, which I owe to the kindness of Dr. Fleet. On the wrapper in which I received the impressions are the following remarks in Dr. Fleet's hand:—"The original copper-plates belong to Sir Walter Elliot. Three plates, about 8½" by 3¼". In good order. They are quite smooth; the edges are not raised into rims. The ring has been cut. It is about ½" thick and 3¼" in diameter. The seal is circular; 2" in diameter. It has, in relief on the surface of the seal, a kneeling bull facing to the proper left, and some small emblems, which I do not quite understand, above it; and a line of writing, which I cannot read, all round it. The label on them says that they were received from Captain Campbell of Royakota." Royakota is the former spelling of Rāyakōṭa (properly Rāyakōṭe in Kanarese), a hill fort, village and post office in the Kṛishṇagiri tāluka of the Salem district.²

The inscription consists of three Sanskrit verses, a passage in Tamiḷ prose (ll. 11 to 33), and a fourth Sanskrit verse at the end. The four Sanskrit verses must have been written or copied by a person who had only a very faint knowledge of that language. The Tamiḷ portion is more correct, but shows many cases of doubling of initial and final consonants which are not sanctioned by the Tamiḷ grammars.³

The alphabet of the four Sanskrit verses is Grantha. The prose passage is written in Tamiḷ characters, occasionally interspersed with Grantha words. The alphabet of the inscription is decidedly more developed than that of the Kūram and Kaśākūḍi plates,⁴ but more archaic than that of the Hastimalla plates.⁵ If it is admissible to compare the characters of stone inscriptions, which sometimes retain older forms, I would say that the alphabet of

⁴ South-Ind. Inscr. Vol. I. No. 151, and Vol. II. No. 73.

⁵ Ibid. No. 76.

the Rāyakōṭa plates lies between the two Kīl-Muṭṭṅūr inscriptions of Narasimhavarman as the upper limit, and the two Āmbūr inscriptions of Nripataṅga-Vikramavarman as the lower one.¹

After an invocation of Viṣṇu (verse 1), the inscription furnishes the same genealogy as three inscriptions of the Pallava dynasty (viz. the Kailāsanātha inscription of Rājasiṃha,² the Kaśākūṭi plates,³ and the Udayēndiram plates of Pallavamalla⁴) as far as Aśvatthāman. But while the Pallava inscriptions⁵ continue the line from Aśvatthāman to his son Pallava, the Rāyakōṭa plates seem to state that Aśvatthāman had, by a Nāga woman, a son named Skandaśiṣhya, a descendant of whom was another Skandaśiṣhya, or, as he is called in the subsequent Tamil passage (l. 11), kō vijaya-Skandaśiṣhya-Vikramavarman.

The Tamil portion states that, in his fourteenth year, the king issued a written order to the inhabitants of the district of Paṇuvūr-kōṭṭam and to the inhabitants of Mēl-Aḍaiyāru-nāḍu, a subdivision of this district, by which he granted to a Brāhmaṇa the village of Śārugūr (l. 14) in the same subdivision. This village received the surname Skandaśiṣhyamaṅgalam (l. 22 f.) in honour of the donor. Among its boundaries we find (the hill named) Tiruvēlālamuḍi (l. 26). This is the Tamil equivalent of Vēlālaśikhara, a hill which is mentioned in the Udayēndiram plates of Pallavamalla⁶ among the boundaries of Udayachandramaṅgalam—the modern Udayēndiram in the Guḍiyātam tāluka of the North Arcot district.⁷ Consequently Śārugūr must have been situated near Udayēndiram, which, like Śārugūr and Āmbūr,⁸ belonged to Mēl-Aḍaiyāru-nāḍu.⁹

The etymological meaning of Skandaśiṣhya is 'the pupil of the war-god.' The dynasty to which he belonged is not named in the inscription. That he claimed connection with the Pallavas is evident from the two facts that his seal bears a bull,¹⁰ and that he derived his descent from the same mythical ancestors as the Pallava kings of Kāñchi. On the other hand, the two words kō vijaya which are prefixed to his name, and the title Vikramavarman which follows it, in line 11, connect him with certain other princes who profess to have been descendants both of the Pallavas and of the Western Gaṅgas.¹¹ As I have stated before, the alphabet of the Rāyakōṭa plates would well suit this allocation. The legend according to which Skandaśiṣhya was a remote descendant of another Skandaśiṣhya, who was born to the sage Aśvatthāman by a Nāga woman, seems to be connected with a similar legend, the heroes of which are the Chōḷa king Kōḍkiḷli and the Tondaimāṇ (i.e. the Pallava king) ṇandiraiyaṇ.¹² An inscription at Tirukkalukkuṇṇam mentions a Skandaśiṣhya who was anterior to the Pallava king Narasimhavarman I.¹³ and who, accordingly, must have reigned long before the king who issued the subjoined grant.

According to line 12, the grant was made at the request of Mahāvali-Vāṇarāja, who must have been a feudatory of Skandaśiṣhya. The title Bāpādhirāja or Māvali-Vāṇarāja was bestowed on the Western Gaṅga king Pṛithivīpati II. by the Chōḷa king Parāntaka I.¹⁴ and appears to have been the hereditary designation of the Bāṇa chiefs, who derived their descent from the demon Bali.¹⁵

TRANSLATION.

A.—Sanskrit portion.

(Line 1.) Hail! Prosperity! [Verse 1, which is incomplete, seems to enumerate various epithets of Hari (Vishnu)].

[Verses 2 and 3, which are very corrupt, contain the following genealogy:— From the lotus on the navel of Śrīpati (Vishnu) was produced the lotus-born (Brahmā). His son was Aṅgiras; his son Dhishana (Brihaspati); his son Śamyu; his son Bharadvāja; his son Drōṇa; and his son Aśvatthāman. His son (?) by a Nāga woman (Dvijula-aṅga [?]) was the overlord (adhīrāja) Skandaśishya. In his family was born (another) Skandasishya, who resembled the pitcher-born (Agastya)].

B.—Tamil portion.

(L. 11.) Hail! Prosperity! In the fourteenth year (of the reign) of the king, the victorious Skandaśishya-Vikramavar[ma]n,— (the king) was pleased to issue the following written order to the inhabitants of the kōṭṭam and to the inhabitants of the nāḍu:— “At the request of Mahāvali-Vānarāja, Mahāśvara-bhaṭṭa being the executor,¹⁰ we have given to Mā[dha]vasarasa-bhaṭṭa, of the Vatsa gōtra (and) of the Pravachana sūtra,¹¹ (the village of) Śārugūr in Mēl-Aḍaiy[ā]ru-nāḍu, (a subdivision) of Paḍuvūr-kōṭṭam,—the waste land under cultivation which surrounds this (village), (the land) irrigated by water-levers, cut jungle, pīḍiliga,¹² dry land under cultivation, burnt jungle, commons,¹³ channels, embankments, ferry-boats, causeways, talaippēṭṭai,¹⁴ and all other kinds of land.”

No. 9.—KONKUDURU PLATES OF ALLAYA-DODDA; SAKA-SAMVAT 1352.

By G. V. RAMAMURTI, B.A.; PARLAKIMEDI.

These plates were discovered in 1887, deposited in a small square receptacle in a brick mound in the village of Konkuduru,¹¹ 5 miles north of Rāmachandrapuram in the Gōḍāvarī district. They were not claimed by any one as private property, and Mr. S. H. Wynne, the Collector of the Gōḍāvarī district, sent them in September 1893 to Dr. Hultzsch, to be kept in the Madras Museum. The set consists of seven copper plates with raised rims and strung on a ring. The ends of the ring are secured in the crescent-shaped base of an oblong pedestal, which bears a recumbent figure of the sacred bull Nandi, with the symbols of the sun and the moon in front of it. One end of the ring is loose, and the plates may be detached from the ring by bending it. The size of each of the plates is about 10¼" by 5½", and the ring-hole is about ¾" in diameter. The ring measures about 4½" in diameter and is about ½" thick.

I edit the inscription from two sets of ink-impressions, kindly sent to me by Dr. Hultzsch. All the plates except the fifth and the seventh are numbered by Telugu numerals, engraved ⁴ See ibid. Vol. III. p. 26, note 2, and l. 305 f. of the large Leyden grant.

⁷ Instead of tari-kkūrai, the same grant (l. 303) has the synonymous term tari-ppuḍarai.

⁸ The same two terms occur in line 127 of the Kasākūḍi plates and in line 304 of the large Leyden grant.

on the left margin of the second side of each. Each plate bears writing on both sides. A few letters on the first side of the first plate and a few others of the other plates, which are indistinct, being excepted, the inscription is on the whole well engraved and in good preservation. The language is, from line 1 to 130 and again from line 179 to 190, Sanskrit verse of various metres, while the intervening description of the boundaries of the village granted (ll. 130-179) is in Telugu prose. Some ungrammatical and archaic as well as obsolete words occur in the Telugu portion. The anusvāra in such words as dāṁka (l. 135) and vāṅgu (l. 139) is now omitted or attenuated into half-anusvāra.¹ The following are some of the peculiarities of the alphabet and orthography of this inscription:—(1) The alphabet closely resembles the modern Telugu character; ḍ, ḷ, ṣ, ṣ, ḍ in ṣḍ, and a few other letters, however, present older forms. (2) In such conjunct consonants as ṣga, the anusvāra is used instead of the proper nasal. (3) The anusvāra is improperly used in several cases, as prasanna (l. 126) for prasanna; in tunmma (l. 138) the m is superfluous. (4) In ṣumḍḍi (l. 158) and *amitta*² (l. 174), ḍ and t are incorrectly doubled; the doubling of y in pālaniyyah (l. 182) appears to compensate for the shortening of the preceding long vowel, though it is incorrect. (5) Except in the word svargga (l. 184), consonants are not doubled after r. (6) The vertical bottom-stroke which the modern alphabet employs to mark the aspirates is here generally dispensed with, except in the case of bh.³ Where the top-stroke is not used, a small vertical stroke or a mark like a circumflex is placed beneath or by the side of the letter (ll. 35, 37). The bhā of vibhāti (l. 33) is distinguished from the bā of bāla (l. 34) by the angle under which the ā is affixed to the consonant. (7) The secondary form of l has two different shapes; compare (in l. 99) Mallayārya with Jallipalli. (8) Conjunct consonants as rya, ryō, rva are expressed, as in modern Telugu, by the full form of r, to which the secondary form of y or v is attached (ll. 44, 47, 54); but rvō and rvē are also expressed by the rēpha mark on the top of vō and vē. (9) No distinction is made between the short and long sounds of e and o even in Telugu words. (10) Two ways of marking ṣ and ō are noticeable. (11) In conjunct consonants the secondary form of v is not distinct from that of p (ll. 31, 32, 35). (12) The second k in dikkāntā (l. 35) is a full k without the top-stroke. (13) The ri of Rigvēda (l. 100) has a top-stroke.

The date of the grant was the time of Ardhodaya in the month Pausa of Śaka-Samvat 1352 (expired), which corresponded to the cyclic year Sādhārana (v. 23). Professor Kielhorn kindly contributes the following remarks on this date:—"The Ardhodaya takes place on the new-moon tithi of the amānta Pausa, provided this tithi falls on a Sunday, when during day-time the nakshatra is Śravaṇa and the yōga Vyatipāta. This most auspicious conjunction for making donations did take place in the given year. For in that year the new-moon tithi of the amānta Pausa ended 2 h. 20 m. after mean sunrise of Sunday, 14th January A.D. 1431, when the nakshatra was Śravaṇa for 17 h. 4 m. and the yōga Vyatipāta for 18 h. 56 m. after mean sunrise."

The object of the grant was the village of Gumpiṇi (v. 23), which was surnamed Allāḍa-reḍḍidodḍavaram (v. 24) or Doḍḍavaram (ll. 146, 155, 159, 169, 173, and v. 89). This village cannot be traced on the map. But its position is defined by several villages which are mentioned in the description of its boundaries, and which, as Dr. Hultzsch informs me, are found on the Madras Survey Map of the Amalāpuram tāluka. These are Dēvarapalli (No. 27 on the map), Palavela or Palevela—now Palivela (No. 42 on the map), Mummaḍivaram—now Mummaḍivarapāḍu (No. 26 on the map), Īnthakōṭa—now Ītakōṭa (No. 22 on the map) Kētarājupalli (No. 19 on the map) and Vedurēśvaram—now Vedirēśvaram (No. 20 on the map). The northern boundary of Gumpiṇi was the Kauntēya river. This must be another name of the Gautamī, or of its southern branch which passes to the north-east of Palivela.

I may here insert some facts mentioned in two Telugu poems composed by Śrinātha,¹ viz. the Kāśikhāṇḍam and the Bhīmakhāṇḍam,² as they confirm and even add to the information recorded in this inscription. The poet was contemporary with the last three Reḍḍi princes of the dynasty and dedicated the former poem to Virabhadra-reḍḍi, the brother of the Doḍḍaya-reḍḍi who issued the present charter, and the latter poem to the minister of Virabhadra. The Kāśikhāṇḍam contains the following account:—Among the divisions of the Śūdra caste, one is famed by the name of Paṇṭa-kula,³ of which Perumāḍireḍḍi, of the village Dūvūru, became celebrated as a devotee of Śiva. He belonged to the Dēsati-vamśa. His wife was Annāmāmbā, by whom he had five sons, Allaya, Pedakōṭa, Annaprōla, Doḍḍaya and Pinnakōṭa. The fourth, Doḍḍaya,⁴ is styled Paṇṭakulārāja. He married another Annāmāmbā and had three sons, Prōla, Kōṭa and Allāḍa. The last is described as a great conqueror, and from the description the poet gives of his achievements, he seems to have risen to some importance and perhaps established a petty principality. His wife⁵ was Vēmāmbā, the grand-daughter of king Anavēma, who bore four sons,—Vēma, Virabhadra, Doḍḍaya, and Annaya.⁶ The eldest of them is said to have led an expedition as far as the *Vindhya*s and to have conquered Sapta-māḍiya-rāya, the king of Jhūde-jantaru-nāḍu, the chiefs of Bārahadonti, and the kings of Oḍḍādi and Kāṭaka. He is also said to have received tribute from Paṇḍuvāsuraadhāni, the king of Oḍḍe-dēsa, the king of Karṇāṭa, the king of the Yavanas (?), and the chiefs

¹ This famous Telugu poet lived about the year 1435 A.D. He was patronized by the Reḍḍi chiefs of Rājamahēndra. Of his many works, the Paṇḍitarāyacharitam was dedicated to Māniḍi-Praggaḍayya, commander-in-chief of Vēmāreḍḍi's forces; the Naiśadham to Mautri-Siṅgaṇa, Praggaḍayya's brother; the Bhīmāśvara-khāṇḍam to Benḍapūḍi Annayya, minister to Virabhadra-reḍḍi; and the Kāśikhāṇḍam to Virabhadra-reḍḍi; see Rao Bahadur K. Viresalingam's Telugu Poets, Part I. p. 66.

² The introductory verses in the first canto of this poem and generally the initial and the final verses of each canto contain numerous references to incidents in the lives of the Reḍḍi chiefs.

³ Compare verse 4 of this inscription.

⁵ Vēmāmbā was, according to the inscription, the daughter of Bhūma of the Chōḍa family.

of Bārahadonti-manne and Saptamādiya.¹ The titles by which he was well known are—Rāyavēśyābhujāṅga, Saṁgrāmapārtha, Karpūravasantarāya and Jaganobbagaṇḍa. The second chief, Virabhadra, is described as even more powerful than his brother. The chiefs of Kasimikōṭa, Venkatāyi, Kappakoṇḍa, Killeḍa and others are said to have been subdued by him. He was crowned during the life-time of Vēmāreḍḍi. Virabhadra married Anitalli, the daughter of Vēma, the son of king Kāṭa.² He was a votary of Śiva and a great warrior. The third chief, Doḍḍaya,³ is also reported to have made many conquests. He led an expedition to the north and reduced Oḍḍādi, Śringāramkōṭa and Lōtṅgeḍḍa.⁴ He was a very skilful horseman. On the race-courses he made his horse jump over a space of twenty-four cubits in one bound.⁵ After briefly describing the virtues of the youngest, Annaya, the poet expresses the wish that his patron might rule the whole country including Chikaṭi, Kaliṅga, Chilkasamudra and Simhaśaila⁶ from his capital Rājamahēndra.⁷

As regards the connection between the Redḍis of Koṇḍaviḍu⁸ and those of Rājamahēndra nothing definite is known. The Bhīmakhandaṁ states that the chief Allāḍa became the ruler of a kingdom extending as far as Simhādri, with his capital at Rājamahēndra, by the influence of his relationship with Prōlaya, Anavēma, Anapōta, Alavēma, Kumāragiri and others, who were the rulers of Pākanāḍu.⁹ It is probable that the Anavēma whose grand-daughter, Vēmāmbā, according to the Kāśikhandaṁ, was married to Allāḍabhūpati, is the Anavēma of Koṇḍaviḍu.¹⁰ But the present inscription says that Vēmāmbikā was the daughter of Bhīma of the Chōḍa family. To reconcile these two statements, it may be conjectured that Vēmāmbikā was the daughter of Anavēma's daughter and that Bhīma was his son-in-law. We learn from the Tottaramūdi plates that Kāṭaya-Vēma's wife and mother were, respectively, the daughter and sister of Anavōta, the elder brother of Anavēma;¹¹ and the Kāśikhandaṁ tells us that this Kāṭaya-Vēma's daughter was married to Virabhadra, the second son of Vēmāmbikā. Though the relationship between these two Redḍi dynasties is thus established, it is not easy to explain how the kingdom of Rājamahēndra came into the hands of Vēma and Virabhadra. Kāṭaya-Vēma is said to have received it as a gift from Kumāragiri of Koṇḍaviḍu;¹² and he must have possessed it until at least A.D. 1416, the date of the latest inscription

This is the Redḍi chief Kāṭaya-Vēma of Rājamahēndra, on whom see above, Vol. IV. Nos. 46 and 47.

This is the Redḍi chief who issued the present grant.

These places are in the Vizagapatam district.

⁵ Compare verse 19 of the inscription.

Chikaṭi is at present a Zamīndāri in the Gañjām district. The extent of Kaliṅga was perhaps at this time much reduced. Chilkasamudra is the lake Chilka to the north of Gañjām. Simhaśaila is a hill with a temple in Vizagapatam.

⁸ Regarding the Redḍis of Koṇḍaviḍu Mr. Sewell says in his Lists of Antiquities, Vol. II. p. 187:— "After the subversion of the Gajapati Rājas of Oranḡal by the Muḥammadans in A.D. 1323, the Redḍi chiefs in different parts of the eastern coast rose to power. Amongst these the Koṇḍaviḍu chiefs were for a century so important that their government rises to the dignity of a kingdom, and their family to that of a dynasty." Then he gives a list of six chiefs with dates which do not tally with those given at p. 53 ff. Kumāragiri-Redḍi is said to have ruled from A.D. 1381 to 1395 (p. 187); but on p. 58 two inscriptions referring to him are recorded, which are dated in A.D. 1405 and 1407.

referring to him.¹ He had a son,² but it is not known whether the latter inherited the principality.³

From the foregoing facts and from the inscriptions noted by Mr. Sewell, it is evident that this dynasty exercised but an ephemeral sovereignty. Doddaya, the fourth son of Perumādi, first rose to some importance, probably as an officer of the Koṇḍaviḍu Redḍis. Then his third son, Allāḍa, improved that position and transmitted it to his adventurous sons, who established a principality with Rājamahēndra as their capital. But neither Vēma's sons, if any, nor those of any of his brothers seem to have inherited their throne. The Gajapatis of Orissa or the kings of Vijayanagara must have driven the Redḍis from Rājamahēndra. The encouragement which these Redḍis gave to Telugu poets is one noteworthy fact of their short-lived government, which entitles them to the gratitude of posterity.

feet-born (i.e. the Śūdras) was the Paṇṭa-kula¹ (v. 4). To this family belonged prince Dodḍa (I.) of the [Polivōla-gōtra (v. 5)]. His sons were the princes Annavrōla, Kōṭaya and Alla (v. 6). The youngest of these, Alla (v. 7), married Vēnāmbikā, the daughter of prince Bhima of the Chōḍa family (v. 9). Allāḍa (i.e. Alla) had four sons,—Vēma, Virabhadra, Dodḍa (II.) and Anna (v. 10). The eldest of these, Allaya-Vēma (i.e. Vēma, the son of Alla) (v. 11) or Vēma, had for his capital Rājamahēndranagara (v. 12 f.). His younger brother Virabhadra was also anointed to the kingdom of Rājamahēndra[nagara] (v. 14). Verse 16 praises Vēma and Virabhadra, who were apparently joint rulers. Their younger brother, Dodḍa (II.), had the surnames Karpūravasantarāya,² Samgrāmabhīma and Jaganobbagaṇḍa³ (v. 17).

(V. 22.) "Once, on the auspicious occasion of Arthōdaya, king Dodḍa (II.), having worshipped Śiva (and) given away handsome donations on the bank of the Gaṅgā, also desired to grant agrahāras.

(V. 23.) "In the prosperous Śāka (year) reckoned by the hands (2), the arrows (5), and the Viśvas (13),—i.e. 1352,—in the (cyclic) year Sadharana, in (the month of) Pausa, at the auspicious time named Ardhōdaya, on the bank of the Kauntēyagaṅgā, king Allaya-Dodḍa gave to Brāhmaṇas the village named Gumpini, with its cultivators (and) the eight kinds of bhōgas,⁴ (to be enjoyed by them) as long as the moon (and) as long as the stars (endure) "

This village he named after himself Allāḍareddidodḍavaram (v. 24). Each of the following donees received one share in the agrahāra (v. 25).

Two further shares in the agrahāra were given to the Viṣṇu temple called Prasanna-vallabha and to the Śiva temple of Brahmanāgēśvara (v. 85). Finally Dodḍa (II.) gave to the agrahāra the village of Annāvaram for subsistence (*grāmagrāsārtham*²), with the exception (?) of 4½ kḥḍris belonging to Nāranamantrin, the son of Aubhaḷāmātya (v. 86 f.). The boundaries of the granted village are written in the language of the country (i.e. Telugu) (v. 88).

In the detailed description of the boundary-line of Allāḍaredḍidodḍavaram (II. 130-179), the following villages are mentioned:—Dēvarapalli, Palavela or Palevela, Mummaḍivaram, Īnthakōṭa, Annāvarapupāḍu, Kētarāḷupalli and Vedurēśvaram. The northern boundary was the Kauntēya river.³

Verse 89 praises the village of Dodḍavaram on the bank of the Ādikuntā. In verse 90, king Dodḍa (II.), (the son) of king Allāḍa, requests future kings to protect the grant. Verses 91-96 are six of the usual imprecatory verses.

³ In the Telugu portion (II. 131, 177 and 178 f.) this river is called Kauntēya. In the Sanskrit verses occur the forms Kauntēyagaṅgā (v. 23), Gaṅgā (v. 22) and Ādikuntā (v. 89).

No. 10.—PITHAPURAM PLATES OF VIRACHODA,

DATED IN HIS TWENTY-THIRD YEAR.

By H. KRISHNA SASTRI, B.A.

The copper plates which bear this inscription were forwarded to Dr. Hultsch by the Government of Madras. They were sent by the Raja of Pithapuram to Mr. D. F. Carmichael when he was Chief Secretary, i.e. between the years 1875 and 1878. Mr. Carmichael had lent the plates for examination to Dr. Burnell, who figured the second side of the third plate in his South-Indian Palæography, second edition, Plate xxix.¹

The plates are nine in number. Each of them bears writing on both sides, except the first and last which are engraved only on their inner sides. They are not of uniform size; but each measures, on the average, 10" by 5½". To the proper right of each plate is a hole, ¾" in diameter.² Through these holes is passed a massive ring which is now cut. It is ½" thick and 7¼" in diameter. Its ends are secured in a circular seal which measures 3½" in diameter. As may be seen in the collotype No. 2 on the Plate facing p. 104 of Vol. III. above, the seal rests on an expanded lotus flower and bears, in relief on a counter-sunk surface, the legend śrī-Tribhuvan[ām]kūśa in Telugu letters. Above the legend it bears a boar which faces the proper left and has an elephant-goad overhead. In front of the boar are a chaurī, a conch, and the moon; and behind it, another chaurī, a svastika, and the sun. Below the legend there is a drum (?), an expanded lotus flower, and apparently a wooden stand for supporting the abhishēka dish.

As observed by Dr. Burnell, the inscription is written in the transitional Telugu alphabet.³ This is shown e.g. by the two forms, one the earlier and the other later, in which the mā of Dakṣiṇāmūrti in ll. 162 and 163 appears. The final m is used in two cases, viz. in ll. 45 and 63; but in all other cases the anusvāra takes the place of final m. The only groups in which the nasal is not represented by anusvāra are ṇa, ṇa, ṇa and ṇa. The difference in the secondary forms of a and ā, i and ī, u and ū, o, ō and au is not kept up throughout. In three cases the long ū is marked by ū and u, viz. in the ū of mūṇḍunu in l. 215 and the ū of dūṛppuna in ll. 262 and 263. The ś of pyē of bhūmār=apy=ēka^o in l. 278 is added to the secondary y. The writing is protected by raised rims and is consequently in a state of perfect preservation, except certain letters written over erasures. The language of the inscription is Sanskrit poetry (verses 1-35) and Sanskrit prose (ll. 2-17; 18-31; 68-71; 80-186; 271-277; and 279 to 280). The description of the boundaries (ll. 187-271) is in a mixture of Telugu and Sanskrit prose. As regards orthographical peculiarities, it may be noted that a consonant, besides being, as usual, doubled after the secondary form of r, is frequently doubled after an anusvāra, as in ll. 2, 21, 23, 28 etc.; that ri is used for ṛi in kṛita for ṛita (ll. 2 and 20) and Hṛishikēśa for Hṛishikēśa (l. 115); and that in conjunct consonants the secondary r is not only omitted in several cases, but is mistakenly represented by ś in sāddhē for sārdha (l. 12), by i in niggitya for nirgatya (l. 15), and by ā in Vishṇuvaddhānō for Vishṇuvardhanō (l. 22). Snāna for snāna (l. 20) and sārtvaṁ for sārthaṁ (l. 61) are due to the vernacular pronunciation of Sanskrit words. The symbol for r is used in the following cases:—(1) in proper names,—Chiriyāṇḍān, Erasēvaka, Eriyapōta, Kaḍalusirukūla, Perumburakkāḍal and

² On the margins of the ring-holes of plates III. a, IV. a and IV. b, and V. a, respectively, the Telugu numerals 3, 4 and 5 are scribbled. The last figure is not so clear as the first two.

³ See note 1 above.

Tirukuruṅḡdi; (2) in the endings of Telugu names of towns,—kurru, parru and torra; (3) in the Telugu words,—cheruvu (a tank), ēru (a stream), karu (a bank), koradu (the stump of a tree), krīḍarataulka (?), munniṛu (the sea), pāru (to flow), podaru (a bush) and rāyi [(a stone); and (4) in the Telugu names of trees or plants,—avuru, rēla, rellu, and vedaturu.

The only copper-plate inscription of Vira-Chôḍa, which has been published before, are the Chellûr plates of his 21st year.¹ Like these plates and other inscriptions of the later Eastern Châlukyas, the subjoined inscription opens with a mythical genealogy of the Châlukya family (ll. 1-18) and a historical account of the Eastern Châlukya kings (l. 19 ff.). This part of the inscription contains nothing new to us, but agrees in every detail with the account given in the Chellûr plates.² The reign of Vira-Chôḍa is described in verses 18-26. Of these verses, 18-21 correspond to verses 18-21 of the Chellûr plates. Verse 20 gives the correct reading of the town where Vira-Chôḍa was crowned, viz. Jananāthanagari,³ which is perhaps a poetical form of Rājamahēndrapura, the modern Rājamahēndri. In verse 21 the Śaka date of Vira-Chôḍa's accession is expressed by the numerical words śasi-kh-āmba-ēndu. This various reading shows that Dr. Hultzsch was right in understanding the word khadvaya in śasi-khadvay-ēndu, as the corresponding verse of the Chellûr plates reads, to represent 'two cyphers,' and not a 'cypher' and a 'two,' which would be another possible explanation.⁴ Verse 22 states that Vira-Chôḍa bore the title Sumastabhuvanāśraya.⁵ Verses 25 and 26 state that his father, the emperor, viz. Kulōttuṅga-Chôḷa I., recalled him, but sent him back "for the conquest of the north" in the fifth year, apparently of Vira-Chôḍa's reign. The recall of Vira-Chôḍa and his temporary stay with his father may be considered either as a punishment for misbehaviour and rebellion, or he may have been recalled to help his father against a foreign enemy, perhaps against the Pāṇḍya king who, according to the Piṭhāpuram pillar inscription of Prithvīśvara, was defeated by Vedula II., a vassal of Vira-Chôḍa.⁶ On the same occasion the Pāṇḍyas may have adopted the title Rājiga-Chôḷa-manôbhāṅga, 'one who frustrated the wishes of Rājiga-Chôḷa,' i.e. of Kulōttuṅga I.⁷ Vira-Chôḍa's subsequent return to Vēṅḡ may have been due to political troubles in his province, his absence from which may have contributed to the rise of feudatory families like the Velanāṇḍu and Kōṇa chiefs, who, later on, obtained possession of the Vēṅḡ country.⁸

The object of the inscription is to record that Vira-Chôḍa granted, at a summer-solstice, the village of Virachôḍachaturvêdimāṅgala, which was formed by uniting three different villages, viz. Mālavelli with its twelve hamlets (pūṇḍi) and Ponnatorra, both in the district of Prōlunāṇḍu, and Ālami in the district of Uttaravarusa (ll. 68-71 and 182-186). Lines 80-180 contain a list of the donees. The description of the boundaries of the granted village is given in ll. 186-271. Lines 271-274 assign twelve shares in Virachôḍachaturvêdimāṅgala for the maintenance of certain village officers. Seven further shares were assigned to the presiding deities in the centre, in the west, and in the other quarters of Virachôḍachaturvêdimāṅgala (ll. 274-276). The date of the grant was the twenty-third year of the king's reign (l. 279 f.), i.e. two years after the Chellûr plates. The inscription ends with the statement that the executors (dīṇapti) of this edict were the five ministers (pañcha pradhānāḥ), and that the composer was Viddayabhaṭṭa⁹ and the engraver Pennāchārya. The very same persons are mentioned at the end of the Chellûr plates.

⁴ This title was borne by all the Western Châlukya kings.

The donees of the grant were no less than five hundred and thirty-six Brāhmaṇas, who are grouped according to their gōtras. Appendices A. and B. contain the names of these Brāhmaṇas, and the names of the various gōtras to which they belonged, in alphabetical order. The titles which are added to their names are:—sahasra, śaḍaṅgavid, bhaṭṭa, Daṣapurībhaṭṭa or Daṣapurīyabhaṭṭa,¹ trivēdin or trivēdibhaṭṭa, and sōmayājīn or bhaṭṭasōmayājīn.² Arasabrahmā and Pārthasārathi are the only two names that occur without any titles. The majority of the names are of Tamil origin. For most of the following explanations of these names I am indebted to Mr. V. Venkayya, M.A. Tillanāyaka and Ambalattāḍi are names of the god Natarāja at Chidambaram. The former means 'the lord of Tillai' (Chidambaram), and the latter 'the dancer in the (Golden) Hall.' Kāmakōṭisahasra is called after the goddess Kāmakōṭī at Kāñchi. Tanīyaperumān stands for Tanīgai-perumāṇ, i.e. the god of Tanigai, which is another name of Tiruttapi near Arkonam. The temple at Tiruttapi is dedicated to the god Subrahmaṇya. Kanda is a Tamil (or Prākṛit) form of the Sanskrit Skanda. Vennakūta is a modified form of Vennēykkūttan, i.e. Kṛishṇa, who was very fond of butter (venney). Ulahamuṇḍān means 'one who swallowed the universe.' This may perhaps refer to Kṛishṇa, who, while yet a child, was one day suspected by Yaśōdā of having swallowed mud. On being asked by her to open his mouth, he did so, and to her astonishment Yaśōdā found that the whole universe was within him. Karimākya is probably a mistake for Karimāṇṇikya, 'the black gem,' a Tamil surname of Kṛishṇa. Kariyakō, 'the black king,' also refers to Kṛishṇa. Chendāmarakanna has to be dissolved into ten-dāmarai-kanna, i.e. 'he whose eyes resemble red lotuses.' This is the Tamil equivalent of the Sanskrit Puṇḍarikāksha, an epithet of Viṣṇu. Palligoṇḍān, 'he who is sleeping,' refers to Śeṣhaśāyin (Viṣṇu). Simhapirān is the lion-god Nṛsiṃha. Śīralaṅgō stands for Śīr-īlan-gō,³ which means 'the illustrious yuearāja.' This refers to Lakshmaṇa, who is often called Ilaiya-Perumāl in Vaishṇava works. Kaḍalusirukāla refers to Hanumat, who jumped over the sea (kaḍal) as if it were a small canal (śīru-kāl). Malahiniya-niṇḍrān⁴ is properly Malai-kuniya-niṇḍrān, meaning 'one who stood so that the mountain bent.' This refers to the sage Agastya, who commanded the Vindhya mountain to prostrate itself before him. Tiruvaratgamuḍayān and Tirumalayudayān are named, respectively, after the gods at Śīraṅgam and Tirumalai (or Tirupati). Arulāra or Arulāla is derived from the Arulāla-Perumāl temple at Little Kāñchi. In Attiyārālibhaṭṭa, Attiyār is perhaps a mistake for Attiyūr, the Tamil name of Little Kāñchi. Chelva stands for Śelva, i.e. Śelvappillai, the god at Mēlukōṭe in the Mysore State. Tirupoliyaninḍrān means 'one who stood resplendent.' This is the name of the god at Tirukkurugūr, as mentioned in the Guruparamparāprabhāva. Tirivāyikkulamudayān is perhaps derived from Tiruvāyikkulam, one of the names of the Rājagōpāla-Perumāl temple at Maṇimaṅgalam in the Chingleput district.⁵ Viṭṭirindān, 'one who is pleased to sit,' is the name of the Vaishṇava temple at Dūsi in the North Arcot district.⁶ Tirukuruṅḍuḍibhaṭṭa is called after the village of Kuruṅḍuḍi in the Tinnevely district. According to the Guruparamparāprabhāva, Yājñamūrti was the name of a certain saṁnyāsin of the Advaita school. It is said of him that he held a disputation with Rāmānuja and, being defeated, became a convert to the Vaishṇava faith. Ālidēvayabhaṭṭa is named after Tirumaṅgai-Ālvār, who in Tamil works bears the

³ The name Śīralaṅgō occurs in two inscriptions at Maṇimaṅgalam; South-Ind. Inscr. Vol. III. Nos. 35 and 38.

⁵ Ibid. Nos. 33 and 36.

⁶ See the Government Epigraphist's Annual Report for 1892-93. The name Viṭṭirundān also occurs in an inscription at Maṇimaṅgalam; South-Ind. Inscr. Vol. III. No. 40.

epithet Tiruvālināḍaṇ, i.e. 'he who comes from the prosperous Āli country.' Ālavandān and Aḍahiyamaṇavāla are the names of two Vaishṇava Āchāryas. The first of these was the grandson of Nādamuni,¹ and the second name is a corruption of Aḷagiyamaṇavāla or, in Sanskrit, Rāmyajāmātri, i.e. 'the beautiful bridegroom.'² Ghṛitāsi is probably a Sanskrit rendering of Neyyūṇḍa, which forms part of the name of Neyyūṇḍālvār, one of the Vaishṇava Āchāryas mentioned in the Guruparamparāprabhāva. The list of Āchāryas given on pp. 82 and 83 of this work,³ includes, among many others, the names of Sundarattōḷudaiyāṇ, Periyāṇḍāṇ and Chiriyāṇḍāṇ, while that of Periyānambi occurs on p. 153. Sundarattōḷudaiyāṇ also occurs in the Tirupparaṅkuṇṇam inscription of Sundara-Pāṇḍya⁴ and means 'the god who has beautiful arms.' Tirunāṇḍudaiyāṇbhāṭṭa is called after Tirunāṇḍu, which occurs in Vaishṇava works as a synonym for Vaikuṇṭha, the abode of Viṣṇu. The title Nāḍavirukkum, which means 'one who is in the middle,' 'an arbitrator' (madhyastha), occurs in l. 177 of the subjoined inscription and is found also in the large Leyden grant, l. 138. Chīḍa in Chīḍabhāṭṭa is the same as Śīḍaṇ, a Tamil form of śishya, 'a pupil.' Tēvaḍi means 'the feet (i.e. the servant) of god.' Ārāmudu means 'fresh nectar;' Manattukkiniyāṇ means 'one who is pleasing to the mind;' and Āyirāṇjōti is 'the thousand-rayed,' i.e. 'the sun.' Two of the Maṇimaṅgalam inscriptions⁵ mention the names Dōṇaya and Dōṇaiya; the similar name Dōṇaya occurs repeatedly among the donees. Such an abundance of Tamil names in the list of donees of Virachōḍachaturvēdimāṅgala leads one to infer that a large immigration or importation of Tamil Brāhmaṇas to the north must have taken place during the reign of Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa I. The large proportion of Vaishṇava names among the donees further suggests that about this time the Rāmānuja faith counted many devotees, who adopted as their names the Tamil equivalents of Sanskrit names, which occur in the sacred works of Vaishṇavas.⁶ Three of the donees bear the title Brahmamahārāja, which must have been an invention of the Chōḷa king Rājārāja I. in whose inscriptions it is first found.⁷ Of these three donees one was called Kulōttuṅgachōḍa-brahmaṇahārāja after the reigning sovereign. The second was a military officer (sēnāpati) and had the title Rājārājabrahmamahārāja, which, as we know from the Chellūr plates, had been conferred on a certain Pōṭana. The third had the name Kumāraṇārāyaṇabrahmamahārāja, which was perhaps derived from a surname of Virā-Chōḍa himself.

The boundaries of Virachōḍachaturvēdimāṅgala were: in the south, Ponnavaḍa and Mallavṛōlu; in the west, Kollipṛōlu and Chembrōlu; in the north, Polakumbarra, Paṅkalapūṇḍi and Beṇḍapūṇḍi; and in the east, the sea (ll. 186-188). With line 188 begins a second, much more detailed description of the boundary-line of the granted village. This passage enumerates various canals, tanks, ponds, hamlets, hills, boulders, pieces of waste-land and high ground, foot-paths, ant-hills, valleys etc. It also includes the names of a number of trees, an alphabetical list of which is given in Appendix C. Of the villages that are mentioned

⁵ South-Ind. Inscr. Vol. III. Nos. 81 and 86.

in the grant, the following admit of identification. One of the two villages¹ which formed the southern boundary of Virachôdachaturvêdimangala, Ponnavaḍa, may be identified with Ponnada which is found to the east of Piṭhâpuram on the Madras Survey Map of the Piṭhâpuram division. The western boundaries, Kolliprôlu and Chembrôlu, are found on the same map as Gollaprol and Chebrolu, on the high-road from Piṭhâpuram to Kattipudi. Bendapûṇḍi, one of the northern boundaries, is Bendapudi, on the road to Vizagapatam. Two other villages between which the northern boundary passed, Singavikrama and Donteṅgi (l. 258), are found on the map as Srungarrukham and Tondangi between Bendapudi and the sea. Among the boundaries of Navavâḍa, a hamlet of Virachôdachaturvêdimangala (l. 266), we find Bendapûṇḍi (the modern Bendapudi) and Duggavâḍa. This village is identical with the modern Durgada, which is found on the map between Bendapudi and Chebrolu. Chembrôlu, the modern Chebrolu, belonged to the district of Bottepinâṇḍu (l. 209).² The district of Prôlunâṇḍu, in which Mâlavelli and Ponnatorra were situated (ll. 69 and 182), is already known from two inscriptions in the Kuntimâdhava temple at Piṭhâpuram, and included also Navakhṇḍavâḍa (near Piṭhâpuram) and Sarpavaram.³

² The same district is mentioned in l. 202 as Bontepinâṇḍu.

ABRIDGED TRANSLATION.

(Verse 1.) The glorious Hari (Vishnu), the first of the gods, produced from the lotus of his navel Virinchi (Brahmā), in order to create these three worlds. From him was born, it is said, the great sage Atri; (and) from Atri the Moon, who has taken up his abode on the crest of Mahēśvara (Śiva).

[Lines 2-60, except verse 15 which is translated below, agree with the Chellūr plates of Vira-Chōda.]

(V. 15.) "O brave (son)! Take up the burden of the Vēngi country which is hereditary in (our) family. Powerful men, though young, are verily fit for their duties."¹

(V. 22.)² Protecting a crore of the poor by granting (them) the objects of (their) desires; those in fear by (his) arm which dispelled the fears of refugees; and the subjects by adhering to his duty, he bears the name Samastabhuvanātraya (i.e. the refuge of the whole world), which is full of significance.

(V. 23.) Rising from the earth, attaining to great heights, spreading over all quarters, transcending all heavens and reaching still higher worlds, his fame, which destroys (all) evils, far excels the Gaṅgā, which drops from heaven, falls upon this earth (and) takes a still more downward course.³

(V. 24.) The king of serpents (Śēṣha), having abandoned the toils of the burden of the earth, protects the lower world undisturbed; the whole earth, too, avoiding other, bad rulers, is freed from agitation; and the hosts of gods enjoy the numerous sacrifices of the prosperous twice-born. Thus these three worlds are verily in great glee while this (king) is bearing the burden of the earth.

(V. 25.) While ruling the earth unopposed, he was called (back) by (his) father, the emperor, (who was) desirous of gazing on the beauty of (his) body which was blooming with youth.

(V. 26.) Looking at him, the youth, who, like the (waxing) moon, was day by day acquiring new splendour which gave delight to the eyes, the lord of kings could never satisfy his eyes, but sent (his) son back in the fifth year, in order to conquer the north.

(L. 68.) This asylum of the whole world, the glorious Vishnuvardhana mahārājādhirāja, rājaparamēśvara, paramabhaṭṭāraka, the most pious one, the glorious Vira-Chōḍaśēva, having called together all householders, (viz.) the Rāshṭrakūṭas etc. inhabiting the district of Prōlunāpḍu, thus issues his commands in the presence of the ministers, the family priest, the commander of the army, the heir-apparent and the door-keepers:—

[Vv. 27-32 are in praise of the Brāhmaṇa caste.]

² This verse follows verse 21 of the Chellūr plates.

⁴ The names of 8 donees have been erased, viz. of [Ma]timānbhaṭṭa and Māḍiyabhaṭṭa in l. 99; of Aḍhiyānbhaṭṭa in l. 111; of Śrī-Vāsudēvabhaṭṭa and Śrī [Rama]ṇḍa[ya]nbhaṭṭa in l. 123; of Ālavandānbhaṭṭa in l. 154; of Śrī-Ra[ṅga]nāthabhaṭṭa in l. 166; and of Prabōdhasivapaṇḍita in l. 177. On the other hand the following 6 donees received 8 extra shares:—Abhirāmamūrti who was the officiating priest (purōhita) of the king (l. 80),—1 extra share; Niravadyabhaṭṭa who performed the Vḍjapēya sacrifice (ll. 148-149),—1 extra share; Dāmōdarabhaṭṭa (l. 173),—1 extra share; Rājārājabrahmamahārāja who was the commander of the forces (sēnāpati) (ll. 175-176),—8 extra shares; Kumārānārāyaṇabrahmamahārāja (l. 176),—1 extra share; and Prabōdhasivapaṇḍita (l. 177),—1 extra share. The totals of the donees and of the shares, as stated in ll. 181-182 of the text (536 and 544), may be arrived at by adding the 8 erased names to 528 which is the number of donees actually named in the plates, and by adding 8 extra shares to the single shares of the 536 donees.

(L. 180.) "Be it known to you that,—having assigned five hundred and forty-four shares — (some getting) less and (some getting) more—to these (Brāhmapas), five hundred and thirty-six in number, who are engaged in performing the six duties; having united three villages, viz. the village named Mālavelli with its twelve hamlets (pūṇḍi) and the village named Ponnatorra, (both) in your district, and the village named Ālami in the Uttaravarusa district; having converted (these three villages) into a well-established agrahāra, by name the prosperous Virachôdachaturvêdimāṅgala; having fixed an annual assessment of one and a half nishka on each of these shares; and having remitted the siddhāya, avēṇḍāya, abhinava and other (revenue) besides this (assessment), (the tax) called kriḍarāṣulka, and what is due to the king from merchants and well-to-do people,—we have given (the said village), with exemption from all taxes, with libations of water, to last as long as the moon and the sun, on the occasion of the summer solstice.

(L. 186.) "The boundary villages of this (village are):—In the south Ponnavaḍa and Mallavrôlu (form) the boundary; in the west Kolliprôlu and Chembrôlu (form) the boundary; (and) in the north Polakumbarra, Paṅkalapūṇḍi and Beṇḍapūṇḍi (form) the boundaries."

[Ll. 188-266 contain a more detailed description of the boundary-line of the granted village. In this passage the following villages are mentioned besides those already referred to in ll. 186-188:—Liṅgamakurru, Puluvaṅkurru, Gāraparra, Mēdaparra, Dāreki, Jammapparra, Bhimāvura, Kappaniparra, Siṅgavikrama and Doṇṇēṅgi. The boundary in the east was the sea (l. 188).]

[Ll. 266-271 contain a description of the boundaries of Navavaḍa, a hamlet (pūṇḍi) of Virachôdachaturvêdimāṅgala. In this passage the villages of Beṇḍapūṇḍi, Duggavaḍa, Nāgada and Trummiki are mentioned.]

(L. 271.) "In this (village) one share (was assigned) for the maintenance of one who expounds grammar; two to the expounder of Mīmāṃsā; one to the expounder of Vêdānta; one to the teacher of the Rîgvêda; one to the teacher of the Yajurvêda; one to the teacher of the singing of the Sāmans; one to the expounder of Rûpāvatāra (?); one to him who teaches the reciting of the Purāṇas; one to the physician; one to the barber; one to the poison-doctor; (and) one to the astrologer. These are the twelve shares for the maintenance (of holders) of offices. Two shares (were assigned) to the god Vishṇu who resides in the centre of the village; two (shares) also (to Vishṇu) who resides on the western side (of the village); two (shares) to Śrī-Kailāśadēva; (and) one (share) to the other local deities. These (are) the seven shares of gods."

[Ll. 276-279 contain the usual imprecations.]

(L. 279.) The executors (ājñapti) of this edict (śāsana), which was given in the twenty-third year of the years of the glorious and victorious reign, (were) the five ministers (pradhāna). The author of the poetry (was) Viddayabhaṭṭa; the writer (was) Pennāchārya.

No. 11.— MAUNGGUN GOLD PLATES.

By MAUNG TUN NYEIN, HONORARY ARCHÆOLOGICAL OFFICER, BURMA.

These two gold plates were found in a brick last year by some people who were digging foundations for a new pagoda at Maunggun village near Hmawza in the Prome district. They were sent by Sir Frederic Fryer, the Lieutenant-Governor of Burma, to Dr. Hultzsch for transmission to the British Museum, London.

Each of the two plates bears three lines of writing and is inscribed on one side only. The letters show through on the reverse. The weight of the first plate is 110 grains, and that of the second 148 grains. The inscriptions consist of quotations from the Buddhist scriptures. They are in the Pāli language and are written in characters which, it is believed, were in vogue in the first century A.D. when the kingdom of Prome (Sirikhetarā) was in the zenith of its power. The alphabet corresponds to a large extent with that used in the inscriptions at Pagan of the fourth and fifth centuries, and several of the letters also resemble those of the South-Indian class of alphabets. It is probable that the Burmese written language was mainly derived from India, whence colonists settled in Prome which was once a sea-port town.

Whatever laws are produced from cause, the cause of these the Tathāgata has expounded, as well as the cessation of both the cause and the effect. This is the teaching of the great ascetic.

For these reasons (viz. previously acquired virtues) the Blessed one (Buddha) is called the Venerable one, the truly and perfectly enlightened Being, one endowed with knowledge and conduct, the Happy one, one knowing the universe, the Preeminent one, the Bridler of men's wayward passions, the Master of gods and men, and the blessed Buddha.

The Blessed one has well expounded his law, whose benefits are evident to the eye, which is advantageous at all times and seasons, which can boldly invite criticism, which can, if closely observed, lead up to Nirvāṇa, and with whose details, severally, the wise should be acquainted.

No. 12.—AHMADABAD INSCRIPTION OF VISALADEVA;
[VIKRAMA-]SAMVAT 1308.

By REV. J. E. ABBOTT, B.A.

This inscription is on a pillar in the mosque of Aḥmad Shāh I. (A.D. 1411-1443), in the Bhadr at Aḥmadābād. I edit it for the first time. The inscribed pillar is to the right of the pulpit and faces the latticed gallery. The letters are on the whole well preserved, though a few are damaged. The inscription is complete, with the exception of the beginning and end of the first line, which contain a part of the date. The name of the month is therefore lost. The language is Sanskrit, but influenced by Gujarātī, forming a mixed language common at that period. The form of the letters is such as is found in the inscriptions of Visaladēva and other Chaulukya kings of that period.

The inscription belongs to the reign of Visaladēva and is dated in [Vikrama-]Samvat 1308 (about A.D. 1251), on the 11th day of a month the name of which is broken away, on a Sunday. It records the gift of a trellis window or screen (jālā) in the temple of Uttarēśvara at Māhimsaka, by one Pēthaḍa, a servant of Sōḍhaladēvi.

The question of special interest is the identification of Māhimsaka, the place in which the Hindū temple stood, which Aḥmad Shāh used as material for his mosque.¹ If it is to be identified with some place distant from Aḥmadābād, there are three places of similar name, which might be derived from Māhimsaka, viz. Mānsā and Mēsānā to the north of Aḥmadābād, and Mahisā in the Thasra tāluka of the Kaira collectorate;² but none of these places contains ruins that suggest of their having been used by Aḥmad Shāh as the quarry for his mosque. The usual custom of the Muḥammadan conquerors was that of desecrating Hindū temples and modifying them on their own site to suit their purposes as mosques. If such were the case

² I am indebted for information regarding Mānsā, Mēsānā and Mahisā to Mr. F. S. P. Lely, who has kindly had inquiries made regarding these places, and to Lieutenant Carter, who has personally visited the ruins of Mahisā.

here, then Māhimsaka would be the name of a village on the site of Ahmadābād, whose name has been otherwise lost.

A.—Undated inscription at Chidambaram.⁷

This Grantha inscription has been already published in South-Indian Inscriptions, Vol. I. p. 168 f. As stated on a subsequent occasion,⁸ the conquests recorded in it prove that it was incised in the time of Kulōttunga-Chōla I., who ascended the throne in A.D. 1070.⁹ I now subjoin an improved reading and translation of it.

Having subdued the five Pāṇḍyas by an army which discharged numerous arrows, having burnt like straw the fort of Kōṭṭāra,³ just as (Arjuna) the son of Pāṇḍu (had burnt) the Khāṇḍava (forest), (and) having crushed that extremely dense army of the Kēraḷas,— that glorious Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa, who resembles a lion in majesty (and) Śakra (Indra) in valour, placed on the shore of the ocean a pillar (commemorative of his) conquest of the three worlds.

(V. 2.) Having subdued the five Pāṇḍyas by masses of powerful armies, that glorious⁴ Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa, who has scattered (his) enemies (and) whose fame is spontaneously sung on the further shore of the ocean by the young women of the Persians (Pāraśi), duly placed on the holy peak of the Sahyādri (mountain) a pillar (which commemorates his) conquest of the three worlds (and) before which the crowd of kings is trembling.

B.—Inscription of the 39th year at Tiruveṅkāḍu.⁵

This inscription is engraved on the south wall of the shrine in the Śvētāranyaśvara temple at Tiruveṅkāḍu in the Tanjore district. It is written in the Grantha alphabet and consists of a single Sanskrit verse in the Sragdharā metre. It records the gift of a lamp to the temple of Śiva at Śvētāranya⁶ in the 39th year of Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa,— perhaps the first king of this name.

C.—Inscription of the 44th year at Chidambaram.¹

This inscription is engraved on the outside of the north wall of the innermost prākāra of the Natarāja temple at Chidambaram. That portion of it which contains the date has been published before in the Indian Antiquary, Vol. XXIII, p. 297 f. and above, Vol. IV, p. 70. The alphabet and language are Tamil. Lines 1-5 and 9-14 are in prose, and lines 5-9 contain one verse.

The inscription is dated in the 44th year of Jayadhara (l. 5 f.). From the Kalingattu-Parai we know that this was a surname of Kulōttuṅga-Chōla I.,² to whose reign the present record must be assigned accordingly. Professor Kielhorn has calculated the details of the date (l. 6 f.) and has found that it corresponds to Friday, the 13th March A.D. 1114.³

The first portion of the inscription records donations made to the temple at Chidambaram (Tillai, ll. 7 and 9, or Tiruchchirrambalam, l. 12) by Kundavai Ālvār, (the daughter of) Rājarāja and younger sister of Kulōttuṅga-Chōla. She presented the god with a golden vessel (l. 3) and a mirror (l. 10) and covered (the roof of) the shrine with gold (l. 8). The second portion (ll. 10-14) states that a stone which the king of Kambōja had given to Rājendra-Chōla was, by order of the latter, inserted into the wall of a hall in front of the shrine.

Of the names mentioned in the preceding paragraph, Kulōttuṅga-Chōla (l. 1 f.) and Rājendra-Chōla (ll. 10 and 11) refer to the reigning king Kulōttuṅga-Chōla I., who is known to have originally borne the name Rājendra-Chōla (II.) and to have subsequently assumed the name Kulōttuṅga.⁴ Rājarāja, the father of Kulōttuṅga's younger sister Kundavai (ll. 2 and 9), is identical with the Eastern Chālukya king Rājarāja I. (A.D. 1022-1063).⁵

(L. 9.) She also gave a sacred mirror to the god who is the lord of Tillai.

(L. 10.) A stone was exhibited by the Kāmbōja king before the glorious Rājendra-Chōḷadēva. This (stone) was, by order of the lord Rājendra-Chōḷadēva, placed in front of the shrine of the god who is the lord of Tiruchohirrambalam. This stone was placed in the upper front row of stones of the hall opposite the shrine.

D.— Inscription of the 30th year at Tiruvorriyūr.⁴

This Grantha inscription is engraved on the north wall of the first prākāra of the Ādhipuriśvara temple at Tiruvorriyūr near Madras. It consists of a single Sanskrit verse in the Vasantatilakā metre and records the gift of a lamp to the temple of Śiva at Ādhipura, i.e. Tiruvorriyūr,⁵ in the 30th year of Jayadhara. On page 105 above it has been already stated that this was a surname of Kulōttunga-Chōḷa I.

village of Dibbida Agrahāram,¹ in the Vīravilli tāluka of the Vizagapatam district. I edit the inscription which they contain from an excellent impression, supplied to me by Dr. Hultzsch.

These are five copper-plates, the first of which is inscribed on one side only, and each of which measures about $9\frac{1}{2}$ " broad by $3\frac{3}{8}$ " high. They are numbered in Telugu figures, which are engraved near the proper right margin of the second side of each plate.² The plates have slightly raised rims, and, with the exception of the fifth plate which is broken in three pieces and of which a small marginal piece is missing, they are well preserved, so that the writing on them nearly throughout may be read with absolute certainty. The plates are strung on a ring which had not been cut when they were received by Dr. Hultzsch. This ring is about $3\frac{1}{4}$ " in diameter and $\frac{1}{4}$ " thick, and has its ends secured in a seal which bears two fishes, in relief, on an elliptical surface of about 1" by $\frac{1}{8}$ ".—Though not very uniform, the writing, on the whole, is well engraved. The characters are intermediate between those of the latest Eastern Chālukya inscriptions³ and the Telugu characters, properly so called. On the forms of individual letters only few remarks are necessary. The signs for th and dh throughout are open at the top (e.g. in duasatha, l. 36, and raṁdhra, l. 31), and the sign for bh is generally open at the bottom (e.g. in vallabha, l. 1). The sign for ḍ (e.g. in Pāṁḍava, l. 30, and Paragāṁḍa, l. 25) has no top-stroke (talakaṭṭu) and therefore closely resembles the ḷ of the Eastern Chālukya inscriptions; on the other hand, a top-stroke is employed in the sign for ḷ (in ajigaḷan, l. 12, bhilla-taruḥ, l. 59, and -tālah, l. 61), the right top of which, besides, is formed into a loop.⁴ For the initial ṛi we have an unusual (perhaps incorrect) form in Rigvedādhyā- at the end of line 39; and the signs for the medial i and ī are hardly ever, if at all, properly distinguished. The size of the letters varies between about $\frac{1}{16}$ " and $\frac{3}{16}$ ".—The language is Sanskrit,⁵ but the description of the boundaries in lines 52-64 contains some Telugu words. Up to line 36 the inscription is in verse, and five more verses occur in lines 65-73. In respect of orthography, the chief points to be noted are that consonants (especially g, ḍ, t, b and bh, but also ch, j, ṭ, d, dh, p and v), which follow upon an anusvāra, are frequently doubled; and that, when such is the case, bh and dh are doubled by prefixing to them the same aspirated letters,⁶ except in the word vaṁdhāharām in line 68. Before r, t is doubled in muni-tṛidaśa, l. 5; and y is doubled after ṭ in tṛīṭṭyā, l. 32, and pālaniyyaḥ, l. 71. Besides, instead of ṇṇ we have ṇn in avatīrṇnas, l. 6, and nn in Jātūkarṇna, l. 41.

The inscription records (in vv. 20, 21 and 26) that on Saturday, the Akshaya-tṛitīyā of the month Vaiśākha of the Śaka year counted by the moon (1), the apertures of the body (0), the earth (1) and the moon (1), i.e. of Śaka-Samvat 1191, the chief Arjuna of the Matsya family, for the spiritual welfare of his father Jayanta, granted to certain Brāhmaṇas, as an agrahāra, the village of Drubbidi, which he called Jayanta-Nārāyaṇa after his father. The full genealogy of the donor (in vv. 1-19) is as follows:—

From the lotus on Vishṇu's navel sprang Brahman, from him Atri, and from him Kaśyapa. In his lineage was the sage Nārāṅga, who one day, while wandering in the sky, saw the river Matsyā which rises on the Mukunda mountain, descended to its banks, and engaged there in austere penance. To disturb the sage, the frightened Indra sent the Apsaras Mañjughōshā. By the sage's curse she was changed into a fish (matsyā), swallowed the semen which the ascetic had thrown into the water, and in due course gave birth to a son who was

⁴ In ajigaḷan, l. 12, the loop does not show on the front of the impression, but is clearly visible on the back of it.

⁶ We similarly have garbhāḥam instead of garbhāḥam, in line 12, and Fudhāḥamallas instead of Fudhāḥamallas, in line 20.

called Satyamârtanḍa (vv. 1-8). When Jayatsēna, the lord of Utkala,¹ came to know this boy, he gave to him in marriage his daughter Prabhâvatī, and appointed him to rule over the Oḍḍavâdī² country (vv. 9 and 10). In the Matsya family, founded by Satyamârtanḍa, there was a long line of chiefs (râjan, nṛipa, bhūpa, etc.), whose names (from vv. 11-19) are given here in a tabular statement.

³ Ârya is not numbered because apparently he was not a ruling chief.

Of the village granted, two shares were set aside for the gods Hari and Hara¹ (l. 51) while one share was assigned to each of the following twenty Brāhmapas (ll. 37-51): The Purōhita (or family priest of the chief) Vāmadēva, a Sōma-yāga sacrificer, of the Bhāradvāja gōtra; the teachers of the Rīgvēda Mērubrahman and Viddana of the Harita gōtra, Nāmana of the Kauṇḍinya gōtra, Vennakūta of the Śālāvata gōtra, Pōtasarman of the Vādhūla gōtra, Rāmana of the Mudgala gōtra, and Dommana of the Bhāradvāja gōtra; the students of the Rīgvēda Vennakūta of the Harita gōtra, Mānasarmaa of the Śālāvata (?) gōtra, and Yajñamūrtyārya of the Kuṇḍina (Kauṇḍinya) gōtra; the teachers of the Yajurvēda Akonḍi of the Vatsa gōtra, Bhīmēśvarārya of the Bhāradvāja gōtra, Śūraṅgārya of the Kauṇḍinya gōtra; Vīrabhadreśvarārya of the Gautama gōtra, and Lōkanātha of the Kāśyapa gōtra; the students of the Yajurvēda Rāghava of the Mudgala gōtra and Purushōttamasarman of the Gautama gōtra; the student of the Kāṇva sākhā (of the Yajurvēda) Mādhavārya of the Jātūkarna gōtra; and the student of the Śrī-bhāgavata (Purāṇa) Mānkanārya of the Harita gōtra. The grant made in favour of these donees included the services or taxes,² due from the village artisans, viz. the carpenter, goldsmith, barber (?), blacksmith, potter and sesamum-grinder (v. 22); but apparently³ was exclusive of eight *drōṇas*⁴ of land which had been previously given by the chief to the minister Peddana (ll. 66 and 67).

The boundaries of the village were (ll. 52-64): 'On the east, a babūl tree on the northern side of the embankment of the tank of Mānki-Nāyaka;⁵ to the south-east of this, a house;⁶ thence (the village of) Kākatikhaṇḍi; thence the embankment east of a nimba tree; thence the embankment of (the) Eḍḡabanda (tank); thence an ant-hill; (and) thence the northern corner of the embankment of the tank of the low-caste people. On the south-east of the village, a fixed⁷ stone; to the west of this, the tamarind trees of Tūṛ[ūru]; (and) thence the bricks of a temple. On the south-west of the village, a garlic field on the west of a poison-tree; thence a house of bricks; thence the space between a wood-apple tree and a poison-tree; thence a bhilla tree; thence the tamarind trees of Anupumāli; thence a green piece of land to the south of Boḍḍapāḍu; thence an ant-hill; thence three tamarind trees; thence a young palmyra tree (and) thence a stone on an ant-hill. On the north-west of the village, a stone on the top of a hill; on the east of this, a grinding-stone; thence a shed and a rock; thence a svarnaṇapushpi tree; thence a kshīra-tree; thence a ant-hill; thence an old fixed stone; (and) thence an ant-hill. On the north-east of the village, a fixed large stone.'

Lines 67-72 of the inscription contain three of the ordinary imprecatory verses.

Regarding the chiefs mentioned in this inscription I have not obtained any information from other sources.⁸ Nor am I able to identify any of the localities, except the village of Drubbidi itself, which must be the Dibbida Agrahāram where the plates were found.

The date of the grant regularly corresponds, for Śaka-Samvat 1191 expired, to Saturday, the 6th April A.D. 1269. On this day the third tithi of the bright half of Vaiśākha ended 6 h. 6 m. after mean sunrise, and the day therefore was the proper day for the Akshaya-tṛitiyā festival.⁹

⁷ Kāḍā seems to be used in the sense of nikkāta.

No. 15.—THREE COPPER-PLATE INSCRIPTIONS OF GOVINDACHANDRA OF KANAUJ.

By F. KIELHORN, PH.D., LL.D., C.I.E.; GÖTTINGEN.

The originals of these inscriptions are now in the Lucknow Museum. My account of them is based on impressions, kindly furnished to me by Dr. Führer,¹¹ who also has informed me where and when the original plates were found.¹² I have treated of them in the same manner as of the Kamauli plates of Gōvindhachandra, above, Vol. IV. p. 101 ff.

² The reading may possibly be śāḍla.

⁸ Metre of verses 23-26: Ślōka (Anuṣṭubh).

⁹ The word in these brackets is entirely broken away.

¹⁰ Originally paraddatt—was engraved.

¹¹ Of the inscription C. an impression was given to me some years ago by Dr. Burgess.

¹² See also Dr. Führer's Monum. Antiquities and Inscriptions in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, pp. 185 and 263.

A.—PĀLĪ PLATES OF GŌVINDACHANDRA AND HIS MOTHER RĀLHANADĒVĪ, OF [VIKRAMA-JSAMVAT 1189.

These plates were found at the village of Pālī in the Dhuriāpār pargana of the Bānsgāon tahsil of the Gōrākhpur district of the North-Western Provinces, and were in January 1895 presented to the Lucknow Museum by the Collector, Dr. Hoey, who had obtained them through Pirthipal Rai, the Zamīndār. They are two in number, each of which measures about 1' 1½" broad by 10" high, and is inscribed on one side only. The plates have raised rims, and the writing, in consequence, is in an excellent state of preservation throughout. There is a ring-hole in the centre of the lower part of the first plate and a corresponding hole in the centre of the upper part of the second plate, but the ring on which the plates were strung is missing. With the plates, however, is preserved a circular seal, about 2½" in diameter, which bears in high relief, across the centre, the legend ś[ri]mad-G[ō]vindachandradēva*, in Nāgarī letters about ⅞" high; above the legend, the figure of a Garuḍa, squatting down and facing to the proper right; and below the legend, a conch-shell.—Each plate contains 17 lines of well executed writing. The size of the letters is about ⅜". The characters are Nāgarī, and the language is Sanskrit. As regards orthography, the letter b is everywhere denoted by the sign for v; the dental sibilant is frequently employed instead of the palatal, and the palatal occasionally instead of the dental; and j is used instead of y in the word jāti, l. 20.

The inscription is one of the Paramabhaṭṭāraka Mahārājādhirāja Paramēśvara Gōvinda-chandradēva. The king records in it that, after bathing in the Satī at the ghaṭṭa of the god Svapnēśvara, on the occasion of the Akshaya-tṛtīyā festival in the bright half of the month Vaiśākha, he made over to his mother, the Mahārājñī Rālhanaḍēvī,¹ ten nālukas (of land) in the village of Guduvi, in the Gōyara pattalā of the Ōṇavala pathaka, as a gift for the Thakkura Jayapālasarman, son of the Thakkura Indrāditya and son's son of the Thakkura Pēvalaha, a Brāhmaṇ of the Mudgala gōtra, whose three pravaras were Maudgalya, Āṅgīrasa and Bhārmyasva.—The taxes specially mentioned (in line 26) as due to the donee are the bhāgabhōgakara and pravanikara. In line 34 the inscription is dated, in figures only, on Saturday, the 8th of the dark half of Jyāishṭha of the year 1189. The grant was written by the Thakkura Vishṇu.

The date in line 34 regularly corresponds, for the Kārttikādi Vikrama-Samvat 1189 expired and the pūrnimānta Jyāishṭha, to Saturday, the 29th April A.D. 1133, when the 8th tithi of the dark half ended 15 h. 48 m. after mean sunrise. The preceding Akshaya-tṛtīyā, on which the donation was made, fell on Sunday, the 9th April A.D. 1133, when the third tithi of the bright half of Vaiśākha commenced 1 h. 17 m. and ended 23 h. 5 m. after mean sunrise.²

The localities I am unable to identify.—From the present inscription it appears that the pattalā, so often mentioned in cognate grants, was a subdivision of the pathaka,³ a term which does not occur in the inscriptions of the kings of Kanauj hitherto published, but which is met with also in another Pālī plate of Gōvindachandra that will be referred to below.⁴ Another unusual term in this grant is nāluka, in line 19. This word apparently is derived from, and is equivalent to, the Sanskrit nalva, a measure of distance equal to 400 (or, according to others, 100, or 120) hastas. The same term occurs, both in the form nāluka and in the abbreviated form nālu, in the Kahla (now Lucknow Museum) plates of the (Kalachuri?) Mahārājādhirāja Sōḍhadēva, the successor of the Mahārājādhirāja Maryādāsagaradēva, of V. 1135, of which Dr. Führer has kindly sent me an impression.

³ This sign of punctuation is superfluous; read vijayī.

⁶ Originally rājītra was engraved, but the akshara ra is struck out.

⁸ One would have expected here dāsa nāluka ankē=pi nāluka 10 sa-jala-sthaldh sa-lavaṇ-dikardh, etc.

⁹ Read ddh.

¹² Read pakshē-kshaya.

¹³ Read -karatal-śdaka-pūrvam.

¹⁴ Read ōdēvy-dāśm (for simply ōdēvyd).

¹⁵ One would have expected pradattā; see above, note 8.

B.—MACHHLISHAHR PLATE OF GŌVINDACHANDRA
OF [VIKRAMA-]SAMVAT 1201.

This is a single plate which was found, in September 1888, in a field close to a small hamlet seven miles north of Māchhlīshahr (Ghiswā) in the Jaunpur district of the North-Western Provinces, and is now in the Lucknow Museum. It measures about 1' 3¼" broad by 11¼" high, and is engraved on one side only. In the centre of the upper part it has a ring-hole, through which passes a ring, with a circular seal which is about 2½" in diameter and bears the same legend and emblems as the seal of the inscription A., but apparently not so well preserved. The plate contains 29 lines of writing which, on the whole, is well preserved. The size of the letters is between ¼" and ⅙". The characters are Nāgarī, and the language is Sanskrit. The writer has done his work well, and in respect of orthography, therefore, it need only be stated that, except in the word babhrāmur in line 9, the letter b is denoted by the sign for v, and that the dental sibilant is occasionally employed instead of the palatal.

This is another inscription of the Paramabhaṭṭāraka Mahārājādhirāja Paramēśvara Gōvindachandrādēva, who records that, on Monday, the Akshaya-tṛtīyā tithi of the bright half of the month Vaiśākha of the year 1201 (given both in words and in figures), after bathing in the Ganges at Benares, he granted the village of Pérōha in the Mahasōya pattalā to the Paṇḍita Vamśadharaśarma, son of the Paṇḍita Padmanābha and son's son of the Paṇḍita Bharata, a Brāhmaṇ of the Kāśyapa gōtra, whose three pravaras were Kāśyapa, Āvatsāra and Naidhruva.—The taxes specified (in line 20) are the bhāgabhogakara, pravaṇikara and turushkadanḍa. The grant (tāmra) was written by the Kāyastha Dhandhūka.¹

About the exact equivalent of the date I am somewhat doubtful. It is true that, for the Chaitrādī Vikrama-Samvat 1201 current, the date would regularly correspond to Monday, the 19th April A.D. 1143, when the third tithi of the bright half of Vaiśākha ended 21 h. 52 m. after mean sunrise. But as current years are only quoted very exceptionally, and as for the Kārttikādī Vikrama-Samvat 1202 expired the date would correspond to Monday, the 15th April A.D. 1146, which was entirely occupied by the third tithi of the bright half of Vaiśākha, I am rather inclined to assume that this is really the day on which the grant was made, and that in the inscription the year 1201 has been quoted erroneously instead of 1202.²

Regarding the localities I can only say that the Mahasōya pattalā of this inscription undoubtedly is the same district which in an inscription of Jayachchandra⁴ is called the Mahasō pattalā.

² This very probably is the same writer who in another inscription of Gōvindachandra is described as the 'ṭhakkura Dhādhūka'; see above, Vol. IV. p. 114, inscription L.

³ There are numerous other dates, of both the Vikrama and the Śaka era, in which we find the same error.

C.—BANGĀVAN PLATE OF GÔVINDACHANDRA AND HIS QUEEN
GÔSALADÊVÎ, OF [VIKRAMA]-SAMVAT 1208.

This also is a single plate which was found, in December 1887, in a field near the village of Bangāvan in the Daryābād pargana of the Râmsanehî-Ghâṭ tahsîl of the Bâra Bankî district of Oudh, and which is now in the Lucknow Museum. It measures about 1' 5½" broad by 1' high, and is inscribed on one side only. At the lower proper left corner a square piece, about 1½" broad by 2½" high, is broken away, causing the loss of about four aksharas at the end of each of the lines 19-25; otherwise the plate is well preserved. In the centre of the upper part it has a ring-hole, through which passes a ring, with a circular seal which is about 2½" in diameter and bears the same legend and emblems as the seal of the inscription A.⁶ The

² Read samvat 1201; the figure for the unit (1) is quite clear and distinct, and cannot be read differently.

³ Read - Vârāṇasyam.

plate contains 25 lines of writing. The size of the letters is about $\frac{1}{8}$ ". The characters are Nāgarī, and the language is Sanskrit. The writer and engraver have done their work in a rather slovenly manner so that the text contains a large number of minor mistakes. As regards orthography, the letter b is denoted by the sign for v, the dental sibilant is often employed instead of the palatal, j is used instead of y in -parjantaḥ, l. 16, and the word śekhara is written śēshara, in line 19.

This is another inscription of the Paramabhaṭṭāraka Mahārājādhirāja Paramēśvara Gōvīndachandradēva.¹ The king records in it that, on Tuesday, the full-moon tithi of Kārttika of the year 1208 (given both in words and in figures), his queen, the Paṭṭamahādēvi Mahārājñī Gōśaladēvi, endowed with all royal prerogatives, after bathing in the Ganges at Benares near (the temple of) the god Lōlārka,² in the presence of that deity, with the king's consent, gave the village of Gaṭiara in the Bhīmamayūtāsa . . .³ pattalā to the Thakkura Apataśarman, son of the Thakkura . . .⁴ and son's son of the Thakkura Kulhē, a Brāhmaṇ of the Vasishṭha gōtra and student of the Chhandōga śākhā (of the Sāma-vēda), who had come from Pāṭaliputra.—The taxes specified (in line 22) are the bhāgabhogakara and pravāṇikara. The writer's name either was not given or is broken away at the end of the inscription.

The date is irregular;⁵ for the full-moon tithi of Kārttika of Vikrama-Saṃvat 1208 current ended 17 h. 43 m. after mean sunrise of Monday, the 6th November A.D. 1150, and that of Vikrama-Saṃvat 1208 expired, 3 h. 58 m. after mean sunrise of Saturday, the 27th October A.D. 1151. The date would be incorrect also for Vikrama-Saṃvat 1209 expired. but correct for both 1206 and 1210 expired.

Of the localities, Pāṭaliputra is the modern Patna in the Patna district of Bengal; the village Gaṭiara and the pattalā in which it was situated I am unable to identify.

No. 16.— SIX EASTERN CHALUKYA COPPER-PLATE INSCRIPTIONS.

By F. KIELHORN, PH.D., LL.D., C.I.E.; GÖTTINGEN.

A.—ĒḍĒRU PLATES OF VIJAYĀDITYA II.

[A.D. 799-843.]¹⁰

These plates were found, about twenty-five years ago, at the village of ĒḍĒru (the 'Ēedra' of the Indian Atlas, map 94, long. 80° 48' E., lat. 16° 43' N.) in the Nāziviḍu Zamindārī of the Kistna district of the Madras Presidency, and they are preserved now in the Madras Museum. The inscription which they contain has been already published, by Pandit S. M. Natesa Sastri, in the Indian Antiquary, Vol. XIII. p. 55 ff.;¹¹ I re-edit it from an excellent impression, supplied to me by Dr. Hultzsch.

These are three copper-plates, the first and last of which are inscribed on one side only, and each of which measures about 7" broad by 2½" high. The plates have slightly raised rims,

⁶ I.e. ṭhakkura-.

⁷ Here three or four akṣharas are broken away.

⁸ Read -vidhēy(bhūya) dā-.

⁹ Here follow the four verses commencing Bhūmim gaḥ pratigrihṇāti, Śākhāṁ bhadr-dānaḥ, Gāma-śikṣā, and Shashṭim varsha-sahasraṇi.

¹⁰ Here and below I add the times of the reigns of the donors, from Dr. Fleet's account of the Eastern Chalukya dynasty in Ind. Ant. Vol. XX., to indicate in a general way the period to which each of the six inscriptions belongs.

and are strung on a ring which had not been cut yet when the impression was taken by Dr. Hultzsch. The ring is about $3\frac{1}{2}$ " in diameter and $\frac{3}{8}$ " thick, and has its ends secured in the base of an elliptical seal, about 2" by $1\frac{3}{4}$ " in diameter. The seal bears across its breadth the legend śrī-Tribhuvanakuṁḍa (for °nāṁkuṣa), with, below it, an expanded lotus flower, and, above it, the sun within the moon's crescent.—The writing, which is rather roughly engraved, is, on the whole, well preserved. The characters belong to the southern class of alphabets, and are of the regular type of the period and part of the country to which the inscription belongs. As regards individual letters, it may be stated that for kh (which occurs in pramukhān, l. 15, and in khaṇḍika, l. 21) and for b we have throughout the older square forms, and that, with perhaps one exception,¹ the older, not the later cursive, form is also used in the case of l. It may moreover be noted that the sign for b is generally open on the left (or proper right) side—a form of b, which is employed throughout already in the Chīpurupalle plates² of Viṣṇuvardhana I. of A.D. 632—and that occasionally a similarly open sign³ is used for j, e.g. in Dharmaj[ā]nuja, l. 11, and a(ā)jñaptir, l. 25. Final forms of consonants occur for n in pramukhān, l. 15, and perhaps for m in sva-datt[ā]m*, l. 27, and vasundharām, l. 28. The size of the letters is between $\frac{1}{8}$ " and $\frac{1}{4}$ ".—The language is Sanskrit and, with the exception of three verses at the end, the inscription is in prose. The text generally is plain, but contains a number of mistakes, due to carelessness of either the writer or the engraver. Whether the word kūṭaka, which in line 15 occurs in the place of the usual rāshṭrakūṭa, is correct or not, I am unable to decide. In respect of orthography, it may suffice to state that the Dravidian ḷ is used in kaḷadhauta, l. 12, and in the names Oḷaḷukyānām, l. 4, Paḷḷa-bhaṭṭ[ā]rak[ā*]ya*, l. 20, and Boḷarenḍuvaṭi, l. 24; that the sign of the medial ā is frequently omitted;⁴ and that the word padma is spelt patma, in line 9.

The inscription is one of the Eastern Chalukya Vijayāditya [II. Narēndramrigarāja], the son of Viṣṇuvardhana [IV.] and son's son of Vikramarāma (i.e., apparently, Vijayāditya I.). It records the grant, on the occasion of a solar eclipse, of part of the village of Va[ṇḍ]rupiṭe[y]lu in the Kanderuvādi-vishaya, to a Brāhmaṇ named Paḷḷa-bhaṭṭāraku, an inhabitant of Minamini. The Ājñapti (or dūtaka) of the grant was Boḷama.

The inscription is not dated. Of the localities, none of which have been identified, the Kanderuvādi (or °vāṭi) vishaya is mentioned in South-Ind. Inscr. Vol. I. p. 40, l. 43, and p. 45, l. 21, and was most probably mentioned also at the end of line 16 of the inscription published ibid. p. 33 and Ind. Ant. Vol. XX. p. 415, which mentions the villages of Va[ṇḍ]rupiṭe[y]u⁵ and Kōṅṇapaṇu (or °paṇṇu) of the present inscription.⁶ Below, p. 129, text l. 23, mention is made of the Uttarakanderuvādi vishaya.

² See Plate xxvii. of Dr. Burnell's South-Indian Palaeography. Occasionally the open form of the square b occurs also in other early Eastern as well as Western Chalukya inscriptions. It is met with also in Pallava and Eastern Gāṅga inscriptions, and is used throughout in the Chikkulla plates of Vikramēndravarmān II. (above, Vol. IV. p. 195), while in the Gōḍavari plates of Prithivimūla (Jour. Bo. As. Soc. Vol. XVI. p. 116) it occurs only once or perhaps twice, out of six times.

³ On the open j see below, p. 122.

⁶ With the name Boḷarenḍuvaṭi in line 24 of the present inscription one might compare Boḷu(tṇu)nāḍula in Ind. Ant. Vol. XIII. p. 186, ll. 18 and 21.

By Dr. Fleet (Ind. Ant. Vol. XX. p. 101) it was read Vamrupireya or Vamrupileya. The village is the same which, as situated west of Korrapattu (see below, l. 23), is mentioned in line 44 of the other known grant of Vijayāditya II., where the name by Dr. Hultzsch was read Vd[ā]r[ā]pe[dayā], and by Dr. Fleet Vdāṇḍapēdayā ; see *South-Ind. ABSTRACT OF CONTENTS.

The son's son of Vikramarāma (l. 5), who adorned the family of the Chalukyas (l. 4) who are of the Mānavya gōtra and are Hārītiputras (l. 1), and who obtained the success of victory (viṇaya-siddhi) in various battles :—

The dear son of the Mahārāja Viśṇuvardhana (l. 7) :—

The asylum of the whole world, Vijayāditya (l. 13), the Mahārājādhirāja, Paramēśvara and Bhāṭṭāraka, who is most devoted to religion and is victorious like (the god) Viśṇu, thus issues a command to all the cultivators, headed by the Kūṭakas, of the village of Va[ṇḍ]ru-piṭe[y]u in the Kaṇḍeruvāḍi-vishaya (l. 15) :—

"Be it known to you ! On the occasion of an eclipse of the sun (l. 20), a field in this village, the extent of which is such that it may be sown with kōdrava¹⁴ grain to the amount of twelve khaṇḍikas, (and ?) a dwelling-place have been given by Us, with exemption from all taxes, to the Brāhmaṇ Paḷla-bhaṭṭāraka, an inhabitant of Minamini (l. 17), who belongs to the Kāśyapa gōtra and Āpastamba sūtra, and is a student of the Taittiriya Vēda, a son of the student of three Vēdas Dōṇasārman and son's son of the student of three Vēdas Tūrkasārman."

The four boundaries are (l. 22) : On the east, the boundary-line of Korraparu ; on the south, a tank ; on the west, Rāmāti ; and on the north, Reṇḍuvaṭi (and ?) Boḷareṇḍuvaṭi.

⁶ Instead of khaṇḍika Mr. Nates Sastri read vēṇḍika ; the correct reading has been already given by Dr. Fleet, in Ind. Ant. Vol. XX. p. 106, note 20. Compare also ibid. Vol. XIII. p. 250, l. 27 of the text, rāja-mānasa dvādaśa-khaṇḍi(?) kōdrava-bīja-vdya-kshētram ; and Vol. XIV. p. 55, l. 116, dhanya-khaṇḍakāni.

⁷ The engraving is quite clear here, but I cannot read the akṣhara in these brackets with any confidence. The following sign of punctuation is superfluous. After dvādaśam one would have expected cha.

⁸ Read -paribhārikṛitya.

⁹ Instead of this one would have expected Tasya chatvdrō-vadhayaḥ, or only Tasya-dvadhayaḥ.

¹⁰ Apparently intended for Étte chatvdrō-vadhayaḥ.— I suspect that some similar phrase is intended in line 45 of the other grant of Vijayāditya II. (mentioned above, p. 120, note 10), where the published texts have cha[ṭurviśatīyā] dattā[ā]* and Éttēdm=ayya-ava(?)tta.

¹² Read -sagrahṇ.

¹³ Originally harēti appears to have been engraved ; read harēta.

¹⁴ Kōdrava is stated to be 'an inferior sort of grain, Paspalum frumentaceum.'

Lines 25-28 give the name of the Ajñapti, Boḷama, and contain two benedictive and imprecatory verses.

B.—MASULIPATAM (?) PLATES OF VIJAYĀDITYA III.

[A.D. 844-898.]

There is no definite information as to where these plates were found, or what became of them; but, judging from the dimensions, this may perhaps be a grant which is entered as follows in a memorandum of Sir Walter Elliot:—"5. Inscription on 5 plates, received from Mr. Porter, Collector of Masulipatam, 19th December 1846; Vijayāditya. Seal, a Boar, and Tribhuvanaṁkūṣa. Length $9\frac{1}{2}$; breadth, $3\frac{3}{8}$. Weight, 258 rupees." I edit the inscription¹ from Sir W. Elliot's own impressions, supplied to me by Dr. Fleet to whom I also owe the preceding information.

These apparently are five copper-plates, the first and last of which are inscribed on one side only, and each of which measures $9\frac{1}{2}$ " broad by about $3\frac{3}{8}$ " high. They were strung on a ring for which there is a hole on the proper right side of each plate. The writing on the original plates undoubtedly is well preserved, but the impressions contain some partially illegible passages, owing to the fact that many letters in the original are blocked up with hard rust, which was not cleaned out before taking the impressions.²—The writing is well done, and carefully engraved. The characters belong to the southern class of alphabets, of the time and part of the country to which the inscription belongs. As regards individual letters, the chief points to note are, that for kḥ and l everywhere the later, cursive forms are used, while for b we have the older square form; and that the signs for both b and j throughout are open on the left (or proper right) side. Of the open b I have spoken above, p. 119. The open j is used occasionally already³ in the Ēḍēru plates of Vijayāditya II. (above, p. 120), and in the Ahadanakaram plates of Viṣṇuvardhana V. (Ind. Ant. Vol. XIII. p. 186, e.g. in kanadirajul, l. 30). It is also found now and then, more or less developed, in Eastern Ganga inscriptions, e.g. in lines 1 and 2 of the Chicacole plates of Indravarman of the year 146 (?) and in line 25 of the Vizagapatam plates of Dēvēndravarma of the year 254 (ibid. Vol. XIII. p. 123, and Vol. XVIII. p. 144); and it occurs pretty frequently in the Chikkulla plates of Vikramēndravarma II. (above, Vol. IV. p. 195), which have also the open b. And both the open j and the open b are used throughout in the two Bāpa inscriptions, published in Ind. Ant. Vol. X. p. 39, which therefore, in this respect, come nearer to the present inscription than any other records examined by me.⁴ Of final consonants which are not joined with a following letter our inscription only contains t (in kēnachit, l. 29) and n (in pramukhān, l. 18, pārtthivēndrān,

² Excepting the word which precedes the name Térkkāḍarmmaṣaḥ in line 20, and one or two akṣaras in the names of villages, the illegible passages cause little difficulty.

³ I do not venture to quote with confidence the Nellore district plates of Viṣṇuvardhana II. of A.D. 664 (Ind. Ant. Vol. VII. p. 186), where the open j seems to occur in Bāradvāja, l. 14, and vaṣṣukā-ajūḍa, l. 67.—The Tables in Dr. Burnell's and Prof. Bühler's works on Indian palaeography contain no specimen of the open j.

⁴ On the Plate facing page 167 of Ind. Ant. Vol. X. there are photolithographs of two short Paṭṭadākal inscriptions, one of which has the ordinary open j (consisting of three separate lines), while the other furnishes an instance of that peculiar form of the open j, which has a vertical line in the middle and three horizontal lines to the right of the vertical line. The origin of the latter form of j, which, together with the ordinary open j, is used e.g. in the spurious Merkara plates (ibid. Vol. I. p. 362), is well shown by the different forms of j, employed in the Chicacole plates of Dēvēndravarma (ibid. Vol. XIII. p. 275; compare the different forms of j in e.g. Nḍgardja, l. 23, nija, l. 7, and vijaya, l. 1). The origin of the later, cursive j, in my opinion, is equally well shown by some forms of j in the Alamāṇḍa plates of Anantavarman of the year 304 (above, Vol. III. p. 18; compare the forms of j in e.g. jṛṣita-jaya, l. 6, and nija, l. 8). Perhaps I may state here that a form of j, which comes very near indeed to the later cursive j, is used already in the grant of Ativarman (Ind. Ant. Vol. IX. p. 103, e.g. in jama, l. 3, and yajus, l. 6), which shows an early form of the Grantha alphabet and is, in my opinion, not later than A.D. 650.

l. 33, pratīpavān, l. 35, and śrīmān, l. 38). Of these two, t is denoted by the ordinary sign for ta, and na by a slightly smaller form of the ordinary sign for na, with the sign of virāma, which hardly differs from the sign of the superscript r, placed above them. The size of the letters is between $\frac{1}{2}$ and $\frac{1}{4}$.—The language is Sanskrit. In addition to four benedictive and imprecatory verses and two others which give the names of the Ajñapti and the writer, the text contains five verses eulogizing the donor and his predecessors and the donee; the rest is in prose. Verse 3 does not admit of a proper construction, and in verse 5 an essentially necessary word is omitted. The orthography calls for no remarks.

The inscription is one of the Eastern Chalukya Vijayāditya [III. Gupaka], the son of Vishnuvardhana [V.] who was the son of Vijayāditya [II. Narēndramṣṭigārāja], here also called Chālukya-Ārjuna. It records that, apparently as a reward for advice which was given in the matter of the defeat of an enemy named Maṅgi, the king, on the occasion of a lunar eclipse, granted the village of Tṛaṇḍa[pa]ru in the Gudravāra-vishaya to the Brāhmaṇ Vinayaḍisārman, a son of Dāmōdaraśarman and son's son of Tūrkaśarman who was an inhabitant of Urpuṭūru. The Ajñapti of the grant was Pāṇḍarāṅga (whose name occurs again below, p. 130, text l. 46, where a grandson of his is mentioned), and the writer Kaṭṭa[y]a.

The inscription is not dated. Of the localities, none of which have been identified, the Gudravāra vishaya is also mentioned below,¹ p. 137, text l. 22, and in South-Ind. Inscr. Vol. I. p. 48, l. 25. Below, p. 141, l. 22, the name of the district is spelt Gudrāvāra; and an earlier form of the name is Gudrahāra, in Ind. Ant. Vol. XIII. p. 138, l. 17, and Vol. VII. p. 191, l. 12, and a later one Guddavādi, ibid. Vol. XIV. p. 53, l. 77, and Vol. XIX. p. 431, l. 79.² The name of the village of Urpuṭūru³ occurs ibid. Vol. XX. p. 416, ll. 25 and 35.

On the rather scanty pieces of historical information furnished by the inscription compare Dr. Fleet, ibid. Vol. XX. pp. 100-103, and Dr. Hultzsch, above, Vol. IV. p. 226.

Since writing the above, I have been able to examine impressions, kindly sent to me by Dr. Hultzsch, of the inscription (or inscriptions) on the Madras Museum plates described in Mr. Sewell's Lists of Antiquities, Vol. II. p. 24, No. 174. I find that lines 1-38 of these plates contain a complete inscription of a Chōḷa chief named Śrīkaṇṭha, who is recorded to have given the village of Mandara to the god Śiva (under the name of Prēṭīśvara ?); and that in this inscription, exactly as is the case in the inscription B, here edited, the letters j and ḍ throughout are denoted by the ordinary open j and the open ḍ, while for kā and l the later cursive signs are used.—As Mr. Sewell has not been well served by his native assistant, I may mention that the inscription referred to—it is rather carelessly written—gives the following line of chiefs, who are said to belong to the family of the Chōḷa Karikāla: Sundarananda, Navarāma, Ereyamma, Vijayakāma, Virārjuna, Agrapipidugu (!), Kōkīji, Mahēndravarman, Elajōḷa (!), Nripakāma, Divākara, and Śrīkaṇṭha who is described as Chōḷa-kularya Edmaḥ. The inscription is not dated, and contains no historical information except what may be furnished by the given names.

⁵ This sign of visarga was originally omitted.

⁶ The general sense of the verse is, that beauty and the rest eagerly pay homage to the king, aware that even the moon etc. would not be so suitable a home for them; but the verse, in my opinion, does not admit of a proper construction.

⁷ Here, and in other places below, the rules of sandhi have not been observed.

⁸ The akshara which precedes the syllable śya is quite illegible.

ABSTRACT OF CONTENTS.

The asylum of the whole world, the Mahârâja Vijayâditya (l. 6), who adorned the family of the Châlukyas (l. 5) who are of the Mânavya gôtra and are Hâritiputras (l. 1), was a fire of destruction to the Gaṅga family, and, as he broke the frenzy of the Kali age, was named Châluky-Ârjuna (l. 7).

² Over the akshara dhâ the vowel i has been engraved, but it seems to have been struck out again.

³ The subject of the sentence apparently is Vijayâdityaḥ, which must be supplied from the context.

⁵ Metro: Ślôka (Anushubh).

⁶ Metro: Âryâ.

⁷ Metro: Sâlini.

⁸ Metro: Brâgharâ.

⁹ The letter in brackets may possibly be m.

¹⁰ The aksharas in these brackets are doubtful.

(V. 1.) Valorous like a lion, he with his unsheathed sharp sword split open (the frontal globes¹ of) the lordly elephants—his adversaries; the fire of his wrath is not extinguished unless it is sprinkled with the tears of the sorrow-stricken wives of his enemies.

His dear son was the asylum of all mankind, the Mahārāja Viṣṇuvardhana (l. 10).

(V. 2.) When he ascends his elephant, his enemies ascend the mountain-tops; when his arm takes the sword, the hands of the young women of his adversaries take up the chowries; when he knits his brows, the black bees² make honey in the palace of his adversary; when the war-drum is sounded in his abode, the jackals howl in the abode of his opponent.

His dear son—who³ excels the moon in beauty, the earth in endurance, the tree of paradise in generosity, the sun in splendour, the lion in bravery, and the sea in greatness of disposition—the asylum of the whole world, the Mahārāja Vijayāditya (l. 17), thus issues a command to all the cultivators, headed by the Rāshtrakūṭas, in the Gudravāra-vishaya :—

"Be it known to you! On the occasion of an eclipse of the moon (l. 27), the village of Traṇḍa[pa?]ru (l. 28) has been given by Us, with exemption from all taxes, to the Taittiriya householder Vinayaḍisārman (l. 27), a son of Dāmōdaraśarman and son's son of the inhabitant of Urpuṭūru (l. 19), the . . . ⁴ Tūrkaśarman, who belongs to the Kausika gōtra and Āpastamba sūtra.

(V. 4.) He has conquered the host of the six enemies⁵ of mankind who have subdued all the world; when she came to him, the Glory of holiness forgot even the lotus-born Brahman; ⁶ in his society the assemblage of virtues find pleasure,⁷ such as they have nowhere experienced; true to his word, he in jest even does not give utterance to false speech.

(V. 5.) When on the field of battle, strewn with horses, soldiers and infuriated elephants that were struck down by various weapons, (the king⁸) had slain Maṅgi, who had defeated the whole host of hostile chiefs and in the excess of his fury had ridiculed the king's liberality, bravery and power, he was well pleased with the marvellous advice of this best one of the twice-born."

The boundaries are (l. 28) : On the east and south, Aṅgalūru; on the west, Velpūru; and on the north, Chavi[ṭa?]paṛu.

The rest of the inscription warns the people not to obstruct this grant; quotes three benedictive and imprecatory verses, ascribed to Vyāsa; (in verse 9) gives the name of the Ājñapti of the grant, Pāṇḍarāṅga, who for his prowess and valour in war is compared to Bibhatsu, i.e. Arjuna; (in v. 10) contains a prayer for the welfare of the people and the progress of religion; and (in v. 11) records that this edict (śāsana), by order of the king Vijayāditya, was written by the foremost of goldsmiths, Kaṭṭa[y]a, the son of Mādhava and son's son of Iśāna.

² The presence of the black bees in the palace of the enemy as well as the howling of the jackals portend evil. Compare Harṣacharita, Bombay ed., pp. 180 and 181, vaidīrīśīvaśāśaṁ rājayaḥ babhṛdmo bhāḍmarāṁ paṭālam.

⁶ The original has: Paṅkṛuṣabhaḥ; compare, e.g., Ambhājadhava and Jalajadhava in Ind. Ant. Vol. XII. p. 92, l. 40, and p. 93, l. 46.

⁷ According to the dictionaries, the word jōśha, in classical Sanskrit, would seem to be used only as an adverb, in the form jōśham; but it occurs as a substantive, in the sense of sukha, e.g. in Harṣacharita, Bombay ed., p. 159, l. 8.

C.—BEZVĀḌA PLATES OF CHĀLUKYA-BHĪMA I.

These plates were found¹ on the 25th June 1897 in the rock-hewn chamber of the quarry-compound at Bezvāḍa, in the Kistna district of the Madras Presidency, and were sent to Dr. Hultzsch by Mr. J. K. Batten, I.C.S., the Acting Collector of the Kistna district. I edit the inscription which they contain from an excellent impression, supplied to me by Dr. Hultzsch.

These are five copper-plates, each of which measures about 7" broad by 3" high. Plates 2-5 are inscribed on both sides, but the writing on the second side of the fifth plate is less than half a line. The first plate is inscribed on the second side only, and on the first side contains, from the proper right to the left, representations of a conch-shell, the sun, and a club.—With perhaps the exception of the first plate, the plates are quasi-palimpsests. On the plates 2-4 the writing which had first been engraved on them is well beaten in, so that only few traces of it remain; but on both sides of the fifth plate the original writing is still so clearly seen that much of it may be made out without any difficulty. The characters of this original writing closely resemble those which were afterwards engraved on the plates; and this, together with the fact that the words at the bottom of the second side of the fifth plate are sa sarvaśōkātṛayaśrī-Vishṇuvarddhana-ma[hārā],² in my opinion, leaves no doubt that these plates originally were used for another grant of Bhīma I., which either was not completed or for some reason or other was cancelled.—The plates have high rims, and are strung on a ring, which had not been cut yet when this record came into Dr. Hultzsch's hands. The ring is about $4\frac{1}{2}$ " in diameter and $\frac{3}{8}$ " thick, and has its ends secured in the back of a circular seal, about $2\frac{1}{4}$ " in diameter. The seal bears, in relief, the legend śrī-Tribhuvan[ā]mukutāḥ*, with a flower below it, and, above it, a couchant boar which faces to the proper left and is surmounted by the sun and the moon's crescent, while behind it is an elephant-goad.—The writing is well preserved throughout. The characters belong to the southern class of alphabets, of the time and part of the country to which the inscription belongs. As regards individual letters, kh, j, b and l are denoted throughout by the later, cursive signs; but for the initial i (in Indra, l. 8) we have here still the earlier form, consisting of two horizontal dots with a wavy line above them. Of special signs for final consonants the inscription only contains one, for n (in dattavān, l. 21, but not in pratāpavān, l. 46); and of letters which occur more rarely, the initial ṭ, ai and ō (in Īśānataḥ and Āśvīyagunṭha, l. 32, and ōm, l. 1). The size of the letters is about $\frac{3}{16}$ ".—The language is Sanskrit, except that some Telugu words occur in the proper names. In addition to five benedictive and imprecatory verses, the text contains one verse referring to the donor and another which gives the name of the Ājñapti; the rest is in prose, but in lines 15 and 17 reads as if the official who drew up the grant had had verses before him. The text is full of minor mistakes. In respect of orthography, it will suffice to note the doubling, before y, of t in Sattyaśṛaya, l. 6, and Vijayāditya, l. 13, of n in tānny=ēva, l. 37, and of l in nirmāllya, l. 44; the doubling of s before kh in yaśaskarāni, l. 44; the doubling of m after anusvāra in iśāhām mmayā, l. 40; the employment of t and d for the corresponding aspirates in sapṛārtitō (for saṃprārtitō), l. 21, pārtivēndrān, l. 42, dharmaṃrta, l. 44, and sāduḥ, l. 45; and the use of the palatal for the dental sibilant in śaśatrāni, l. 36.

The inscription is one of the Eastern Chālukya Bhīma [I.] Vishṇuvardhana (usually called Chālukya-Bhīma³), of whom no other inscription has yet been found. After having stated (in verse), in a general way, that at the time of his coronation (paṭṭabandha) king Bhīma gave away a village in perpetuity, it formally records that the Mahārājādhirāja Vishṇuvardhana granted the village of Kūkiparru in the Uttarakandervāḍi-vishaya to a student of the kramapāṭha named Pôtamayya, who (or whose grandfather) was an inhabitant¹ of Ummarakaṇṭhibôl. The Ājñapti of the grant was Kaḍeyarāja (a grandson of the Pāṇḍarāṅga of the preceding inscription), and the writer Koṇḍāchārya.²

See line 21 of the text of the present inscription.

² See Dr. Fleet in Ind. Ant. Vol. XX. p. 103.

The inscription is not dated. The localities mentioned in it have not been identified.³

It may be noticed that, up to the present, this is the earliest record which gives the full historical genealogy, with the lengths of the reigns,⁴ and that this grant for Bhīma I. gives the second name Vishṇuvardhana.

⁵ From impressions supplied by Dr. Hultzsch.

⁷ Originally 'maṇḍa' seems to have been engraved; read 'lāṇm-'.
⁸ Here, and with similar accusative cases below, we have to supply a verb meaning 'he reigned.'

¹⁰ Read -anuj-Ēndra-.

¹¹ Read 'viṁśatiṁ saṁ.'

¹² Read 'saśāṇi.'

¹³ Read śa.

¹⁴ Read sv-ānujam.

¹⁵ Read 'sataṁ samāh.'

¹⁶ Here, and in other places below, the rules of saṁdhi have not been observed.

¹⁷ Read 'sataṁ=abddni.'

¹⁸ Read taṁ sa.

²⁰ Read -samāh.

¹⁰ See Dr. Fleet in Ind. Ant. Vol. XX. p. 100

¹¹ I do not see the exact force of this statement. In another inscription Bhima is called śaucha-Kaṇḍarpa, 'in purity the god of love'; see Ind. Ant. Vol. XIII. p. 249, l. 14.

The boundaries are (l. 29): On the east, the Pôtaryāṅgari-cheruvu (tank); on the south-east, the Paruvula-guṇṭa (tank); on the south, the Chāki-cheruvu (tank); on the south-west, the boundary-line of (P)¹; on the west, the Chintareni-cheruvu (tank); on the north-west, the Juvvi-guṇṭa (tank); and on the north and north-east, the Airiviya-guṇṭa (tank).

The rest of the inscription warns the people not to obstruct this grant; quotes five benedictive and imprecatory verses, ascribed to Vyāsa; (in verse 7) gives the name of the Ājñapti of the grant, Kadeyarāja, whose grandfather was Pāṇḍarāṅga; and records the name of the writer, Koṇḍāchārya.

D.—MASULIPATAM PLATES OF AMMA I.

These plates were found, some twenty years ago, in the vernacular record room of the Collector's office at Masulipatam, in the Kistna district of the Madras Presidency, and they are preserved now in the Madras Museum. The inscription which they contain has been already published, by Mr. R. Sewell, in the Indian Antiquary, Vol. VIII. p. 77 ff.;² I re-edit it from an excellent impression, taken and supplied to me by Dr. Fleet.

These are three copper-plates, the first and last of which are inscribed on one side only, and each of which measures about 8 $\frac{3}{4}$ " broad by 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ " high. The plates have raised rims, and are strung on a ring which had been cut before this record came into Dr. Fleet's hands in the year 1884. The ring is about 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ " in diameter and $\frac{1}{2}$ " thick; it is joined to a circular seal which is about 3 $\frac{1}{4}$ " in diameter. The seal bears, in relief on a slightly countersunk surface, the legend śrī-Tribhuvan[ā]mkuśa*; below the legend, a floral device; immediately above the legend, a boar, standing and facing to the proper right; and above the boar, an elephant-goat surmounted by the moon's crescent. With the exception of a small part of the first plate the writing of which is somewhat corroded, the plates are well preserved.—The writing and engraving are good. The characters belong to the southern class of alphabets, of the time and part of the country to which the inscription belongs. For kh, j, b and l we have throughout the later, cursive signs. The initial i does not occur in the text. Of the three final consonants which occur, n and m are denoted by special signs (in māsān, ll. 9 and 13, trīṃśatam, ll. 10 and 11, and chatvāriṃśatam, ll. 12 and 14), while for t the ordinary sign for ta is used, with the sign of virāma above it (in Kumāravat, l. 27, and anīś(na)śat, l. 29). The size of the letters is about $\frac{1}{3}$ ".—The language is Sanskrit. Besides two benedictive and imprecatory verses, the text contains eight verses treating of the donor and the donee and their ancestors; the rest is in prose. In respect of orthography, it may be noted that the rules of samdhī have been frequently neglected, and that there is a fairly large number of other minor mistakes, omissions of letters, etc. A special point which may be drawn attention to is, that after an anusvāra a consonant is doubled³ in Maṅggi, l. 8, Vēṅggi and Trikaliṅga, l. 17, pañchavāriṃśatiḥ, l. 8, kiṃchoka, l. 30, and in vatsarāṇām nrija-, l. 16, but not in other places where the same rule might have been followed.

The inscription is one of the Eastern Chalukya Ammarāja [I.] Vishṇuvardhana. It records that the king granted the village of Drujjūru in the Pennātavāḍi-vishaya to Mahākāla, a general, and son of a foster-sister, of (Ammarāja's grandfather) Chālukya-Bhima (or Bhīma I.). The Ājñapti of the grant was (the P)⁴ Kaṭakarāja.

The inscription is not dated. Of the localities, the Pennātarāḍi vishaya is mentioned also in Ind. Ant. Vol. VII. p. 16, l. 39. The village of Drujjūru has by Mr. Sewell been identified¹ with the village of Zuzzūru in the Nandigūma tāluka of the Kistna district, the 'Joodjoor' of the Indian Atlas, map 75, long. 80° 28' E., lat. 16° 44' N. Mr. Sewell may be right, but, excepting 'Gootemookola' which may be Gottiprōlu, I do not find the names of the villages which in the inscription are said to form the boundaries of Drujjūru, anywhere near the 'Joodjoor' of the map.²

ABSTRACT OF CONTENTS.

Commencing with the words 'May the whole world be blessed !,'¹ lines 1-14 give the genealogy, with the lengths of the reigns, as far as the Mahārāja Vijayāditya, the son of Kali-Vishṇuvardhana, in substantially the same manner² as the preceding inscription C.

(V. 1.) From his (i.e. Vijayāditya's) younger brother, the Yuvarāja Vikramāditya, sprang that mighty fire-brand to the cotton—the host of his adversaries, the incomparable king Bhima, who filled the horizon with the fame of his many excellent qualities for thirty years.

His son Vijayāditya (l. 17) went to heaven when he had ruled the Vēṅgi-maṇḍala, joined with the Trikaliṅga forest, for six months.

(Vs. 2-4.) To him was born a son, able to bear the burden of the earth, king Ammarāja, who rules the whole surface of the earth. The kings in a body have resorted to the shade of his lotus-feet; the bow with which he chastises his enemies is glorified in the three worlds.³ Even the *Vidyādhari*s sing to the lute his fame which, white like the jasmine and the moon, has reddened⁴ the surface of the earth, the fame of him whose enemies have perished.

He, the asylum of all mankind, the Mahārāja Vishṇuvardhana (l. 22), having called together all the cultivators, headed by the Rāshtrakūṭas, who inhabit the Pennātavāḍi-vishaya, thus issues a command to them :—

"Be it known to you !

(Vs. 5-8.) King Chālukya-Bhima had a foster-mother, named Nāgipōti; she was (to him) like a second earth, like a warrior endowed with endurance. She had a daughter, named Gāmakāmbā, like unto Ambikā,⁵ who drank her mother's milk, sharing it with king Bhima. She brought forth a son, endowed with strength⁶ like Kumāra, the high-spirited Mahākāla, (who became) a general of king Bhima. In battle where fire is produced by the clashing together of the opponents' arms, going before his master, this brave one more than once has annihilated the enemy's army.

To him the village of Drujjūru (l. 31) has been given by Us, with exemption from all taxes."

The boundaries are (l. 32) : On the east, the boundary-line of Tālugummi; on the south, the boundary-line of Goṭṭiprōlu; on the west, the boundary-line of Malkapōramu; and on the north, the boundary-line of Adupu.

The rest of the inscription warns the people not to obstruct this grant; quotes two benedictive and imprecatory verses, ascribed to Vyāsa; and records that (the ?) Kaṭakarāja was the Ājñapti (of this grant).

E.—MASULIPATAM (?) PLATES OF CHĀLUKYA-BHĪMA II.

[A.D. 934-945.]

These plates belonged to Sir Walter Elliot, and are now in the British Museum. From a rather illegible label on the original, they seem to have been obtained through Mr. J. C. Norris from Masulipatam. I edit the inscription which they contain from Sir W. Elliot's own impressions, supplied to me by Dr. Fleet.⁷

¹ Instead of this, the other known grant of Amma I., published in South-Ind. Inscr. Vol. I. p. 39 ff., has an Aushṭubh verse, conveying the same meaning.

³ Maṇḍala-traya (the bhū-maṇḍala, gagaṇa-m°, and dyu-m°.) is equivalent to tri-lōka.

⁴ Or 'has gladdened the inhabitants of the earth.'

⁷ Compare Dr. Fleet in Ind. Ant. Vol. XX. p. 270, N.

These are three copper-plates, the first and last of which are inscribed on one side only, and each of which measures about 7½" broad by 3¼" high. They have high rims, and are strung on a ring, about 4¼" in diameter and ⅜" thick, which had been cut already when the original came under Dr. Fleet's notice. To the ring is attached a circular seal which is about 2¼" in diameter. It bears, in relief on a countersunk surface, across the centre, the legend śrī-Tribhuvānāṅkuṣa; above the legend, the sun and moon, two sceptres (or perhaps lamp-stands, or chowries), an elephant-goad, and a boar, standing and facing to the proper left; and below the legend, a conch-shell and a floral device. The engraving is good; the letters throughout shew marks of the working of the tool.—The writing for the greater part is well preserved; but sides i, ii and iii, towards the ends of the lines, have been subjected to the action of fire or some corrosive fluid, and in a few places the first and third plates are corroded right through. The characters belong to the southern class of alphabets, of the time and part of the country to which the inscription belongs. The consonants throughout have the later, cursive forms, and the later form is used also in the case of the initial i (in ittham. l. 22). The sign of the medial au is very similar to one of the signs of the medial o, so that it is difficult to distinguish between the two signs. Special signs are used for the final u (in māsūn, ll. 9 and 15), and m (in trīṃśatam, l. 7, viṃśatim, l. 8, etc.), but not for the final t (in pūlayat, ll. 7 and 17), which is denoted by the ordinary sign for ta, with the sign of virāma above it. The size of the letters is about ⅓". The language is Sanskrit, except that one or two Telugu words occur in the description of the boundaries, in lines 32 and 33. In line 28 we have the unusual word pañcha-vāri, the meaning of which apparently is similar to that of the more common pañcha-kula. Besides two benedictive and imprecatory verses, the text contains nine verses treating of the donor and the donee; the rest is in prose. The grant has been written out somewhat carelessly, and in lines 8 and 9 contains two grossly incorrect statements. In respect of orthography, too, the text shews a fairly large number of mistakes, owing to the disregard of the rules of saṃdhi, the omission of single letters and whole syllables, etc.

The inscription is one of the Eastern Chālukya Chālukya-Bhima [II.] Vishnuvardhana, but the first of these two names does not actually occur in the text, which describes the king only as 'the son of Mēlāmbā and Vijayāditya.' It records that the king, on the occasion of the sun's progress to the north, granted a field at the village of Ākulamannaṇḍu in the Gudravāra-vishaya to a student of the kramapāṭha named Viddamayya, a son of the Sōma-sacrificer Mādhava, who was a son of Tyākkiya, a student of the kramapāṭha and inhabitant of Vaṅgiparru. No Ājñapti is mentioned.

The inscription is not dated. Of the localities, the Gudravāra vishaya has been spoken of above, p. 123. The village of Vaṅgiparru is mentioned also in Ind. Ant. Vol. XX. p. 416, l. 26 ff.; perhaps it is 'Vaṅgipuram, Indian Atlas, map 76, long 80° 27' E., lat. 16° 8' N. Ākulamannaṇḍu, as Dr. Fleet points out to me, is the 'Aukulmanaud' of map 95, long. 81° 10' E., lat. 16° 15' N.

The donee of this grant, Viddamayya,¹ is the donee also of the Pāganavaram grant of Chālukya-Bhima II., published ibid. Vol. XIII. p. 213 ff., in which (in line 49) the name of his father's father is given as Tūrkama (not Tyākkiya).

¹ Read bhagavan.² Instead of the akshara rd, kā was originally engraved.³ The cognate inscriptions have pavitrikṛita instead of pavitrita.⁴ This is a mistake for trayōdaśa.⁵ This is a mistake for tad-dvaimśtur-dnujaḥ or tad-avarajaḥ.⁶ After this one would have expected the word varshāni.⁷ Here, and in other places below, the rules of sandhi have not been observed.⁸ The same reading (rdjas=sd in which the sa, prefixed to aśṭā,⁹ is quite out of place) we have in Ind. Ant. Vol. XIII. p. 249, l. 11, and it was perhaps intended in South-Ind. Inscr. Vol. I. p. 47, l. 12. Instead of it, we have rdjas=ch=sd (the cha of which is superfluous) in Ind. Ant. Vol. VII. p. 16, l. 12; Vol. XII. p. 92, l. 14; Vol. XIV. p. 52, l. 41; above, Vol. IV. p. 306, l. 40; and below, p. 140, l. 10. Both the sa and the cha are omitted in Ind. Ant. Vol. XIII. p. 213, l. 16 (in one of the earliest inscriptions which give 48 years as the duration of the king's reign); Vol. XIX. p. 429, l. 37; and Vol. XIV. p. 66, l. 13.⁹ This sign of punctuation is superfluous.¹⁰ Metre of verses 1-11: Ślōka (Anuṣṭubh).¹¹ Read n=dyatra.

ABSTRACT OF CONTENTS.

Kubja-Vishṇuvardhana (1. 6)—the brother of Satyāśraya-vallabhēndra, who adorned the family of the Chālukyas (1. 5) who are of the Mānavya gôtra and are Hārītiputras (1. 1)—ruled over the Veṅg[i]-maṇḍala for eighteen years; his son Jayasimha (1. 7) for thirty-three (years); Vishṇuvardhana (1. 7), the son of his younger brother Indra-rāja, for nine (years); his son Maṅgi-yuvarāja (1. 8) for twenty-five (years); his son Jayasimha (1. 8) for thirty-three⁸ (years); his son⁹ Kokkili (1. 9) for six months; having expelled him, his eldest brother Vishṇuvardhana (1. 9) (ruled) for thirty-seven (years); his son Vijayāditya-bhaṭṭāraka (1. 10)

³ Compare South-Ind. Inscr. Vol. I. p. 45, l. 28.

⁴ This sign of punctuation is superfluous; it may have been struck out already in the original.

⁶ Between krama and kshétram about seven aksharas are illegible.

⁷ Read s-aiva.

⁸ This should have been 'thirteen.'

⁹ This should have been 'his younger brother from a different mother' or simply 'his younger brother.'

for eighteen (years); his son Vishṇuvardhana (l. 11) for thirty-six (years); his son Vijayāditya-Narēndramṣṭigārāja (l. 11) for forty-eight¹ (years); his son Kali-Vishṇuvardhana (l. 12) for one year and a half; his son, the Mahārāja Guṇaka-Vijayāditya (l. 13), for forty-four (years); Chālukya-Bhima (l. 14), the son of his younger brother, the Yuvarāja Vikramāditya, for thirty (years); his son Vijayāditya (l. 14) for six months; his eldest son Amma-rāja (l. 15) for seven years; having expelled his son Vijayāditya, who had been inaugurated with the necklet and by the tying on of the tiara,² (and who was still) a child, Tāh-ādhipa (l. 16) (ruled) for one month; (and) Vikramāditya-rāja (l. 17), the son of Chālukya-Bhima, ruled the earth for eleven months.³

(Vs. 1-3.)⁴ (Now) the son of Mēlāmbā and Vijayāditya protects the earth, having tied on the hereditary tiara. He has uprooted the haughty adversaries and reinstated his relatives.

He, the asylum of all mankind, Vishṇuvardhana (l. 21), the Mahārājādhirāja and Paramēśvara, who is most devoted to religion, having called together the cultivators, headed by the śāśtrakūṭas, who inhabit the Gudravāra-vishaya, thus issues a command to them (l. 23):—

“Be it known to you (l. 32)!

(Vs. 4-9.) There was an inhabitant of the great village of Vaṅgiparru, Tyākkiya, a student of the kramapāṭha, of the Gautama lineage.⁵ His son was Mādhava, a Sōma-sacrificer, devoted to Janārdana (Vishṇu). His son, again, is Viddamayya, a student of the kramapāṭha, eminent in religious learning and full of manliness; whose hospitality purifies the family to the seventh generation;⁶ whose⁷ sons and grandsons, youths eloquent at committee-assemblies, are honoured by the chief people who have made them serve on the committee of five; who engages in holy performances, follows Manu's guidance, and is not weary of repeating the Vēdas and the syllable ōm.

To him (l. 29), on the occasion of the sun's progress to the north, has been given by Us, with exemption from all taxes, the field in the western quarter of the village of

² This seems to me to indicate that Vijayāditya had been inaugurated both as Yuvarāja and as king, the former by the necklet and the latter by the tying on of the tiara (paṭṭabandha). At any rate, there can be no doubt that the kanṭhikā and the paṭṭabandha are two separate insignia. Regarding the necklet (kanṭhikā) as a sign of the wearer having been appointed Yuvarāja, compare South-Ind. Inscr. Vol. I. p. 47, l. 14, where Vikramāditya, who in five other inscriptions is called Yuvarāja, is described as vilasat-kanṭhikāddama-kanṭha, ‘one on whose neck there was the glittering necklace;’ and see the passages quoted by Dr. Fleet in Ind. Ant. Vol. XX. p. 103, note 27. In Bāṇa's Kādambarī, Nirṇaya-Sāgara Press ed. p. 223, it is said of Chandrāpīḍa, immediately after his inauguration as Yuvarāja, that he was abhishēka-darśanārtham-āgatēna saptaśī-maṇḍalēn-ēva hārēn-āḷṅgita vakṣahēkhalah, ‘his breast was embraced by the pearl-necklace, which was like the constellation of the seven Rishis, come there to view the inauguration-ceremony.’ On the other hand, ibid. p. 214, the paṭṭabandha (in the shape of the ushnisha) is enumerated among the insignia which are bestowed at the inauguration of kings. Compare also l. 18 of the text of this inscription.—Six of the published inscriptions state merely that Vijayāditya was expelled while he was still a boy.

⁶ Compare, e.g., Ind. Ant. Vol. VI. p. 29, l. 10 of the text of the inscription.

Ākulamannaṇḍu, which¹ Dāmōdara, a student of the kramapāṭha because he is his grandson."

The boundaries are (l. 32): On the east, a large rivulet;² on the south, a rivulet; on the west, the boundary-line of Kraṇkaṭavvā; and on the north, the same.

The rest of the inscription warns the people not to obstruct this grant, and quotes two benedictive and imprecatory verses.

F.—MASULIPATAM PLATES OF AMMA II.

[A.D. 945-970.]

These plates also were found, some twenty years ago, in the vernacular record room of the Collector's office at Masulipatam, and are now in the Madras Museum. The inscription which they contain has been already published, by Mr. R. Sewell, in the Indian Antiquary, Vol. VIII. p. 74 ff.;³ I re-edit it from two excellent impressions, taken and supplied to me by Dr. Fleet.

These are three copper-plates, the first and last of which are inscribed on one side only, and each of which measures about 8½" broad by 3½" high. They have high, very sharp rims, and are strung on a ring, about 4½" in diameter and ⅜" thick, which had been cut already before this record came under Dr. Fleet's notice in the year 1884. To the ring is attached a circular seal, about 2¾" in diameter. It bears, in relief on a countersunk surface, across the centre, the legend śrī-Tri[bbh]uvanāṁkuśa; above the legend, a boar, standing and facing to the proper right, and surmounted by the sun; in front of the boar, a conch-shell with the moon above it; and behind the boar, an elephant-goad; and below the legend, a floral device.—The writing is good, and generally in an excellent state of preservation; but a small piece of the first plate is broken off at the lower proper right corner, causing the loss of two akṣaras, which can be easily supplied. The characters belong to the southern class of alphabets, of the time and part of the country to which the inscription belongs. With regard to individual letters,⁴ it is sufficient to state that a special sign is used only for the final n (in māsān, ll. 8, 13 and 15, ḍḍhatān, l. 16, and dattavān, l. 25). The size of the letters is between ⅓" and ¼".—The language is Sanskrit, except that several Telugu words are used in the description of the boundaries, in lines 26-30. Besides one benedictory verse, four verses occur in the genealogical part of the text; the rest is in prose. The orthography does not call for any special remarks.

The inscription is one of the Eastern Chālukya Ammarāja [II.] Vijayāditya, also called Rāja-mahēndra. It records⁵ that the king granted some fields at the village of Pāmbaṛṇu in

² According to Campbell's Teloogoo Dictionary the Telugu word kōḍu means 'a rivulet, the branch of a river;' in Kanarese, the same word means 'the peak or top of a bill.'

³ Compare also Dr. Fleet in Ind. Ant. Vol. XX. p. 271, Q.

⁴ I am doubtful about the form of the initial i which occurs towards the end of line 25. It has not come out clearly in the impressions.

the Gudrāvāra-vishaya to the Yuvarāja Ball[ā]lādēva-Vēlābhata,¹ also called Boddiya, the son of (the lady) Pammavā (of) the Paṭṭavardhini (family).² No Ājñapti is mentioned.

The inscription is not dated. Of the localities, the Gudrāvāra vishaya has been spoken of above, p. 123; the villages which are mentioned I am unable to identify.³

He,² the asylum of the whole world, Vijayâditya (l. 21) the Mahârâja, the Râjâdhirâja,³ Paramêśvara and Paramabhâṭṭâraka, thus issues a command to all the cultivators, headed by the Râshṭrakûṭas, who inhabit the Gudrâvâra-vishaya:—

Now to the son of that (lady of the) Paṭṭavardhini (family), named Pamnavâ, viz. to the Yuvarâja Ball[â]ladêva-Vêlâbhata, named Boḍḍiya, Ammarâja Râjamahendra⁴ gave the Nômi field (and) the Pûṭasu[pa]ri[ya?] field in the southern quarter of the village of Pâmbaṭṭu.

The boundaries of these two fields are (l. 25): [of the first field], on the east, the Inda[ni]-cheṭuvu (tank); on the south, the field of Raṭṭ[ô]ḍi; on the west, the margin of the field of Su[gu?]mmâ; and on the north, the pannasa east of a field of Vêlpu; [of the second field], on the east, the pannasa of Dâmapiya; on the south, a big road; on the west, a river; and on the north, the pannasa of Gaṇṭhasâla.

[He] also [gave] a house-field [the boundaries of which are]: On the east, the north, the court of audience.

Lines 30-32 warn the people not to obstruct this grant, and quote a benedictive verse, ascribed to Vyâsa.

No. 17.—CHEBROLU INSCRIPTION OF JAYA;

AFTER SAKA-SAMVAT 1135.

By E. HULTZSCH, PH.D.

This inscription is engraved on the four faces of the right one among two pillars in front of the gôpura of the Nâgêśvara temple at Chêbrôlu in the Bâpatla tâluka of the Kistna district. I edit it from an excellent inked estampage, prepared in 1897 by Mr. H. Krishna Sastri, B.A. The inscription is in very good preservation. The letters are so clear and well-formed that it can be read as easily as print. The alphabet is Telugu, and the languages are Sanskrit verse (lines 1-110 and 149-158) and Telugu prose (ll. 110-149).

The inscription opens with some invocations (verses 1-4). Then follows the genealogy of the (Kâkatiya) king Gaṇapati, who traced his descent from the Sun (v. 5), his son Manu (v. 6), and the family of the Baghus (v. 7 f.). The earliest historical ancestor, mentioned by name, is Durjaya (v. 8). His son Bêta (v. 8) is identical with Betma, alias Tribhuvanamalla, of the Êkâmrânâtha and Anmakonḍa inscriptions.⁵ After him ruled Prôla and his son Rudra (v. 8), Mahâdêva, the uterine brother of the last (v. 9), and Mahâdêva's son Gaṇapati (v. 10), who ¹ Minor differences which may be mentioned are: In line 1 we here have the spelling Hdritt- (instead of Hdrtti-), and in line 13 Kollabiganda (instead of Kollabhiganda); in line 12 we have only Vikramdditya (instead of yuvardja-Vikramdditya), and in lines 14 and 15 Tâl-Adhipati and Tâl-Adhipa (instead of Talapa and Talapa-râja); moreover in line 6 the length of Jayasimha's reign is (correctly) given as thirty-three (instead of thirty) years.—Verses 2-4 of our inscription occur, in addition to others, in the inscription mentioned above; verse 2 is also found in South-Ind. Inscr. Vol. I. p. 48, l. 20; and verse 3 ibid. l. 22, and in Ind. Ant. Vol. XII. p. 92, l. 23.

³ The writer perhaps meant to say only 'the Mahârâjâdhirâja.'

⁴ I.e. 'the great Indra (or chief) of kings.'

was surnamed Chhalamattigaṇḍa¹ (vv. 18 and 19). This genealogy agrees with that derived from other Kākatiya inscriptions,² but acquaints us with the name of Bēta's father, which was hitherto unknown.

Verses 13-27 refer to Jāya (v. 20) or Jāyana (v. 13), a chief whose genealogy is given in detail in the Gaṇapēśvaram inscription of Śaka-Saṃvat 1153.³ He was the chief of the elephant-troop⁴ of king Gaṇapati (v. 13) and received from his sovereign, in Śaka-Saṃvat 1135, the city of Shanmukha (v. 20), or Tāmrāpuri (v. 19), or Tāmrānagari (v. 27). The two last names are Sanskrit equivalents of the Telugu word Chembrōlu (l. 120), the modern Chēbrōlu. The same town is designated 'the city of Shanmukha' on account of its temple of Kumārasvāmin (v. 22 and l. 114), which is now called Nāgēśvara. Jāya is stated to have built a wall round Chēbrōlu (v. 27) and to have repaired its temples (vv. 21-26).

The Telugu portion consists of a list of the villages and shares which were the property of the temples at Chēbrōlu, and of the persons who had granted lamps to these temples. This list was evidently compiled from the records of the temples at the order of Jāya, after he had received Chēbrōlu in gift from king Gaṇapati. The majority of the villages and shares apparently belonged to the temple of Kumārasvāmin (ll. 110 and 114). The temples of Chōḍabhimēśvara and Vasudēva (l. 119 f.) cannot now be identified at Chēbrōlu. The temple of Ananta-Jina (l. 121) may have been located on the site of a Śiva temple in the court-yard of which Mr. Krishna Sastri found three beautifully carved Jaina figures. Two further temples at Chēbrōlu, Mūlasthāna⁵ and Kāḍuviṭṭēśvara, are mentioned in verse 26.

Of the villages which are referred to in the Telugu portion I can identify only three, viz. Kollūru (l. 114 f.) in the Rēpalle tāluka;⁶ Kolaṅkalūru (l. 116), now Kolakalūru,⁶ in the same tāluka; and Vallūru (l. 117), 9 miles south-west of Chēbrōlu in the Bāpaṭṭa tāluka.

As stated before, king Gaṇapati granted Chēbrōlu to Jāya in the month of Chaitra of Śaka-Saṃvat 1135, the cyclic year Śrimukha (v. 20), i.e. A.D. 1213-14. This is the earliest authenticated date of Gaṇapati's reign. The inscription itself may have been incised some years later; for Jāya must have required several years for accomplishing the buildings which are referred to in the inscription.

ABSTRACT OF CONTENTS.

A.—Sanskrit Portion.

The inscription opens with invocations, addressed to the boar-incarnation of Vishnu (verse 1); to the crescent of the moon on the head of Śiva (v. 2); to Gaṇapati (v. 3); and to Sarasvatī (v. 4). Verse 5 praises the Sun. His son was Manu (v. 6). His son was ^१ The syllable षि is entered below the line.

^२ The anusvāra stands at the beginning of the next line.

^३ Read 'मवच्छ'.

^४ Read प्रवर्धते.

Ikshvāku, who was followed by Sagara, Kakutstha, Dilipa, Daśaratha, and Rāmachandra (v. 7). In the family of these Raghus was born Durjaya, and from him Bēta; after him ruled Prōla, whose son was Rudra (v. 8). He was succeeded by his uterine brother Mahādēva (v. 9). His son was Gaṇapati (v. 10). The Madra king, the Pāñchāla, the Vidēka king, the Hamira, the Hūṇa, and the king of Kāśi are stated to have been waiting at his door (v. 12).

(V. 13.) "Verily, prosperous is Jāyana, the chief of the elephant-troop of that lord of the earth (viz. Gaṇapati), the leader of all actors and Vēdic scholars, (and) the crest-jewel of the assembly of poets."

He was the favourite servant of king Chhalamattigaṇḍa (viz. Gaṇapati) (v. 18).

(V. 19.) "Now once, returning from the conquest of the kings of the Southern region, the heroic Chhalamattigaṇḍa came on the way to Tāmrāpurī, (a city) with fluttering banners."

(V. 20.) "In the Śaka year eleven hundred¹ and thirty-five, in the month Madhu (i.e. Chaitra), in the (cyclic) year Śrimukha, that king gave (Tāmrāpurī) to the glorious general Jāya, saying: 'By my order rule thou from to-day this city of Shanmukha (Kumārasvāmin), which has been protected before by the arm of the maternal uncle of thy mother.'²"

He (viz. Jāya) repaired and whitewashed all the temples (prāsāda) in that city and placed golden pinnacles (kalāśa) on them (v. 21). He covered with gold the image of Tarakārāti (Kumārasvāmin) (v. 22) and supplied vessels of gold, silver, copper and brass for the worship of this god (v. 23). He gave another image of the same god and images of his two consorts,³ which were made of base metal (lōha) and were meant to be carried about in procession at festivals (maha), and built an enclosure, a maṇḍapa of Śani (Saturn), and a gōpura of three storeys (v. 24).

(V. 25.) "Then he made for this (god) a maṇḍapa for resting after the sport of the 'great hunt'⁴ on the day of every Makara-Saṁkrānti. On the painting in this (maṇḍapa), the gods, assembled for the occasion, regard with a thrill! the representations of fierce battles between the gods and the demons."

(V. 26.) "He set up again the liṅga of the Mūlasthāna (temple) and (the liṅga called) Kāduviṭṭēśvara, which had both been destroyed by robbers."

He surrounded Tāmrānagarī with a wall surmounted by towers (v. 27).

B.—Telugu Portion.

(Line 110.) "The villages of this god⁵ (are), from the east towards the south:—Nārikēḍapumbūṇḍi. Mañchēḍlu. Kōvilambūṇḍi. Komarajambūṇḍi. Veñjēḍlu. Ummetalapūṇḍi. Suddhapūṇḍi. Sērapūṇḍi. Mulukalapūṇḍi; of this (village), one half (belongs) to the god [Kumāra]svāmin, (and) one half to the god Anantēśvara at Kollūru. Gummapūṇḍi. Vaḍlambūṇḍi. Gūḍapūṇḍi."

(L. 116.) "(The following are) the shares:—15 *kha*⁶ of land in the middle of the peacock⁷ pillars at Kolaṅkalūru; 15 kha at Vallūru; 2 kha at Krantēṭa; 1 kha at Kaḍuṅgālu; 1 kha at Kōṇūru."

(L. 119.) "To the god Chōḍabhlṁēśvara (belongs) Tāḍlambūṇḍi; (and) to Vāsudēva 12 kha in Kaṭṭempūṇḍi."

² Or possibly, 'by the arms of thy mother and of thy maternal uncle.'

³ Viz. Vallī and Dēvasēnā; see the colophon of No. 1064 in my Second Report on Sanskrit Manuscripts,

p. 102.

⁴ See above, Vol. III. p. 73, note 8.

⁵ The temple of Kumārasvāmin (now Nāgeśvara) is meant.

⁷ This bird is sacred to Kumārasvāmin.

(L. 120.) "In the land of Chembrôlu, to the god Ananta-Jina, 5 kha; to the pūjāris, 12 kha; to the 14 Brāhmanas of the *Brahmapurī*¹ of the god, 14 kha; to the superintendent of edicts and the emperor of poets, 2 kha; to the astrologer, 2 kha; to the doctor, 2 kha; to the chamberlain, 2 kha; to the accountant, 2 kha; among the three hundred dancing-girls, to each of all those who serve in the temple from the age of eight years, 2 kha; to the door-keeper, 2 kha; to the dancing-master, 2 kha; to one who beats the big drum, 2 kha; to one who beats the small drum, 2 kha; to the vāsekānu, 2 kha; to each of the singers, 2 kha; to one who blows the white conch, 2 kha; to one who blows the trumpet, 2 kha; to one who plays the gauru, 2 kha; to one who beats the kettle-drum, 2 kha; to the jagaḍavāḍu, 2 kha; to one who beats the gong, 2 kha; to one who decorates (the temple), 2 kha; to the garland-maker, 2 kha; to the piligaragavāḍu, 2 kha; to the potter, 2 kha; to the carpenter, 2 kha; to the blacksmith, 2 kha; to the masons, 4 kha; to the washerman, 2 kha; to the torch-bearer, 2 kha; to Alli-Bôya, 2 kha."

(L. 135.) "These persons shall live in peace, doing their respective work and enjoying (their) shares. And the three hundred Brāhmanas shall assign one part (of the produce) of their land to the god and enjoy (the remaining) three parts themselves."

Lines 140-143 record the names of 20 persons who had granted lamps. Verses 28-31 contain the usual admonitions to future kings.

POSTSCRIPT.

Another inscription of Jāya and of his sovereign Gaṇapati (No. 250 of 1897) is engraved on three sides of a pillar which is now built into the roof of the Lingôḍbhavaśāmin temple at Tsandavôlu, the capital of the chiefs of Velanāndu.² The second face of the pillar is turned towards the roof and is hence invisible. The first face opens with the same passage as the Chêbrôlu inscription published above, and breaks off with the words विहरति फणिभक्तः श्वा- of verse 10. The third face bears five Sanskrit verses, the first of which is incomplete at the beginning, and a passage in Telugu prose. I subjoin the text³ of the first sixteen lines of the third face.

It appears from the above passage that [king Gaṇapati] put the general Jāya (lines 1 and 5 f.) in charge of a temple of Śaṅkara (Śiva), which had been founded by king Kulōttuṅga-Bājendra-Goṅka⁵ and had been named Paṇḍīśvara (l. 5) after [Paṇḍa],⁶ the younger brother of Goṅka I. Jāya provided the god with a fresh pedestal (pīṭha), as the old one had been stolen, placed golden pinnacles (kumbha) on the temple, and granted vessels for the worship. King Gaṇapati himself (l. 15) gave to the temple the village of Gōvāṭikā or, in Telugu, Gōvāḍa⁷ (l. 16).

No. 18.—SRAVANA-BELGOLA EPITAPH OF MARASIMHA II.

By J. F. FLEET, PH.D., C.I.E.

This inscription, engraved on the four faces of the base of a pillar, which is known as the Kūṭe-Brahmadēva-kambha, at the entrance to the area occupied by the temples on the Ohandragiri hill at Śravaṇa-Belgola, was first brought to notice and edited by Mr. Rice, in his Inscriptions at Śravaṇa-Belgola, No. 38 (see also, id. Introd. p. 18 ff.). I edit my version of it from ink-impressions supplied to me by Dr. Hultzsch.

The writing consists of one hundred and fourteen lines: twenty-seven on the south face of the pillar, covering an area about 1' 11½" broad by 2' 8" high; twenty-eight on the west face, covering an area about 1' 9" broad by 2' 10" high; twenty-eight on the north face, covering an area about 1' 10½" broad by 2' 10" high; and thirty-one on the east face, covering an area about 1' 10½" broad by 3' 1" high. Lines 28 to 49 on the west face, and the whole of the writing on the north face, are very much damaged; so much so that no connected passages, worth reproduction, can be made out. The rest of the record, however, is in a state of good preservation.—The characters are Kanarese, of the regular type of the period to which the record refers; and they were boldly formed and well executed throughout. They shew, of course, only the later or cursive forms of the kḥ (in Mānyakhēṭa, lines 12, 100) and b (e.g. baḷa, line 12, aḷumbam, line 84).⁸ They do not appear to include the separate distinct form of the lingual ḍ. They shew the virāma, represented by its own proper sign, in bhumjan and baḷāt, line 2, koḷ, line 112, and ir, line 113; and they do not include any final forms. In lines 1 to 109, the average size of the letters is about ¼" or ⅜". In lines 110 to 114, the characters are somewhat smaller and thinner, though of the same type, and possibly written out by the same hand, with the rest of the record: this may be due to the person who wrote out the record, for the engraver, having not enough space to finish it in completely uniform characters; or the passage may be, as suggested by Mr. Rice, a slightly later addition.—The language is Sanskrit in lines 1 to 83, and Kanarese, of the archaic or stilted type, in lines 84 to the end. There are verses in lines 1 to 4, 28 to 99, and 112 to 114; and I am indebted to Mr. H. Krishna Sastri for several very useful suggestions in dealing with both the text and the translation of some difficult passages in the Kanarese verses. The Sanskrit gadya or ornate prose, in lines 5 to 27, is not very successful, there not being enough of the usual alliteration and rhyming endings; and there is nothing remarkable in such of the Sanskrit verses as remain in lines 50 to 55: in the Kanarese portion, however, the author, who was evidently an accomplished writer in that language, has done full justice to his topic and to himself, both in sonorous diction and in sense.—The orthography does not present anything calling for special notice.

The inscription is a panegyric of the Western Gaṅga prince Mārasimha II. It mentions him by his proper name in line 42, and throughout the rest of the record by various birudas and epithets, of which the most frequent and evidently the most highly prized one is Naḷambakul-Āntaka, “the Death of the family of the Naḷambas,”—with reference to his successes against the Pallavas of the Naḷambavāḍi thirty-two-thousand province. Lines 110 to 114, at any rate, were written after his death; and they tell us that, a year after his completion of the career of conquest which is the subject of the earlier part of the record, he abdicated, and died in the practice of religion, at the feet of a Jain teacher named Ajitasēna, at Baṅkāpur in the Dhārwar district,—starving himself to death, like so many others whose epitaphs are at Śravaṇa-Belgoḷa, by a three-days fast.¹ And it seems plain, in fact, that, like various others of the records at Śravaṇa-Belgoḷa, the whole of this inscription is an epitaph,—not a contemporaneous record engraved while he was still alive. The record is not dated; but it may be placed in A.D. 975, as an inscription at Mēlāgāni shews that Mārasimha II. either died or abdicated in or shortly before June-July, A.D. 974.² The contents of it are noticed in detail on page 169 ff. below.

I have given, elsewhere,³ a full exposé of the spurious nature of certain copper-plate grants, which purport to present an unbroken genealogical list of the Western Gaṅgas going back to the second century A.D. And I have shewn how utterly unreliable, for purposes of ancient history, are those grants and a Tamil chronicle, called Koṅṇuḍēṣa-Rājākkaḷ, which purports to furnish information of the same kind. The results of the inquiry on that occasion were, that the earliest authentic Western Gaṅga names are those of Śrīpuruṣa-Muttarasa, who, pending more precise discoveries, was to be placed somewhere in the period A.D. 750 to 850, and of Śrīvamāra, who was to be placed either immediately before or immediately after Śrīpuruṣa-Muttarasa; and that the alleged genealogy was invented in the ninth or tenth century A.D., when all the great families of Southern India were beginning to look up their ancestral belongings and devise more or less fabulous pedigrees. Since the time when I wrote, some new records on stone have been brought to notice, and a critical version has been published of a copper-plate grant which was already known but was not satisfactorily available for use. And these new materials, militating in no way with the conclusions at which I arrived, enable me now to put together a genealogical and successional list of the Western Gaṅgas of Talakāḍ (see page 153),⁴ and to make a first serious attempt to determine the real history and chronology of the family.

¹ For a description of the sallēkhaṇḍ or vow of starving to death, see Mr. Rice's Inscr. at Śrav.-Bel. Introd. p. 15 ff. He has pointed out (ibid. p. 17) that, among the various instances of it mentioned in the records there, there is one of even so late a date as A.D. 1809 (No. 72). The process sometimes lasted for three months (No. 2). But it was accomplished in three days in also the case of Mallishēṇa (above, Vol. III. p. 207, verse 72).

⁴ The numbers before some of the names indicate the members of the family who actually ruled; or probably ruled, over the Gaṅgavāḍi province, and the order in which the succession went. When the exact relationship between two consecutive individuals is not established, dots are used instead of lines.

The Western Gaṅgas of Talakād.

The earliest authentic Western Gaṅga name is that of Śivamāra I. His existence is proved by an inscription at Vallimalai in the North Arcot district,¹ about eighty miles to the east from the Gaṅga town of Kōlār, which enumerates four generations,—Śivamāra I.; his son, Śrīpurusha;² Śrīpurusha's son, Raṇavikrama; and Raṇavikrama's son, Rājamalla,—and says that Rājamalla, having seen the hill on which the record is, took possession of it, and founded a Jain temple there in token of having done so. The record, indeed, does not tell us that these persons were Gaṅgas. But their names fit in so exactly with the statements in the spurious grants and in certain unquestionable records in the Western Gaṅga territory itself which will be mentioned further on, that no hesitation need be felt about identifying them as Western Gaṅgas of Talakād.

There are records in Mysore, which may be ascribed to Śivamāra I. One is a stone inscription at Dēbūr,³ which mentions him as simply Śivamāra, without any regal title of any kind, but uses a technical expression which stamps him as holding a rank and authority considerably greater than those of any mere local governor.⁴ And others are stone inscriptions at Rāmpura and Mūḍahalli,⁵ which mention "the Koṅṅuṇi king (arasa) Śivamāra," and

² The spurious grants describe Śrīpurusha (whose proper name, Muttarasa, they do not give) sometimes as the son, and sometimes as the grandson (without mentioning the father's name), of Śivamāra I.; to Śrīpurusha they allot two sons, Śivamāra II. and Vijayāditya; and they represent Rājamalla as the son of Vijayāditya (see the tables, above, Vol. III. pp. 161, 177): and curiously enough, it is the pretended earlier records, from Hoṣūr, Nāgamaṅgala, and Maṇṇe (for the last, see page 160 below, note 7), which wrongly represent Śivamāra I. as the grandfather of Śrīpurusha; while the Sūḍi grant, purporting to be written nearly a century and a half after the Maṇṇe grant, correctly speaks of the two persons as father and son.—This short but valuable record from Vallimalai disposes finally of one step in the fictitious pedigree, viz. the step which some of the spurious grants place between Śivamāra I. and Muttarasa (see, also, page 156 below, note 5).

⁴ The exp. res. in question is prithivī-rājyaṃ-geya, or keya, "to reign over the earth." It is properly a technical expression of paramount sovereignty (see the second edition of my Dynasties of the Kanarese Districts in the Gazetteer of the Bombay Presidency, Vol. I. Part II. p. 428, note 4); but the exact way in which it is to be applied, has always to be determined by the context and general surroundings. The Western Gaṅgas of Talakād were not paramount sovereigns, except occasionally. They belonged to the class of great feudatory nobles, who were more or less independent in their own hereditary territories, and whose position is always very clearly recognisable, if the records are studied attentively, from the various technical titles and expressions that are so carefully used or obtained from. The Śiḷhāras of Karāḍ, and the great feudatory nobles of some other families, used the expression sukha-saṃkathā-vinōḍadīm rājyaṃ-geya, or, in Sanskrit, sukha-saṃkathā-vinōḍēna rājyaṃ kṛi. The expression properly used by the Western Gaṅgas, in their own province, was prithivī-rājyaṃ-geya; and it will be found in almost all of their records which exist in their own hereditary territory: to the contrary I can quote, at present, only rājyaṃ uttar-ōttaraṃ saluttam-iro (another expression of, strictly, paramount sovereignty) in the Kōlagere inscription of the time of Eṇṇayappa, and the use of the purely subordinate expression dṛu, 'to govern,' in the cases of Eṇṇayappa in the Bēḡr inscription, and of Būtuga II. in the Ātakūr inscription. On the other hand, the proper expression to denote their position and authority outside their own province of Gaṅgavāḍi, was dṛu; and we find this duly used in the case of Mārasimha II. in the inscriptions at Adaragufichi, Guṇḍūr, and Hebbāl, and even in the case of Paṭichaladēva in the inscription at Muḷgund.

use the same technical expression of high position. These three records are not dated in any era. And there is nothing in the contents of them to enable us to establish any synchronisms, and so to assign an exact date to them. But the characters of the Dôbûr inscription are attributable to any time within about fifty years on either side of A.D. 800.¹ The period of the record will be determined more closely further on.²

The authentic existence of the second of the four persons mentioned in the Vallimalai inscription, vis. Śrīpurusha, had already been established³ by some undeniably genuine stone records at Talakād,⁴ Sivāra,⁵ and Sivarpaṭṭa,⁶ in Mysore. The Talakād inscription, which is dated in his first year,⁶ and the inscription at Sivāra, give him the full style of "the Mahārāja Prithuvi-Koṅguṇi-Muttarasa-Śrīpurusha;" while, of the Sivarpaṭṭa inscriptions, one styles him "the Mahārāja Śrīpurusha," and the other, which is dated in his twentieth-odd year,—perhaps the twenty-ninth,⁷—calls him "the Koṅguṇi Mahārāja Śrīpurusha :—" evidently, Muttarasa was his name, and Śrīpurusha, "husband of Fortune," was a biruda. Like the records of Śivamāra I., these records of Muttarasa,—and also those which will be mentioned further on,—are not dated in any era; and they do not contain anything by means of which synchronisms can at present be established. But they are, similarly, to be referred, on paleographic grounds, to the period A.D. 750 to 850, or thereabouts. And one particularly instructive character,—the old square form of the letter b,⁸—

Mahārājādhirāja (regarding which, see page 163 below, note 2), the use of the first of these two titles was continued by all his descendants from Raṇavikrama onwards; and it does not seem likely that his son Śivamāra II. would revert to the simple designation arasa.—Another inscription at Mūḍahalli (Nj. 126) is probably also of the time of Śivamāra I.; but the name of the prince is illegible.

² The spurious Hallegere grant (Ep. Carn. Vol. III., Md. 113, with a lithograph) cites a date in the month Jyēṣṭha (May-June), Śaka-Saṃvat 635 expired, falling in A.D. 713, as being in the thirty-fourth year of Śivamāra I., and so would place the commencement of his rule in A.D. 679-80. This latter date is altogether too early. And it is not likely that the record has even hit off a true date for him in A.D. 713.—The Nāgamaṅgala grant would place the commencement of the rule of his successor Śrīpurusha-(Muttarasa) in A.D. 727-28 (see page 166 below, note 2); and this, with the Hallegere grant, would give Śivamāra I. a rule of forty-eight years, immediately before a rule of seventy-eight years by his son!

⁴ Ep. Carn. Vol. III., TN. 1; with a lithograph.

⁶ Prathama-vijaya-sambatsaram Kārttigi puṇṇame-andu; lines 3, 4.

⁷ The words vijaya-sa[m]patsara[m], followed by the akṣaras irppa, are quite clear, in line 2. I conjecture that what follows them stands for tombattaneyolu. But the passage (and, in fact, the whole of the remainder of this record) has been so spoilt in painting the stone for photography, that it is a matter of conjecture only. Since writing this note, I have found an indication that Mr. Rice would take the record to be dated in the twenty-eighth year (Ind. Ant. Vol. XIII. p. 188). The akṣaras tēntaneyolu, however, seem insufficient for the space and for the marks shewn in the photograph.—This practice of painting inscriptions by hand for photography cannot be too strongly condemned: it presents the records as they appear to the eye of the person who paints them, and not as they really are; it introduces mistakes, or at least doubt, in even the clearest passages,—for instance, the lithograph of the Talakād inscription of Muttarasa shews in the word tombattaru, line 9, an anusvara in the second syllable which one cannot believe to be in the original, and the word Kadabūr or Kaḍabūr in one of the Sivarpaṭṭa inscriptions, contrasted with what reads at first sight as Kadambūr or Kaḍambūr in the other record at the same place (see page 161 below, note 1), is another case in point; it often results, as in the date of this Sivarpaṭṭa inscription, and in fact throughout the record, in the creation of arbitrary and fantastic signs which render whole passages quite unintelligible; and, in short, it prevents altogether the purely mechanical reproduction which is absolutely necessary for the satisfactory and critical study of the records.

proves that at any rate they cannot have been engraved much, if at all, after A.D. 850; while the general palæographic standard of the Talakād inscription points distinctly to a time somewhat earlier than A.D. 800, as the date of the preparation of that record. It is, thus, not impossible that the person or persons who fabricated the spurious Hosūr and Nāgamāṅgala grants, had available, or hit off, true dates for him, in A.D. 762 and 776-77, or at any rate in the latter year.¹ But it is not possible that, in A.D. 776-77, he had already been ruling for fifty years, as is claimed by the Nāgamāṅgala grant;² for, the synchronisms which are established for some of his descendants, in both lines, shew plainly that the long life and rule, which he undoubtedly enjoyed, were made out by continuing into the ninth century A.D. The approximate limits for him will be indicated below.

There are other records of Śrīpurusha-Muttarasa in Mysore, at Dēvalāpura, Varuṇa, Pūrigāli, Hemmige, Bannūr, and Hoḷalavādi.³ The first four of them belong to the earlier part of his career: for, the Pūrigāli record styles him "the Mahārāja Śrīpūtrusha," as also, apparently, does the Dēvalāpura stone; the Varuṇa record calls him "the Koṅgaṇi Mahārāja Śrīpurusha;" the Hemmige record describes him as "Prithivi-Koṅgaṇi-Muttarasa," without any title; and the Bannūr record probably styles him "Prithu[vi-Koṅgaṇi-Muttarasa-Śrī]purusha," again without any title. All of the records which contain such a reference at all, use the same technical expression of high position and authority which is used in the case of Śivamāra I.⁴ And the Hoḷalavādi inscription marks an epoch in his career, by also giving him the paramount titles; it styles him "the Koṅgaṇi Mahārājādhirāja and Paramāvara Śrīpurusha."

As far, therefore, as individual names go, the authentic history of the Western Gaṅgas of Talakād starts with these two persons, Śivamāra I. and his son Śrīpurusha-Muttarasa.⁵ Records giving names for earlier times may, of course, be obtained hereafter; for,

Amōghavaraha I. (A.D. 814-15 to 877-78),—were then in use, and are found in a record of A.D. 865. And a record of much about the same date shews both the forms of h, mixed (loc. cit. p. 163, note 1).—The old or square form of the h occurs in also one of the Sivarpaṭṇa records of Muttarasa, in the word Kadabūr, line 5; and doubtless also in the same word in line 3 of the other Sivarpaṭṇa record, where, however, the true appearance of the original has been much spoilt by painting the stone for photographv. I do not find a h of either form in the Sivāra record. And none of the four records appears to include a kh.—My attention has been drawn to the fact that a cursive kh appears, in the lithograph, at the end of line 12 of the Harihar grant of Vinayāditya of A.D. 604 (Ind. Ant. Vol. VII. p. 309). An inspection, however, of the photograph, which is given with the lithograph in P. S. and O.-C. Inscri. No. 17, will shew that this is only due to an injudicious touching up by hand of a damaged square kh; this was done at a time when it was thought more important to publish clear and easily legible lithographs, than to produce absolutely mechanical and faithful facsimiles which an unpractised eye might find it difficult to deal with.

³ Ep. Carn. Vol. III. My. 25, 55; ML. 87; TN. 53, 113; Nj. 23.—He is apparently also mentioned as Śrīpurushayya in an inscription at Belavatte (ibid. My. 6), and as Muttarasa in another inscription at Bannūr (ibid. TN. 115), from which Mr. Rice has inferred (ibid. Introd. page 3) that Bannūr was his birth-place. This Bannūr inscription mentions also the name of Eḡeyappa, and therefore seems to be, not of Muttarasa's own time, but about a century later.

that the Western Gaṅgas were a people of importance and power at least a couple of centuries before the time of Śivamāra I., is shewn by the fact that the Kadamba king Mrigēśavarman claims to have defeated them.¹ But it is not at all probable that they will give a connected genealogy: the plainly imaginary nature of some of the names which the spurious grants place before that of Śivamāra I., is a strong indication that materials for compiling a genuine earlier pedigree were not available even then; and the most that we may expect, is, a few detached notices.² All that we know as yet about the Gaṅgas during the centuries immediately following the time when Mrigēśavarman was in conflict with them, is, that they were conquered by the Western Chalukya king Kīrtivarman I. in the period A.D. 567-68 to 597-98,³ and again by his son Pulikēśin II. about A.D. 608,⁴ and that the Harihar grant of Pulikēśin's grandson Vinayāditya dated in A.D. 694, speaks of them as hereditary servants of the Western Chalukya kings.⁵ And it is plain that they first came prominently to the front on the downfall of the Western Chalukya dynasty. Even then, they did not immediately assert the independence which, undoubtedly, they subsequently enjoyed for a while. That they felt their way gradually to the latter step, is shewn by the facts that Śivamāra I., while adopting a technical expression indicative of considerable power, used simply the title of arasa, "king," and that Muttarasa, though making an advance on this, did not at first assume any higher designation than that of Mahārāja, and developed into a Mahārājādhirāja and Paramēśvara, as which he figures in the Holalavādi record, only at some later time. Now, the last Western Chalukya king, Kīrtivarman II., lost the northern and central portions of his dominions to the Rāshtrakūṭas, under Dantidurga, before A.D. 754. He was still in possession of the southern territory up to A.D. 757. But shortly after that time he was completely overthrown by Dantidurga's successor, Krishna I.,—say, about A.D. 760. And the same period saw the extinction of another great dynasty of Southern India,—that of the original Pallavas of Conjeeveram, who also, through the possessions that they held in the Nolambavādi province, must have had much to do, though not so directly as the Western Chalukyas, with the Gaṅgas of Talakāḍ. The last great Pallava king known to us,—and, unquestionably, the last representative of his line,—was Pallavamalla-Nandivarman, Nandipōtavarman, or Nandipōtarāja, son of Hiranyavarman.⁶ He was a contemporary of the Western Chalukya king Vikramāditya II., at some time in the period A.D. 733-34 to 746-47. And we have records dated in his twenty-first, twenty-second, and fiftieth years.⁷ Now, he succeeded to the Pallava throne after a distant kinsman, Paramēśvaravarman II.,⁸ the latter was preceded by his father, Narasimhavarman II.; and Narasimhavarman was preceded by his father, Paramēśvaravarman I., who was contemporaneous at some time in the period A.D. 655 to 680 with Vikramāditya I.,

And the person whom Mr. Rice thus misplaces,—through a mistake which is to be attributed to the imperfect original rendering of the Udayēndiram grant of Hastimalla-Prithivipati II. in Mr. Foulkes' Manual of the Salem District, Vol. II. p. 369 ff.,—is Mārasimha I., grandson of the second Śivamāra (see page 162 below).

² This much, at any rate, is certain,—as I have already said (above, Vol. III. p. 175),—that nothing will ever be obtained to authenticate such dates as those of A.D. 248 and 436 which two of the spurious grants purport to give for Harivarman and Avinṭa-Konguni, unless it upsets in some way or other the genealogy that is asserted by the grants; and, on the other hand, if the genealogy asserted by the grants (or anything like a real basis from which it can have been concocted) is ever authenticated, then the dates will be upset, in favour of much later ones. The genealogy and the dates cannot possibly stand together.—It is not likely, however, that there is any real basis of ancient fact for either the asserted genealogy or these two dates; see the Postscript, page 174 below.

the great-grandfather of Vikramāditya II. In such circumstances, it is not at all probable that Pallavamalla-Nandivarman can have completed the fiftieth year of his reign between A.D. 733 and 747. It is much more likely that his reign did not even commence till A.D. 715 or later. And fifty years from that point would bring him on to just the time to which we may refer Śivamāra I. and Muttarasa. The spurious Mappē grant, indeed,¹ would carry him on to even later times: it says, speaking of Śivamāra II., that "his forehead was adorned by a fillet (of royalty) placed there with their own hands, when they performed (his) anointment to the sovereignty, by the two ornaments of the Rāshtrakūṭa and Pallava lineages named Gōvindarāja and Nandivarman, who were (already) anointed on (their own) foreheads."² Gōvindarāja seems to be the Rāshtrakūṭa king Gōvinda III., whose reign began about A.D. 783-84 and ended in A.D. 814-15: Śivamāra II. was undoubtedly contemporaneous with him towards the end of his reign; and we shall find reasons, further on, for believing that he did assist or recognise the succession of Śivamāra II. to the leadership of the Gaṅgas. Nandivarman must be Pallavamalla-Nandivarman, son of Hiranyavarman.³ He cannot have had anything to do with Śivamāra II. at so late a time as the date of his succession on the death of Muttarasa. And it seems that, mixed up with a real act of Gōvinda III. towards the second Śivamāra, the Mappē grant has preserved an anachronistic reminiscence of a real act of Pallavamalla-Nandivarman towards the first Śivamāra; vis. that, on the downfall of the Western Chalukyas, he formally recognised Śivamāra I. and crowned him as the chief, more or less feudatory, of a powerful tribe on the borders of his own outlying province of Nolambavāḍi. The date of A.D. 760, mentioned above as the closely approximate time of the complete extinction of the Western Chalukya power, is within the period to which Śivamāra I. is to be referred, and within the time to which the reign of Pallavamalla-Nandivarman may be carried on. And we shall probably be very near the truth, if we take A.D. 755 as the initial date of the succession of Śivamāra I. to the leadership of the Western Gaṅgas, and A.D. 760 as the time when he was recognised by Pallavamalla-Nandivarman. We may then place the accession of Muttarasa about five years later, in A.D. 765; and, as there are indications, as already mentioned, that he had a long rule, and as we have a record which is actually dated in perhaps his twenty-ninth year, we may assume that he ruled for about forty years, up to A.D. 805. As the record which seems to be dated in his twenty-ninth year still gives him, like the earlier ones, the title of Mahārāja, it would appear that it was in the last ten years of his time that he threw off all semblage of vassalage and assumed the paramount titles; till then, he must have been more or less feudatory, at first to Pallavamalla-Nandivarman, and then to a kinsman of his own, Vijaya-Narasimhavarman, who, as we shall see just below, succeeded to the Pallava throne after Pallavamalla-Nandivarman.⁴

² The original, which I am able to quote from photographs which Mr. Rice kindly sent me, runs—(plate iv. a, line 10 ff.)—E[ā]śhtrakuṭa(bā)ṭa-Pallava-ānaya-tilakābhyaṁ mārddh-ābhishikṭa-Gōvindarāja-Nandivarman-ābhishikṭābhyaṁ samanuṣṭi(śhṭi)ṭa-rājy-ābhishikṭābhyaṁ an(ā)ṭa-kara-ghaṭita-paṭṭa-vibhakti-laldṭa-paṭṭa
 • • • • • śrī-Sivamāradēva[ā].—I have taken laldṭa-paṭṭa, 'the flat surface of the forehead,' as simply an alliterative expansion of laldṭa. Otherwise, we might divide the compound, laldṭa-paṭṭa, and translate 'the (hereditary Gaṅga) fillet (of royalty) on his forehead was adorned by (other) fillets placed there with their own hands,' etc.; this, however, does not seem so satisfactory a rendering.

³ It might, perhaps, be said that he is the later Nandivarman, also called Vijaya-Nandi-Vikramavarman, son of Dantivarman (see page 160 below). But this does not seem at all probable. And, if it were so, an anachronism in the other direction would be involved; for, Nandivarman, the son of Dantivarman, cannot be placed as early as A.D. 797, which is the pretended date of the Mappē grant; he cannot be placed before A.D. 804, which is the date that we have for Dantivarman.

⁴ The Humeḥa inscription of A.D. 1077-78—(see Mr. Rice's Annual Report for the year ending 31st March 1891; this record contains a great deal of mythical matter, relating to the Śāntara family as well as to the Western Gaṅgas, and is, of course, of no more value than the spurious copper-plate grants in respect of the early history which it pretends to give)—asserts that Ścipurusha-(Muttarasa) was the first of the Western

We shall revert presently to the descendants of Śrīpuruṣa-Muttarasa. Meanwhile, we may conveniently notice here another branch of the Western Gaṅga family, which succeeded to the Pallava dominions.

Two virgals or monumental tablets at Āmbūr in the North Arcot district,¹—which commemorate the death in battle of two heroes, followers of a certain Pirudi-Gaṅgaraiyar, on an occasion when the army of the Nalamba, i.e. the Pallava prince of Nalambavāḍi, attacked the village for a cattle-raid,—cite the twenty-sixth year of a king named Vijaya-Nṛpatuṅga-Vikramavarman. There are other inscriptions of the same king in the Tanjore and Trichinopoly districts.² And on palæographic grounds, as well as for reasons connected with the history of that part of the country, it is necessary, Dr. Hultzsch tells us, to place the reign of this Vijaya-Nṛpatuṅga-Vikramavarman before that of the Chōla king Parāntaka I. (about A.D. 900 to 940). There are also two copper-plate grants of the same king,³ one of which, obtained at Bāhūr near Pondicherry, and dated in his eighth year, names his immediate ancestors and gives the pedigree that he claimed. That pedigree is, first, the Purāṇic genealogy of the Pallavas, from the god Brahma to the eponymous Pallava, the alleged founder of the family. From his family, the grant says, there were born Vimala, “Koṅkaṇika,” and “other kings.” When they had passed away, a certain Dantivarman became king. His son was Nandivarman, whose wife was Śaṅkhā, of the Rāshtrakūṭa family. And their son was Nṛpatuṅga-deva, or Vijaya-Nṛpatuṅgavarman, as he is called in the Tamil portion of the grant,—i.e. the Vijaya-Nṛpatuṅga-Vikramavarman of the stone records at Āmbūr and elsewhere. Now, the seal of the other grant of Vijaya-Nṛpatuṅga-Vikramavarman bears the bull-crest of the Pallavas,—in due accordance with the descent that is put forward for him. But we may safely adopt Dr. Hultzsch’s suggestions, that the name of “Koṅkaṇika” is a reminiscence of the “Koṅkaṇi” who is represented as the original ancestor of the Western Gaṅgas in the Udayēndiram grant of Hastimalla-Prithivipati II.,⁴ and who is, of course, the mythical Koṅkaṇivarman whom the spurious grants from Mysore claim as the founder of the Western Gaṅga family; and that consequently, in spite of the Pallava pedigree, a connection with the Western Gaṅgas was claimed by Vijaya-Nṛpatuṅga-Vikramavarman. And we may also safely follow Dr. Hultzsch in his identification of Dantivarman with the Dantiga, king of Kāñchi, whom the Rāshtrakūṭa king Gōvinda III. subdued and levied tribute from in A.D. 804,⁵ and in his inference that the Rāshtrakūṭa princess Śaṅkhā, wife of Nandivarman, was a daughter of Gōvinda’s son and successor Nṛpatuṅga-Amōghavarsha I. (A.D. 814-15 to 877-78), after whom her son must have been partly named.

There are also, we are told by Dr. Hultzsch,⁶ various stone records, not yet published, which may be attributed with some probability to Dantivarman and Nandivarman: there is a record of Dantivarman in the Vaikuṇṭha-Perumāḷ temple at Conjeeveram;⁷ and there are inscriptions at the Viriñchipuram temple in the North Arcot district, and at Śaduppēri, near Vēlūr in the same district,⁸ dated in the ninth, forty-seventh, and fifty-second years of a Vijaya-Nandi-Vikramavarman who may be identified with Nandivarman, son of Gaṅgas to assume the designation of Permanaḍi, and that he took it from a Pallava king of Kāñchi, on defeating him. We have already seen that it was Muttarasa who first assumed the paramount titles. And so, though his records have not yet disclosed the use of the designation Permanaḍi by him, the Huncha record very possibly preserves, in the above assertion, a real historical item, mixed up in the usual mythical matter in which it follows more or less the spurious grants. The said king of Kāñchi, defeated by him, would be his kinsman Vijaya-Narasimhavarman,—defeated when he threw off the yoke of vassalage.

Dantivarman. And at Ukkal in the North Arcot district there are inscriptions¹ giving the name of a Kampavarman, or more fully Vijaya-Kampa-Vikramavarman, who may have belonged to the same family with Vijaya-Nripatunga-Vikramavarman and his ancestors.

But, of more importance for present purposes, is the fact that, at Kīl-Muttugūr in the North Arcot district, there is an inscription,² dated in the eighteenth year of a king Vijaya-Narasimhavarman, which shews, in the sculptures below it, the Western Gaṅga emblems of the elephant and the goose or swan,—the emblems being connected with Vijaya-Narasimhavarman himself by the fact that he was, evidently, the maker of the grant that is registered in the record. The name of this person is, characteristically, a Pallava name: but the emblems mark him as a Western Gaṅga; and he has been appropriately described by Dr. Hultzsch as “a Pallava by name, but Western Gaṅga by descent.” Now, the alphabet of this record at Kīl-Muttugūr is more archaic than that of the Āmbūr inscriptions; and Vijaya-Narasimhavarman must, therefore, be placed at any rate before Vijaya-Nripatunga-Vikramavarman. That he was connected with Vijaya-Nripatunga-Vikramavarman, and also with Vijaya-Kampa-Vikramavarman, is plainly indicated by the use of the prefix kō, “king,” in all three cases, and of the word vijaya, in the Tamil form viśaiya, as part of the proper names: and it appears that one of the grants of Vijaya-Nripatunga-Vikramavarman actually places a Narasimha in the genealogy, before Dantivarman.³ Whether Kampavarman came before Narasimhavarman, or after him, is not yet known. But the retention of the Western Gaṅga emblems by Narasimhavarman refers him to a period when the members of this branch of the Gaṅga family had not fully turned themselves into Pallavas. And it seems probable that he was the one who secured the succession to the Pallava dominions. If so, as he must have done it on the death of Pallavamalla-Nandivarman, son of Hiranyavarman, we may place his initial date somewhere about A.D. 760 to 770.⁴ He was eventually followed by Dantivarman, Nandivarman or Vijaya-Nandi-Vikramavarman, and Vijaya-Nripatunga-Vikramavarman. And one or other of them, or perhaps Vijaya-Kampa-Vikramavarman, discarded the emblems of the Western Gaṅgas and adopted those of the Pallavas,—thus converting himself into a Pallava, just as the Eastern Chalukyas became Chōlas in the time of Kulōttunga-Chōladēva I.⁵ The exact connection of Vijaya-Narasimhavarman with Śivamāra I. remains to be discovered.

We revert now to the descendants of Śripurusha-Muttarasa. The spurious Sādi grant gives the name of Śivamāra II., as his eldest son;⁶ and the spurious grants from Suradhēnupura and Maṇṇe purport to be records of this person himself.⁷ Now, one of the

⁶ This grant (for which, see page 167 below, note 3) would give him the second name of Saigoṭṭa; so, also, the Humeḥa inscription of A.D. 1077-78 (see page 158 above, note 4). He is evidently the Saigoṭṭa-Śivamāra, an alleged feudatory of a king Amōghavarsha, for whom a record of about the eleventh century A.D., at Kalbhāvi in the Belgaum District (Ind. Ant. Vol. XVIII. p. 309), purports to furnish a date in A.D. 306, 314, or 329 (the details of the date are so incorrect that the exact year which is intended cannot be determined).

Śivarpaṭṭa inscriptions makes mention of a Śivamāra who was governing the village of Kadabūr or Kaḍabūr,¹—which may be identified either with the modern 'Kadabura' in the Guṇḍlupēṭṭ tāluka of the Mysore district, or with Kaḍaba in the Gubbi tāluka of the Tumkūr district,—in the time of Śrīpuruṣa-Muttarasa, and in, perhaps, his twenty-ninth year.² There is nothing in this record to establish any relationship between this Śivamāra and Muttarasa. But we may take it as tolerably certain that he was a son of Śrīpuruṣa-Muttarasa, as stated in the spurious grants, and that we have here another authentic name, that of Śivamāra II. We have already noticed the fact that the spurious Maṇṇe grant speaks of a fillet of sovereignty being placed on his head by the Rāshtrakūṭa king Gōvinda III. (from about A.D. 783-84 to A.D. 814-15). Spurious as the record is, there is nothing impossible in the truth of the statement; especially if it is taken in connection with certain statements in the records of Gōvinda III. himself, which tell us that he released from long captivity, and sent back to his own country, one of the Gaṅgas, who had been imprisoned by his father Dhruva.³ The Rāshtrakūṭa records, indeed, do not disclose the name of the Gaṅga who was thus treated. But the clue to his identity is furnished by the spurious Maṇṇe grant, which asserts that Śivamāra II. made himself famous by being victorious against the armies of the Rāshtrakūṭas, the Chālukyas,⁴ and the Haihayas (i.e. the Kalachuris), when they were encamped at a village named Mudukundār, and that he defeated the countless cavalry of Dhruva which had overrun the whole earth.⁵ Śivamāra II. may very well have been entrusted with the command in some war between his father and Dhruva. And we may suppose that, during the campaign, he was eventually defeated, captured, and imprisoned by Dhruva, and that, on Muttarasa's death, he was liberated by Gōvinda III., in order to succeed to the leadership of the Gaṅgas, on which occasion the Rāshtrakūṭa king would very likely crown him,—as the spurious Maṇṇe grant asserts,—with some feudatory crown. This event may be placed somewhere about A.D. 805. The same passages in the Rāshtrakūṭa records tell us that, after no long time, Gōvinda III. found it necessary to re-conquer the Gaṅga, who through excess of pride stood in opposition to him, and to put him in fetters

Śivamāra II., son of Śrīpuruṣa, then tells us that Śivamāra's son was Mārasimha; it then proceeds to record a grant that was made to a Jain temple at Mānyapura with the permission of this Mārasimha, who, having attained the position of Yasavdya, was administering the whole of the Gaṅga maṇḍala; and then, after specifying the boundaries of the grant, it gives the date, in the month Āṣāḍha (June-July), Ś.S. 719 (expired), falling in A.D. 797. It would thus establish for Śivamāra II. a date, when he either was ruling or else had ruled and passed away, eight years before the commencement of his rule according to the Suradhēnapura grant.—A Mārasimha, son of Śivamāra II., is not mentioned in any other record that has as yet come to notice. And the person who is introduced in the Maṇṇe grant seems to be the Mārasimha I. of the Udayēndiram grant,—in reality the grandson of Śivamāra II.

⁴ To avoid attributing to the Maṇṇe grant any more anachronisms than are inevitable, we may take this as referring to the Eastern Chalukyas. Narendramṇigarkja-Vijayāditya II., of that dynasty, is described (see Ind. Ant. Vol. XX. p. 101) as waging war for twelve years, by day and by night, and fighting a hundred and eight battles, with the armies of the Gaṅgas and the Rāshtrakūṭas: the passage, however, does not mention the name of any individual Gaṅga; and the period of Vijayāditya II., A.D. 799 to 843, covered a great deal more than the time of Śivamāra II.

again. This would probably be about five years later,—say in A.D. 810. And it was doubtless this second imprisonment of Śivamāra II. that let in his younger brother Raṇavikrama to the Western Gaṅga succession.¹

A copper-plate grant from Udayēndiram in the North Arcot district² carries this line of descent three generations further: it mentions, in the lineage of “Koṅkaṇi, the first of the whole Gaṅga race,”—in which lineage, it says, following the spurious grants, there had been born Viṣṇugōpa, Hari (i.e. Harivarman), Mādhava, Durvīṇṭa, Bhūvikrama, and “other kings,”—Śivamāra II.;³ his son Prithivipati I., otherwise called Aparājita;⁴ Mārasimha I., “the light of the Gaṅga family,” son of Prithivipati I.; and Mārasimha’s son, Prithivipati II., otherwise called Hastimalla, “a flamingo in the tank of the Gaṅga family.” In the way of historical information, it tells us that Prithivipati I. saved Iriga and Nāgadanta, sons of king Dipdi,—one of them from Amōghavarsha, i.e. the Rāshtrakūṭa king Amōghavarsha I. (A.D. 814-15 to 877-78), and the other from the jaws of death; that he fought a battle at a place named Vaimbalguḷi; and that he defeated the Pāṇḍya prince Varaguṇa in the great battle of Śrīpurambiya;⁵ and that Prithivipati II. received from Madirakoṇḍa-Parakēsarivarman-Parāntaka, i.e. the Chōḷa king Parāntaka I. (about A.D. 900 to 940), “the dignity of lord of the Bāṇas,”—i.e. that Parāntaka I. conferred on him the leadership of the Bāṇa kingdom,⁶ which is defined elsewhere as “the land to the west of the Andhra country.”⁷ And it registers the fact that, at the request of Prithivipati II., Parāntaka I., in the fifteenth year of his reign,—i.e. in or about A.D. 915,—converted the village of Kaḍaikkōṭṭūr, together with Udayasandiramaṅgalam (Udayēndiram itself), into a brahmadēya, or grant to Brāhmaṇas, which was then called Vīraṇārāyaṇachchēri after one of his own appellations. The record says that, from the time when the Bāṇa kingdom was conferred on Prithivipati II., it was thought that he was born of the race of Bali, i.e. of the Bāṇa race; and the Tamil portion of it actually calls him Śembiyaṇ-Māvali-Vānarāya, meaning apparently, “(he who was appointed) Mahābali-Bānarāja (by) the Chōḷa king.” And it further discloses the fact that, while retaining the Western Gaṅga title of “lord of Nandi (i.e. Nandagiri),” he took the title of “lord of the city of Paṇivipuri,”⁸ and assumed the banner of a black-buck and the crest of a bull. It is thus evident that, like his connections who became Pallavas, Prithivipati II. turned himself regularly into a Bāṇa.

² South-Ind. Inscri. Vol. II. p. 375. It was first brought to notice by the Rev. T. Foulkes, in the Manual of the Salem District, Vol. II. p. 369 ff. But it has only recently been made properly available, by Dr. Hultzsch’s critical edition of it; and some remarks by me (above, Vol. III. pp. 165, 167), based on Mr. Foulkes’ version of it, require alteration.

⁸ In the Sholinghur inscription (see the last note but one) this name appears in a slightly different form; Prithivipati II. is there called “the king of the people of Paṇivai.”

In the other line of descent from Śrīpuruṣa-Muttarasa, the Vallimalai inscription has given us the names of his son Raṇavikrama, and Raṇavikrama's son Rājamalla.¹ The latter is evidently the *Dharma-Mahārājādhirāja*² Satyavākya-Koṅṇuṇivarma-Permanāḍi-Rājamalla, "lord of Kovalāla, the best of towns," and "lord of the mountain Nandagiri," who is mentioned as the ruling prince in an inscription at Husukūru, in Mysore,³ dated Śaka-Saṃvat 792 (expired), = A.D. 870-71. This must be taken as his final date. An earlier record, at Doddahundi in Mysore,⁴ mentions him as simply Satyavākya-Permanāḍi, and his father Raṇavikrama as the Dharma-Mahārājādhirāja Nitimārga-Koṅṇuṇivarma-Permanāḍi, "lord of Kovalāla, the best of towns,"⁵ and "lord of the mountain Nandagiri:" this record was written on the death of the father; it tells us that Nitimārga died, and that there survived, to (render service to) his son Satyavākya, a domestic official named Agarayya, who is apparently described in the text, and represented in the sculptures above it, as tending Nitimārga in his dying moments.⁶

The Husukūru inscription of A.D. 870-71, quoted above, mentions also a certain Būtarasa, who then, in the time of Rājamalla, was governing the Koṅṇanāḍ and Pānāḍ districts, as Yuvarāja. With this person, whom we may conveniently enter in the table as Būtuga I.,⁷ and who, as the Yuvarāja or chosen successor, was in all probability the actual successor,

⁶ He seems to be represented as drawing out from Nitimārga's left side a dagger with which the death-blow had been given.

of Rājamalla,¹—we may venture to identify the Dharma-Mahārājādhirāja Satyavākya-Koṅguṇivarma-Permanaḍi of an inscription at Biliūr, in Coorg,² which cites a date in the month Phālguna (Feb.-March), Śaka-Saṁvat 809 (expired), falling in A.D. 888, as being in his eighteenth year, and thus fixes the commencement of his rule in A.D. 870 or 871. And, as we know that not long after this date there was a ruler of the Gaṅgavāḍi province named Ereyappa, whose son Rāchamalla was killed by Bātuga in or before A.D. 940, to Bātuga I. we may also ascribe an inscription at Iggali, in Mysore,³ which, again, mentions the ruling prince as the Dharma-Mahārājādhirāja Satyavākya-Koṅguṇivarma-Permanaḍi, and mentions Ereyappa also, and further speaks of a certain Rācheya-Gaṅga, who, it tells us, died fighting against the Nolamba, i.e. the Pallava prince of the Nolambavāḍi province, in the twenty-second year, i.e. in A.D. 891-92.⁴

Bātuga I. must have been succeeded by Ereyappa. We have a record of this prince, mentioning him by the name of Ereyappa, in the Bāgūr inscription,⁵ which describes him as a spotless moon in the sky that was the family of the Gaṅgas, and says that, having deprived all his enemies of power, he was governing the Gaṅgavāḍi ninety-six-thousand as an united whole,⁶ and which further mentions a war between the army of the Nāgattara and a certain Vīra-Mahēndra⁷ who was probably one of the Pallavas of Nolambavāḍi, and an attack upon a person named Ayyapadēva.⁸ And, from the way in which the date fits in, we may ascribe to

³ Ep. Carn. Vol. III., Nj. 139.

⁵ Ep. Ind. Vol. I. p. 346; for a lithograph, see the frontispiece of Mr. Rice's Mysore Inscriptions.

⁸ I have said (Ep. Ind. Vol. I. p. 350) that it is possible,—but by no means a certainty,—that this person may be the Western Chalukya Ayyapa I., of the time between the period of the Western Chalukyas of Bādāmi and the period of the Western Chalukyas of Kalyāṇi. Mr. Rice, however (see Ep. Carn. Vol. III. Introd. p. 4, him an inscription at Kūlagere, in Mysore,¹ which mentions the ruling prince as the Dharma-Mahārājādhirāja Nṛtimārga-Koṅṅunivarman-Permanaḍi, and is dated Śaka-Saṃvat 831 (expired), = A.D. 909-810. The Iggali inscription has given a date for him in A.D. 891-92. That, however, is a date for him in the time of his predecessor. And, from an inscription at Honnāyakanhalli,² it would appear that his rule began in Ś.-S. 815 (expired), = A.D. 898-94.³ It would seem that he did not secure the succession without some opposition. We have, just after the date mentioned above for the commencement of his rule, an inscription at Tāyalūr, in Mysore,⁴ i.e. within the Western Gaṅga territory, which is dated Ś.-S. 817 (expired), = A.D. 895-96, and mentions, as then reigning or ruling, a certain Nōḷambādhirāja,—that is to say, the Pallava prince of the Nōḷambavāḍi province. The explanation of this is evidently furnished by the statement in the Bēgūr inscription that, when that record was drawn up, Ereyappa was governing, after having deprived all his enemies of their power; plainly, his accession to the leadership of the Western Gaṅgas was opposed, and chiefly by the Pallavas of Nōḷambavāḍi, who succeeded in occupying for a time part at least of his hereditary possessions.

From the Ātakūr inscription,⁵ we know that Ereyappa had a son named Rāchamalla I.,⁶ and that it was by fighting and killing Rāchamalla that another member of the family, Bātuga II., obtained the succession. As will be seen further on, this occurred in or before A.D. 940. We have no records attributable to Rāchamalla I. But the length of time from the initial note 3), appears to have obtained evidence that Ayyapadēva was a Pallava.—The evidence seems to be the Hirē-Bidanūr inscription (mentioned by Mr. Rice as the Goribidnūr inscription in Mys. Inscr. Introd. p. 45), which, according to a transcription that Mr. Rice has kindly sent me, distinctly mentions Ayyapadēva as Pallava-dēva and as having also the name of Nōḷambādhirāja.

¹ Ep. Carn. Vol. III., Ml. 30.—As I have already intimated (page 152 above), my identifications, upon which this part of the succession is arranged, must be taken as tentative for the present: the miscellaneous subordinate items of information, contained in the records at present available, do not help at all; and we want more facsimiles in the case of records which are not dated. But my identifications are at any rate more satisfactory than those proposed by Mr. Rice. Thus (ibid. Introd. p. 4, and see also his Classified List which follows page 36), he would identify the Nṛtimārga of the Kūlagere inscription, and Ereyappa, with, respectively, the Nṛtimārga and his son Satyavākya (whom I identify with Raṣavikrama, the son, and Rājamalla, the grandson, of Muttarasa) of the Doddahunḍi inscription (page 163 above); whereas, the date of the Kūlagere inscription, and the period in which we must of necessity place Ereyappa, are altogether inconsistent with the use of the old form of the ṛā in the Doddahunḍi inscription. And he would further identify with the Nṛtimārga of the Kūlagere inscription the Satyavākya (whom I identify with Bātuga I.) of the Iggali inscription (page 164 above); whereas, it seems clear to me that a Nṛtimārga is not to be identified with any Satyavākya.

² Mentioned by Mr. Rice in Ep. Carn. Vol. III. Introd. p. 4. I assume that Mr. Rice means that this record actually contains the appellation of Nṛtimārga, and that he does not simply allot it to a Nṛtimārga (namely, to the Nṛtimārga to whom he would allot also the Doddahunḍi and Kūlagere records) on some merely inferential grounds.

⁴ Ep. Carn. Vol. III., Ml. 13.—Mr. Rice (ibid. Introd. p. 4) speaks of it as “apparently an independent grant by Nōḷambādhirāja,” but also suggests that Nōḷambādhirāja was “perhaps subordinate to Nṛtimārga,” i.e. to Ereyappa. I think, however, that the true explanation is that which I suggest. He also (loc. cit.) proposes to treat as “an intrusive Pallava inscription” another record at Tāyalūr (Ml. 14, with a lithograph), which is dated in the month Śrāvaṇa (July-Aug.), Śaka-Saṃvat 829 (expired), falling in A.D. 907; here, however, there is nothing to refer the record to any particular family; it only registers a grant made by villagers, and it does not mention the ruler at all.

date of Ereyappa, A.D. 893-94, to the latest date that we have for Bûtuga II., A.D. 940-50, renders it probable that he did actually succeed to the leadership of the Gaṅgas, though perhaps for no long period; and the Râshtrakûta record which mentions his overthrow and fixes the latest date for it, seems, in fact, to describe him as actually in possession.

The next in succession was Bûtuga II.,¹ whose name appears in Kanarese in also the form of Bûtayya and in Sanskrit as Bhûtârya, and who had the full appellation of the Dharma-Mahârâjâdhirâja Satyavâkya-Koṅṇuṇivarma-Permanaḍi-Bûtuga,² and the birudas of Gaṅga-Gâṅgêya, "a very Kârttikôya, Karṇa, or Bhîshma, among the Gaṅgas," Gaṅga-Nârâyana, "a very god Viṣṇu among the Gaṅgas," Nanniya-Gaṅga, "the truthful Gaṅga," and Jayaduttaraṅga, "the lintel of victory."³ It has already been noted that the Âtakûr inscription tells us that he obtained the succession by fighting and killing Râchamalla I., son of Ereyappa; and, that this occurred in or before A.D. 940, is shewn by a Râshtrakûta grant from Dêôlî, dated in that year, which mentions the fact of the overthrowing of Râchamalla (therein called Rachhyâmalla), and implies that Bûtuga (therein spoken of as Bhûtârya) received material assistance from the Râshtrakûta king Kṛishṇa III.⁴ The Hebbâl inscription of A.D. 975, from the Dhârwar district,⁵ tells us that, during the reign of the Râshtrakûta king Kṛishṇa II., Bûtuga II. married Rêvaka, who was a daughter of Vaddiga (grandson of Kṛishṇa II.) and an elder sister of Kṛishṇa III., and that he received, as her dowry, the districts known as the Puligere or Purigere three-hundred, which was the country that lay round, and was named after the ancient name of, Lakshmêshwar, in the Miraj State, about the centre of the Dhârwar district,— the Belvola three-hundred, which lay in the same neighbourhood and included, as various records shew, Gadag, Appigere, Kurtakôti, and Nargund, in Dhârwar, Hôli in the Belgaum district, and Kukkanûr in the Nizâm's Dominions,— the Kisukâḍ seventy, which was a small district of which the chief town was Paṭṭadakal, the ancient Kisuvola and Paṭṭada-Kisuvola, in the Bâdâmi tâluka, Bijâpur district,— and the Bâge, Bâgenâḍ, or Bâgadage seventy, which was another small district lying round Bâgalkôt, the ancient Bâgadage and Bâgadige, the chief town of the Bâgalkôt tâluka in the same district. This marriage must be placed somewhere towards the end of the reign of Kṛishṇa II.; say, about A.D. 910.⁶ The same record mentions also another wife of Bûtuga II., named Kallabbarasi, and his mother Bhujjabbarasi, the elder sister of Bâtayya, Simhavarmanarasa, and Chechchapayya. Of the time of Bûtuga II. himself, we have an inscription at Âtakûr, in Mysore,⁷ dated in the Saunya samvatsara, Śaka-Samvat 872

² The spurious Sûḍi grant would give the first component of this appellation in the form of Satyantivâkya; this, however, is an anomalous form, which is not at all likely to be authentic.

⁶ Kṛishṇa II. succeeded to the throne in or very soon after A.D. 878; and the latest date that we have for him is A.D. 911-12. According, therefore, to the actual wording of the Hebbâl inscription, the marriage may have taken place at any time between A.D. 878 and 912. But we must place it as late as possible in that period; because Kṛishṇa II. was a great-grandfather at the time of the marriage, and Maruṇadêva, the son of Bâtuga II. and Rêvaka, was not born;— so the record tells us,— until the reign of Vaddiga, i.e. between A.D. 938 and 940.

⁷ Ep. Ind. Vol. II. p. 168; since then, it has been edited by Mr. Rice also (Ep. Carn. Vol. III., Md. 41, with a lithograph), to whose rendering I owe the name of the hound Kâji in line 10.— Mr. Rice (ibid. Introd. p. 6, and see the Classified List of the Inscriptions) would connect with Bûtuga certain inscriptions at Varna in Mysore (My 35 to 37 and 40 to 45), which appear to mention Châlûkya princes named Narasimha and Gugga or Goggi,

(current), = A.D. 949-50, which records the facts that Kṛishṇa III. fought and killed the Chōla king Rājāditya at Takkōla,—the modern Takkōlam, on the south-east of Arconum Junction in the North Arcot district, Madras Presidency,¹—and that Būtuga II., being pleased with the prowess in battle of his follower Maṇalarata, of the lineage of Sagara, who had the biruda of Būtugana-aṅkakāra, “the warrior or champion of Būtuga,” and the hereditary title of “lord of Valabhi, the best of towns,” bestowed on him, as a mark of favour, a hound named Kāli; that the hound was set at a big boar on a hill in the village of Beḷatūr in the Kejale district; that the hound and the boar killed each other; and that, in commemoration, the stone which bears the record, and which has on it a sculpture shewing the fight of the hound and the boar, was set up at Ātakūr, and a small grant of land was made. It is an addition at the top of this record which tells us that Būtuga II. had, previously, obtained the Gaṅgavāḍi province by fighting and killing Rāchamalla I., the son of Eṇṇeyappa; and it adds that it was Būtuga II. who actually slew the Chōla king Rājāditya, and that Kṛishṇa III. then gave to Būtuga II., viz. confirmed him in the possession of, the four districts mentioned above as forming the dowry of Rēvaka, and also gave him the Banavāsi twelve-thousand province.²

The Hebbāl inscription tells us that the son of Būtuga II. and Rēvaka was Maruḷadēva; but it does not say that he ruled, and perhaps implies that he did not. To Maruḷadēva and Bijabbe, it says, there was born a son, whom it perhaps names as Rachcha-Gaṅga; and he, it says, did rule: we have, however, as yet, no records attributable to him.

Next in succession, it tells us, there came another son of Būtuga II., by another wife named Kallabbarasi, viz. Mārasimha II., who had, as we learn from it and other records, the full a god named Būtēsvara, which seems to commemorate either Būtuga II. or his predecessor Būtara-Būtuga I., and a battle between two persons called Būdiga and Polukēsi, the latter of whom, he suggests, may have been the Western Chālukya king Irivabedaṅga-Satyāśraya,—whose period, however (A.D. 997 and 1008), is half a century too late for Būtuga II. Till we have lithographs, it is impossible to make any satisfactory use of these inscriptions.

² A copper-plate grant from Sūḍi, in the Dhārwar district (above, Vol. III. p. 158, with a partial lithograph), purports to be another record of Būtuga II., and to be dated in the month Kārttika (Oct.-Nov.), falling in A.D. 938 or 939, of the Vikrīn samvatsara, coupled with Śaka-Samvat 860 expired, perhaps correctly (according to the northern luni-solar system of the sixty-year cycle), or perhaps by mistake for 861 expired (according to the southern luni-solar system). It presents a perfectly possible date for Būtuga II.; and it quotes his birudas correctly. On the other hand, it includes the fictitious genealogy, before Śivamāra I., which is given in the unquestionably spurious records; in mentioning a real historical fact, viz. the marriage of Būtuga II. with a daughter of Amoghavarsha-Vaddiga, it leaves us to infer that her name was Divāḷambā, whereas the name given in the Hebbāl inscription is Rēvaka; the characters in which it is engraved present a decidedly later general appearance than those of the Ātakūr inscription, and of any records, that I am acquainted with, belonging to within fifty years or so after the asserted date; and the details of the date do not work out correctly for either of the two years to which it is possible to refer them. These points present reasons for viewing the record with great suspicion. And there is the following additional reason for stamping it conclusively as a spurious record: namely, it mentions the victory over the Chōla king Rājāditya as a fact already accomplished in A.D. 938 or 939; whereas, not only is this event not mentioned in the Dēḍli grant of A.D. 940, which enumerates the achievements of Kṛishṇa III. pretty fully, and would certainly not have omitted such an event as that, if it had occurred, but also the Ātakūr inscription distinctly places the event in A.D. 949-50.—I have said (above, Vol. III. p. 176) that the characters of the Sūḍi grant seem to be distinctly more modern than those of the Korumelli grant of Rājārāja I. (Ind. Ant. Vol. XIV. p. 48, and lithograph), which was issued in or after A.D. 1022. The Korumelli grant is from the eastern part of Southern India. Among the western records, the characters of the Sūḍi grant resemble most closely those of the grant of the Silāhāra prince Mārasimha, of A.D. 1058 (Cave-Temple Inscriptions, No. 10 of the brochures of the Archaeological Survey of Western India, p. 102, and lithograph).—The Sūḍi grant purports to supply various other items of history in connection with Būtuga II. (amongst them, that after the defeat of Rājāditya, he besieged Tanjāpurī, i.e. Tanjore, which was possibly a fact; see above, Vol. III. p. 283), and a few in connection with some of his predecessors. I do not quote them; because it is undesirable to encumber my pages, further than cannot well be avoided, with alleged names and events for which we have no reliable authority.

style of the Dharma-Mahārājādhirāja Satyavākya-Koṅṇivarma-Permanaḍi-Mārasimha, with the *birudas*¹ of Gaṅga-Kandarpa, "the Gaṅga god of love," Gaṅga-Vidyādhara, "the Gaṅga Vidyādhara or demigod," Gaṅgachūḍamaṇi, "the crest-jewel of the Gaṅgas," Gaṅgamaṇḍalika, "the Gaṅga chieftain," Gaṅgavajra, "the Gaṅga diamond or thunderbolt," Gaṅgarasimha, "the lion of the Gaṅgas," Gaṅgarolgaṇḍa, "the hero among the Gaṅgas," Guttiya-Gaṅga, "the Gaṅga of Gutti," with reference, apparently, to the town of Gutti in the Bellary District,² Nalamb-Āntaka, "the Death of the Nalambas," and Nalambakuḷ-Āntaka, "the Death of the family of Nalambas," i.e. of the Pallavas of the Nalambavāḍi province, Chaladuttaraṅga, "the lintel of firmness of character," Dharmāvatāra, "the incarnation of religion," Jagadōkavira, "the sole hero of the world," and Maṇḍalika-Trinētra, "a very god Śiva among chieftains." He is evidently the Satyavākya-Permanaḍi, in connection with whom an inscription at Kārya,³ in Mysore, cites a date in the month Māgha (Jan-Feb.), falling in A.D. 968, of the Prabhava sainvatsara, Śaka-Sainvat 890 (current), as being in his fifth year,—thus his initial point in A.D. 963 or 964. And an inscription at Mēlāgāni,⁴ in Mysore, which mentions him as Permaḍi-Mārasimha, tells us that news that he had passed away⁵

⁴ Ep. Carn. Vol. III., Nj. 192.—The day is called Peretale-divasa, "the day of Śiva" (pere-tale, pere-dale, = 'he on whose head is the crescent'); the same day of Śravaṇa is mentioned in an inscription of A.D. 907 at Tāyalūr (ibid. Md. 14; noticed on page 165 above, note 4); and the same day of Mārgaśīrṣa, in an inscription at Rāmpura (ibid. Sr. 148; noticed on page 164 above, note 4). One would think, at first sight, that the expression denotes the day of the fourteenth tithi of the dark fortnight, on which there is the Śivarātri-festival in honour of Śiva, in every month, all through the year; in which case, we might compare with it the expression Śiva-tithi, "the tithi of Śiva" (in No. 292 of Prof. Kielhorn's Śaka dates; Ind. Ant. Vol. XXIV. p. 202), applied in verse to Māgha kṛṣṇa 14, which in another record (No. 325 in the same list) has the fuller name of Śivarātri-mahātithi, also in verse. But it really denotes the eighth tithi, as rendered by Mr. Rice in his translations: thus, a verse in the Chaturvarga-Chintamani, Vol. III. Part II. p. 865, line 9, for which I am indebted to Prof. Kielhorn, says—saptam Saptasaptam tu Aṣṭamrteṣu tathā Aṣṭam, "the seventh is Śūrya's tithi, and the eighth that of Śiva;" and it appears to be applied to the eighth tithi of both the bright and the dark fortnights. In a similar way, the spurious Sūdi grant (see page 167 above, note 2) names the eighth tithi of the bright fortnight of Kārttika "the tithi of Nandīśvara," i.e. of Śiva as the lord of the bull Nandi; and the Nandīśvara day of the bright fortnight of Phālguna, without any specification of the tithi, is mentioned in the Peggu-ūr inscription of A.D. 978 (see page 173 below).—In this last record, the name is followed by a word which has not been satisfactorily settled yet. Mr. Kittel read Nandīśvaraṃ talpa-devaṣam=dge, and translated "when the Nandīśvara (day) was the chair-day" (Ind. Ant. Vol. VI. p. 102); and Mr. Rice has suggested the reading of Nandīśvaraṃ tallaj-devaṣam=dge (in which, however, we ought to have dvaṣam), with the translation "at the rising of the happy house (or sign) of Taurus" or "on the day that Nandīśvara was stopped" (id. Vol. XIV. p. 76, and Coorg Inscriptions, p. 7). But neither rendering is satisfactory; the latter, in particular. Nothing final can be said until we have a purely mechanical facsimile of the record. But the published lithographs seem to make it certain that the reading is not tallaj-devaṣam (according to Mr. Rice), and probable that it is tale-devaṣam, rather than talpa-devaṣam (according to Mr. Kittel). And we have the same expression, tale-devaṣam=dge, in a Chōḷa inscription of A.D. 1032 at Suttūru (Ep. Carn. Vol. III., Nj. 164; treated by Prof. Kielhorn, from another transcript, above, Vol. IV. p. 69), in a passage which mentions the full-moon of Kārttika as the tale-devaṣa, and then specifies the second tithi (of the dark fortnight) as the date of the record. It has been proposed to translate tale-devaṣa in this passage by "first day;" in support of which we might quote tale-bāgalu, 'front door, principal entrance (of a house),' and tale-vēḍu, 'a chief place;' but it is not apparent why the full-moon day, which is the last day of the bright fortnight, should be called "the first day" with reference to the second tithi of the dark fortnight, and still less so why the Nandīśvara day, the eighth tithi, should itself be called "the first day."

had reached the Pallava princes Pallavāditya, Nolambādhirāja, and Chorayya-Nolamba, who were then at Sāyra-Miniyūr,¹ in the month Āshāḍha (June-July), falling in A.D. 974, of the Bhāva samvatsara, Ś.-S. 896 (expired). An inscription at Nagarle, in Mysore,² dated Ś.-S. 892 (expired), = A.D. 970-71, mentions him as Permādi. An inscription at Adaraguñchi, in the Dhārwar district,³ with a date in the month Āsvayuja, falling in October, A.D. 971, of the Prajāpati samvatsara, Ś.-S. 893 (expired), mentions him as then governing the Gaṅgavādi ninety-six-thousand, the Puligeṇe three-hundred, and the Belvola three-hundred; in the reign of the Rāshtrakūṭa king Khotṭiga. An inscription at Guṇḍūr, in the same district,⁴ with a date in the month Āshāḍha, falling in June, A.D. 973, of the Śrīmukha samvatsara, Ś.-S. 896 (current), mentions him as still governing the Puligeṇe three-hundred and the Belvola three-hundred, in the reign of Khotṭiga's successor, Kakka II. The inscription of A.D. 975 at Hebbāl, in the same district,⁵ speaks of him as having had in his hands, in the course of his career, the government of a very large area, including not only the Gaṅgavādi province, the Puligeṇe three-hundred, and the Belvola three-hundred, but also the Nolambavādi thirty-two-thousand, the Banavāsi twelve-thousand, the Sāntalige thousand, and everything included as far as "the great river."⁶ And his epitaph at Śravaṇa-Belgola, now edited, gives a full list of his

⁶ The word used in the original is perdore, which is a compound from per, 'great,' and toṛe, 'a stream or river:' in other places, it appears in the forms of peddore and beddore; and we may at any time meet with the later form heddore. Kittel's Dictionary gives perdore and heddore in the sense of 'a large stream or river,' but without suggesting any identification. And Mr. Rice has said that the term generally denotes the Kṛishṇā (Coorg Insers. p. 5, note), and has applied it in that sense in an inscription at Basarāl in Mysore (Ep. Carn. Vol. III. Md. 122, and Introd. p. 19). But there are passages in which it certainly does not denote the Kṛishṇā. The Bīlūr inscription of A.D. 888 (see page 164 above, under Būtuga I.) speaks of that village as peddore-gareya Bīlūr (line 8), which may no doubt be literally translated, as was done by Mr. Rice, by "Bīlūr of, i.e. on, the bank of the peddore," but means more probably "Bīlūr of (the district that was known by the name of) the banks of the peddore,"—especially if we pay attention to the expression beddore-gareya elpadimbarum enṭ-okkalum in lines 9, 10 of the record. And the Peggu-ūr inscription of A.D. 978 (see page 173 below, under Rāchamalla II.) mentions a certain Rakkasa, described as beddore-gareyan-āḍutt-ire (line 8), which may no doubt be literally translated by 'while governing the bank of the beddore,' but seems much more probably to mean "while governing (the district that was known by the name of) the banks of the beddore." These two records are in Coorg, and belong to that part of the country only. There can be no reference in them to the Kṛishṇā, which, even at the nearest point, is almost three hundred miles away. And Mr. Rice has suggested (Coorg Insers. p. 5, note) that in these two records the words peddore and beddore probably denote the Lakshmantīrtha. In this, he followed Mr. Kittel, who said (Ind. Ant. Vol. VI. p. 100) that the term may perhaps here denote the Lakshmantīrtha, especially because that river is also called dodda-hole, a term in which dodda, again, means 'great,' and hole is synonymous with toṛe. Now, perdore would be exactly represented in Sanskrit by mahānadi, which is explained in Monier-Williams' Sanskrit Dictionary as meaning 'any great river which has a long course.' The Lakshmantīrtha is a perennial river, which supplies several important irrigation canals. But its whole course is not more than sixty miles; after which it flows into the Kāvērī. There is no apparent reason why it should be classed among the great rivers. And it seems much more likely to me that,—as was, in fact, suggested as an alternative possibility by Mr. Kittel (loc. cit.),—in the Bīlūr and Peggu-ūr inscriptions, the words peddore and beddore denote the Kāvērī, which, with its course of about four hundred and seventy-five miles, may fairly be classed among the great rivers of India: the Kāvērī, also, rises in Coorg; and it runs right through the very centre of the province, whereas the Lakshmantīrtha only runs for some twenty to twenty-five miles through the south-east corner of it; and the province might be called "the banks of the Kāvērī" much more appropriately than "the banks of the Lakshmantīrtha."—It may be noted here that, in Thacker's Reduced Survey Map of India, 1891, and in Constable's Hand Atlas of India, 1893, plate 34, the name Lakshmantīrtha has been applied, not to the Lakshmantīrtha itself (which is, in fact, not fully shewn), but to that part of the Kāvērī which lies in Coorg.—The Basarāl inscription, mentioned above, defines the limits, apparently in A.D. 1237, of the territory of the Hoyaṇa king Vira-Somēśvara: and it specifies, on the east, Kāñchi,—on the west, Velāvura, i.e. Pēlūr in the achievements:¹ it mentions several times his successes against the Pallavas of the Nolambavāḍi country (lines 19, 22, 86, 88), which bordered on his own hereditary territory; it further tells us that he became known as "the king of the Gurjaras," through conquering the northern region for the Rāshtrakūṭa king Kṛishṇa III. (ll. 7, 8),—that he overthrew a powerful opponent of Kṛishṇa III. named Alla (ll. 9, 84),²—that he broke the power of the Kirātas or mountain-tribes in the neighbourhood of the Vindhya mountains (ll. 10, 11),—that he protected the encampment of the emperor (i.e., probably, of Khotṭiga, or else of Kukka II.), at the town of Mānyakhēta (l. 12),³—that he crowned Indrarāja, i.e. Indra IV. (grandson of Kṛishṇa III.),⁴—that he prevailed against an opponent named Vajjala (ll. 14, 85),⁵—that he despoiled the ruler of the Banavāsi country (l. 15),—that he made the Māṭūras do obeisance

Hassan district, Mysore,—on the north, the perdore,—and, on the south, a place the name of which Mr. Rice tells us, is defaced but looks like Chalaśeravi, and which, he seems to suggest, may possibly be 'Chalaśeri' near Ponāni in the Malabar district. Here, the term perdore cannot denote the Kāvēri; because Bēlūr is to the north of that river. Nor can it denote the whole course of the Kṛishṇā; because at that time the Dēvagiri-Yālava king Siṅghana was in possession of the territory lying south of the Kṛishṇā and west of the Tuṅgabhadra, as far as any rate as Banavāsi. In this record, therefore, perdore probably means the Kṛishṇā on from the point at which the Tuṅgabhadra joins it. In the Hebbāl inscription of A.D. 875, mentioned in the text above, perdore may mean either the Kṛishṇā towards the north, or the Kāvēri towards the south. In the Mulgund inscription of the same year (see page 172 below, under Pañchaladēva), it must mean the Kṛishṇā, because of the mention of the southern ocean as the boundary on the south, and because the record itself is to the north of the Kāvēri.

² This person has not yet been identified.—As Dr. Hultzsch has reminded me, the name occurs in two inscriptions at Gwalior, in the case of Alla, a guardian of the fortress there, who was a son of Vāillabhaṭṭa of the Varjara family (Ep. Ind. Vol. I. p. 154 ff.); his date, however, was A.D. 875-76, a century before the time of Mārasimha.

⁴ This was evidently done in an attempt to continue the Rāshtrakūṭa sovereignty after the overthrow of Kukka II. by the Western Chālukya Taila II. in A.D. 973 or 974. The attempt is to be attributed to the close connection that existed between the two families: as we have already seen, Būtuga II. was a brother-in-law of Kṛishṇa III., and owed his possession of the Gaṅgavāḍi province to that king (page 168 above); and Indra IV. was the son of a son of Kṛishṇa III. by a daughter of Gaṅga-Gāṅḡya, i.e. Būtuga II. (Inscr. at Śrav.-Bel. No. 57: Mr. Rice, id. Intro. p. 21, at first identified the Gaṅga-Gāṅḡya of this record with Rāchamalla II., a successor of Mārasimha; but his grounds for doing so were completely erroneous, and he has now adopted the correct identification in Ep. Carn. Vol. III. Intro. pp. 5, 6). We are also told (again in Inscr. at Śrav.-Bel. No. 57) that Indra IV. was the son-in-law of a person called Rājachūḍāmaṇi, "the crest-jewel of kings," whom Mr. Rice (id. Intro. pp. 20, 21) was disposed to identify with a certain Piḷḷa who is mentioned in another record at Śravaṇa-Belgoḷa (No. 58); but it does not seem that the diruḍa Rājachūḍāmaṇi, in that record, is intended to belong to Piḷḷa, and it appears not at all unlikely that it really denotes Mārasimha II. The attempt to carry on the Rāshtrakūṭa sovereignty was not successful, though Indra IV. lived on for some nine years, eventually dying in A.D. 982 (see Inscr. at Śrav.-Bel. No. 57, and Ind. Ant. Vol. XX. p. 85, where some corrections have to be made in the relationships stated by me).—Mr. Rice (Inscr. at Śrav.-Bel. Intro. p. 19) would identify the Indrarāja of this passage in the epitaph of Mārasimha II. with the Rāshtrakūṭa king Khotṭiga; on the grounds that, on the analogy of the diruḍa of Nityavarsha-Indra III., the name Indra indicates a Nityavarsha, and Nityavarsha was the diruḍa of Khotṭiga also. But I cannot follow him in this circular reasoning: "Khotṭiga" is itself the Prakṛit form of a proper name, analogous to "Gojjiga" for "Gōviṇḍa"; and, whatever may be the Sanskrit word which it represents, that word is at least not "Indra."

to him,—that he reduced the hill-fort of Uchchaṅgi, which even the Kāḍuvaṭṭi,¹ great as was his prowess, had previously failed to reduce (ll. 20, 93),—that he destroyed a Śabara prince named Naraga (ll. 21, 54, 96),—that he made the Chôras, the Chôlas, and the Pāṇḍyas, as well as the Pallavas, bow down before him (ll. 21, 22),—and that he destroyed a Chālukya prince named Rājāditya, who had declared war against him (ll. 50, 51):² in recapitulating some of his conquests, lines 100 to 102 add, among the places at which he was victorious, the banks of the river Tāpi (the Tapti), the town or village of Gonûr,³ and Pāvaseya-kôṭe or the fortress of Pāvase:⁴ it says that he preserved the doctrine of Jina (l. 22), and founded Jain temples and *mānastambhas*⁵ at various unnamed places; and finally, as already noted, it tells us (ll. 110 to 112) that eventually he abdicated, and ended his days in the practice of religion at Baṅkāpur (in the Dhārwar district), at the feet of a Jain teacher named Ajitasēna.⁶ From other sources, we learn that Mārasimha's successes against Vajjala and at Gonûr and Uchchaṅgi were actually achieved for him by a minister named Chāmuṇḍarāya or Chāvūṇḍarāja, who wrote the *Chāmuṇḍarāya-Purāṇa*⁷ and was a minister of also Rāchamalla II. who came next but one in the succession after Mārasimha II. Thus, another record at Śravana-Belgola⁸ tells us that "the array of his (Chāmuṇḍarāya's) enemies was broken, like a herd of deer, on him, resembling a tusked elephant running to and fro (among them), when he stood in front of the victorious elephant, his lord, the glorious king Jagadēkavira-(Mārasimha II.), when the latter, at the command of king Indra,⁹ lifted up his arm to conquer Vajjaladēva, whose strength was as terrible as that of the ocean disturbed (and bursting its boundaries in the universal disorder) at the end of the age, (and) who was the younger brother of Pātālamalla;" and the Chāmuṇḍarāya-Purāṇa tells us¹⁰ that Chāmuṇḍarāya was born in the Brahma-Kshatra race,—that he was a pupil of Ajitasēna,—that his lord was

¹ From a transcription which Mr. Rice has kindly sent me, I find that the Mēlāgāni inscription of A.D. 974 (see Inscr. at Śrav.-Bel. Introd. p. 18, note 7) goes on to mention a person who was called "the affliction (samgashṭa, = samkashṭa, = samkaṣṭa) of all people; the ornament of the Pompala family; born in the Kāḍuvaṭṭi race; supreme lord of Kāūchīpura; he who is like a thunderbolt in the van of battle;" (just after this, unfortunately, the record comes to an end, without disclosing his name). This shows us that kāḍuvaṭṭi, in line 92-93 of the epitaph, is not a verbal form, but is the nominative which is required in apposition with tuṅga-parākrāman and the following verbs. And we can now recognise the same name, for an earlier period, in the Gulbānpode Bāga inscription No. II., which mentions "the whole of the forces of the Kāḍuvaṭṭi" (Ind. Ant. Vol. X. p. 39, text line 6).

² This person has not been identified yet.—The same name occurs among the Chalukyas, about a century and a half earlier, in the case of Rājāditya, father of the Mahāsāmānta Buddhavarasa, of the Śalukika (= Chalukika, Chalukya) race, who is mentioned in the Tōrkhēde grant (above, Vol. III. pp. 57, 58).

⁴ There is a village named Hāvasi (= Pāvase) in the Karajgi tāluks of the Dhārwar district. It is doubtful, however, whether this can be the place intended.

⁶ This person is mentioned again as the teacher of Mārasimha's minister Chāmuṇḍarāya (see farther on).

⁷ This work appears to have been finished in the Jēvara samvatsara, Śaka-Samvat 900 (current), = A. D. 977-78 (Inscr. at Śrav.-Bel. Introd. p. 22) — A record at Ālgōḍ (Ep. Carn. Vol. III., TN. 69) mentions the names of Gōvīṇḍamayya, his sons Mābalayya and Jēvarayya, who were followers of Nōlambskul-Āntaka, i.e. Mārasimha II., and Mābalayya's son Chāvūṇḍa. Can this person be the minister Chāmuṇḍarāya?

¹⁰ See Inscr. at Śrav.-Bel. Introd. p. 34. — The Purāṇa mentions various other śirudās and achievements of Chāmuṇḍarāya; they may be quoted when the text can be verified.

Jagadêkavîra, otherwise called Nôlambakul-Ântaka, i.e. Mârasimha II.,—and that he acquired the biruda of Samaradhuramdhara, "the yoke-bearer or leader in war," from his defeat of Vajjaladêva in "the Khedaga war,"¹ and the biruda of Viramârtanda, "a sun among heroes," from the valour which he displayed in the plain of Gonûr in battle against the Nôlambas, and the biruda of Raṇaraṅgasimha, "a lion in the battle-field," from his fight at the fort of Uchchaṅgi. The details given in the epitaph and the Purāṇa indicate, in addition to external fighting, some local insurrections, which must probably be attributed to opportunity afforded by the absence of Mârasimha on the campaign in Gujarât for Kṛishṇa III. And not the least remarkable among them is the statement that he had occasion to despoil the ruler of the Banavâsi country; for, that province had been given to his father by Kṛishṇa III., and presumably had passed by inheritance into his own hands. The explanation of this, however, and of the immediately following mention of the reduction of the Mâtûras, seems to be furnished by a record at Dêogiri in the Karajgi tâluka, Dhârwar district, of the tenth century A.D. and referable to A.D. 958,² which mentions a Mahîsâmantâdhipati Śântivarman of the Mâtûra family, with the hereditary title of "supreme lord of the town of Trikunda-pura," and having the Nandanavana-umbrella, the crest of a horse, and the mirror-banner, who was governing the Banavâsi twelve-thousand. From A.D. 878, or earlier, to 945, the administration of the Banavâsi province was in the hands of the Chellakêtana family.³ In A.D. 949-50 Kṛishṇa III. gave the province to Bûtuga II., who doubtless allowed the Chellakêtanas to continue to govern it for him. Bûtuga must have died a few years before A.D. 963-64, when Mârasimha II. succeeded Rachcha-Gaṅga. And it would seem that when he died, or else during the time of Rachcha-Gaṅga, the Mâtûras seized the province from the Chellakêtanas, and that they retained it until Mârasimha could make it convenient to reduce them.

Mârasimha II. must have been immediately succeeded by the Dharma-Mahîrâjâdhirâja Satyavâkya-Koṅṇuivarma-Paṇchaladêva, whom a fragment at Muḷgund, in the Dhârwar district,⁴ with a date in the Yuvan saṃvatsara, Śaka-Saṃvat 897 (expired), falling in August, A.D. 975,⁵ describes as governing "without any disorder" the whole territory from the eastern, the western, and the southern oceans as far as "the great river."⁶ Paṇchaladêva seems, then, to have taken advantage of the confusion that must have attended the overthrow of the Râshtrakûta king Kakka II. by the Western Châlukya Taila II., to set himself up as an independent king; but he was shortly afterwards killed in battle by Taila II. Earlier facts connected with him are to be found in the Adaraguñchi inscription,⁷ which tells us that in A.D. 971, when Mârasimha II. was governing the Gaṅgavâdi ninety-six-thousand, the Purigeṛe three-hundred, and the Belvola three-hundred, under the Râshtrakûta king Khotṭiga, he himself was governing a small circle of villages which was known as the Sebhi thirty and

probably took its appellation from the ancient name of Chabbi or Chebbi in the Hubli taluka, Dhârwar district, and in the Guṇḍûr inscription,¹ which mentions him as governing a ninety-six district in A.D. 973; this ninety-six district has not been identified; but possibly the expression is an abbreviation for the Gaṅgavâḍi ninety-six-thousand, which Mârasimha II.,—who is mentioned in the same record in connection with the government of only the Purigege three-hundred and the Belvola three-hundred, under Khoṭṭiga's successor Kakka II.,—may have entrusted to Pañchaladêva, in the course of ridding himself of the cares of office before passing into religious retirement at Baṅkâpur. The Muḡund inscription describes Pañchaladêva as Châlûkyapañchâdâna, "a lion to the Châlûkyas," and also as "subsisting (like a bee) on the waterlilies that were the feet of Chaladuttaraṅga, Jagadêkavîra, the glorious Nalambakul-Ântakadêva:" these epithets both stand in the string of titles that precedes the mention of Pañchaladêva's name; and the second of them, while capable of being interpreted to mean that Mârasimha II. was still alive, in retirement at Baṅkâpur, in August, A.D. 975, may perhaps refer to only the previous relations between the two persons.

Shortly after Pañchaladêva, there was Râchamalla II., who had the full style of the Dharma-Mahârâjâdhîrâja Satyavâkya-Koṅguṇivarma-Permanaḍi-Râchamalla. An inscription at Peggu-ûr, in Coorg,² which mentions him by all his appellations, furnishes a date for him in the month Phâlguna (Feb.-March), falling in A.D. 978, of the Îśvara samvatsara, Śaka-Samvat 899 (expired), and speaks of a certain Rakkasa, with the biruda of Annanabanta, "the warrior of his elder brother," who was governing the district called "the banks of the great river;"³ and an inscription at Dodda-Homma, in Mysore,⁴ which, however, does not mention him by his proper name, perhaps furnishes for him (or else for Pañchaladêva) a date in the preceding year.⁵ He was probably the last of the great Western Gaṅga princes; and his final date seems to be A.D. 984.⁶ Châmuṇḍarâya, who has already been mentioned in connection with Mârasimha II., was a minister of Râchamalla II. also; and, while holding office under this master, he caused to be made the colossal Jain image of Gommatâ or Gommatêśvara at Śravaṇa-Belgola,⁷ and attained so great a reputation for devotion to the faith to which he belonged, that he was remembered long after his death, and was quoted as one of three special promoters of

⁷ This is recorded in Inscr. at Śrav.-Bel. Nos. 75, 76, and more fully in No. 85, verses 6, 7.—The image still exists. For a full account of it and of the legends connected with it, see the Introduction of Mr. Rice's book, p. 22 to 33; the frontispiece of the book gives a photograph of the image.

the Jain religion,— the other two being Gaṅgarāja and Hulla, ministers of the Hoysala princes Vishnuvardhana and Narasimha I. in the twelfth century A.D.¹

POSTSCRIPT

While the first proofs of the above article were passing through the Press, I began to make a fuller examination, than has as yet been attempted, of the dates of the spurious records of Western India, for all of which there should be some explanation forthcoming, if we can only find the clue to the solution of them.

I have referred to two of these dates in note 2 on page 157 above. One of them is from the spurious Tanjore grant (Ind. Ant. Vol. VIII. p. 212), which purports to give a date in A.D. 248 for an imaginary Western Gaṅga whose name is given in this record as Arivarman, by a mistake— (due to the carelessness of the writer in writing, in line 10, śrīmadarivarmma instead of śrīmaddharivarmma, i.e. in omitting a subscript dh)— for the Harivarman of the other spurious records of the same series. The details of the date are the Prabhava samvatsara, coupled with Śaka-Samvat 169 expired, the new-moon tithi of Phālguna, Friday, the Rêvati nakshatra, the Vṛiddhi yōga, and the Vṛishabha lagna. And, in the period to which the concoction of this record is to be referred on palæographic grounds, I find that in the Prabhava samvatsara, Ś.-S. 1009 expired, the new-moon tithi of Phālguna ended on Friday, 25th February, A.D. 1088. The moon, indeed, was not then in Rêvati, and did not come to Rêvati till about 4 hrs. 28 min. after mean sunrise on the Saturday: but the moon often is in Rêvati on the new-moon day of Phālguna, and may possibly have been actually so shewn for that day in Ś.-S. 1009 expired by an erroneous almanac or by a calculation worked out wrongly for the person who fabricated the record; or the forger may have added that detail on chance, simply to give a greater air of plausibility to the record, as he certainly did in respect of the Vṛiddhi yōga, which cannot ever occur on the new-moon day of Phālguna.² The result of the 25th February, A.D. 1088, fully meets the palæographic requirements of the case, and, I believe, fixes the actual time at which this record was concocted: viz., the forger was working on, or had in view, Friday, the new-moon day of Phālguna of the Prabhava samvatsara, Ś.-S. 1009 expired; and he produced the necessary appearance of antiquity by striking off from the Śaka year,— in order to suit, more or less, a fictitious pedigree and chronology that had already become established and well-known,³ and at the same time to obtain a samvatsara which would be correct according to the southern luni-solar system,— exactly fourteen of the sixty-year cycles, and thus obtained the year Ś.-S. 169 expired which he actually quoted in the record.

The second of the two dates to which I have referred in note 2 on page 157 above, is from the spurious Merkara grant (Ind. Ant. Vol. I. p. 363, and Coorg Inscr. p. 1), which has been supposed to give a date in A.D. 466 for an imaginary Western Gaṅga named Avinīta-Koṅgupi. This date has to be explained in a different way. The details of the date are the year 388, not specified either as current or as expired, the fifth tithi of the bright fortnight of Māgha, Monday, and the Svāti nakshatra. The samvatsara is not specified; and so we have not the particular help that we have in the case of the Tanjore grant. Also, the era is not specified. As regards this detail, it has always been assumed that the Śaka era was intended, with the exception that Prof. Kielhorn has marked the point as dubious in examining this date as a Śaka date (Ind. Ant. Vol. XXIV p. 11, No. 169, and p. 181, No. 7); and no doubt the person who fabricated the record did intend the year to pass muster as Śaka-Saṃvat 388. But, even with the correction made below, the date is not a correct one for Ś.-S. 388, either current or expired; and it is not by means of the Śaka era at all, that we solve the puzzle of this date. The solution is furnished by an era which is still in use in Bombay and Madras under the name of the Fasli or harvest reckoning with the epoch of A.D. 590-91, which is the true original epoch, and in other parts of India with the artificial epochs of A.D. 592-93 and 593-94. It has, indeed, always been supposed that these harvest reckonings were created in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries A.D. by the emperors Akbar and Shāh Jehān. But, if so, a most extraordinary coincidence happened, in the creation by Shāh Jehān of a reckoning with the exact epoch of an era which had existed a thousand years before his time; and I think it can be made clear that what Akbar did was simply to adapt an original Hindū era to official purposes in certain parts of the country, with an alteration of two or three years in the proper reckoning of it, and that what Shāh Jehān did was to accept for official purposes in other parts of the country the true original reckoning which had survived there.¹ The era with the epoch of A.D. 590-91 appears first in the Goa grant of Satyāśraya-Dhruvarāja-Indravarman (Jour. Do. Br. R. As. Soc. Vol. X. p. 348), which is dated in the twentieth year of his government, coupled with Ś.-S. 532 (expired) = A.D. 610-11. It appears next in the records of the Eastern Gāṅga kings of Kalinganagara, who were his descendants; for instance, in the Chicacole grant of Indravarman II., dated in the year 128 (Ind. Ant. Vol. XIII. p. 119), the donation was made on the occasion of an eclipse of the moon in the month Mārgaśīra, which eclipse is that of the 12th November, A.D. 718. Traces of it are distinctly to be found in several of the spurious dates of Western India. And I believe that the fictitious Western Gāṅga chronology and pedigree derive their origin from genuine dates in this era, which were ignorantly or intentionally applied as Śaka dates and were then coupled with imaginary names. As regards the date now under consideration, that of the Merkara grant,—the specification of the Svāti nakshatra, if it means anything at all, requires us to understand that the writer of the record wrote “the bright fortnight” by mistake for “the dark fortnight;” for, the moon can never be in Svāti on Māgha śukla 5, but may be on Māgha kṛishṇa 5. In the year 388 of the era of A.D. 590-91, Māgha kṛishṇa 5 began on Monday 20th January, A.D. 979; but the moon did not come to Svāti till late on the Tuesday or soon after sunrise on the Wednesday. In the next year, however, 389, Māgha kṛishṇa 5 ended on Monday, 9th February, A.D. 980; and on that day the moon was in Svāti at sunrise and for more than ten hours after sunrise. The result meets fully the palæographic requirements of the case. If we take the date of the 20th January, A.D. 979, we must assume that the mention of the Svāti nakshatra was introduced in circumstances similar to those suggested above for the mention of the Rêvati nakshatra and the Vriddhi yōga in the Tanjore date. But I believe that the result of the 9th February, A.D. 980, is the proper one and fixes the actual time at which this record was concocted: vis., the forger was working on, or had in view, Monday, Māgha kṛishṇa 5, of a year which was described in the almanac that was consulted as the Śaka year 901 (expired), and may have been also described there as, or else was known to him to be, the year 389 of an era to which possibly no name was attached; he produced the necessary appearance of antiquity by adopting the figures of the more recent era, with the intention that they should be supposed to be figures of the earlier era, the Śaka; he purposely omitted to quote the saṃvatsara, because he saw that, the difference (901—389 = 512) being not divisible exactly by sixty, the saṃvatsara for Ś.-S. 901 expired would not be correct for Ś.-S. 389; and, in copying out the date, he made the mistake of writing buddha

² At sunrise on the Friday in question, the yōga was Śubha; and the Vṛiddhi yōga had occurred about eleven days earlier.— The remaining detail, the Vṛishabha lagna, means only the rising of the sign Taurus. I cannot calculate it with the Tables available to me; but it would naturally occur at some time or other during the twenty-four hours of the Friday.

³ The Tanjore grant was certainly not the earliest of the spurious records in order of fabrication.

* Mr. Rice's translation represents the Nalamba as swollen with pride from receiving obeisance from the son of of the Mātara family; and this implies some proper name, illegible, after vamśaja. But there is no room for any name: at the beginning of line 18, there is only one illegible akṣhara, which is evidently to be restored as ṛd; and at the end of line 17, after the ja, the back of the impression distinctly shews remnants of eva.

- 28 Lines 28 to 47 contain five Sanskrit verses, in the Śārdūlavikrīḍita metre.
 The original has suffered so much damage that only a few detached words can be made out;—no connected passages capable of translation.
 And it is sufficient to note that we have — śrī-Gaṅga-chūḍāmaṇi, line 31; Pallava, line 33; Gaṅga-bhūpati and Noḷamb-Āntaka, line 35;
Noḷamb-Āntaka, line 39; Pallava, line 41; and śrī-Mārasimha, line 42.
 Lines 48 and 49 contain the first two pādas of another verse, in the same metre, which, again, are almost quite illegible; and the verse ends as follows:—

- 56 These twenty-eight lines appear to contain six or seven more Sanskrit verses, of which we can recognise that one is in the Sragdharā metre, and one in the Śārdūlavikrīḍita metre. The original has here suffered still more damage; and nothing worth quoting can be made out, except

^b Metre, Śārdūlavikrīḍita.

^c Mr. Rice's text gives balla Dallenam kōḍisi, which does not even suit the metre. In line 8-9, he read baḷavadalla, correctly; but, instead of recognising that it was to be divided into baḷavad-Alla, he treated it as if it stood for baḷavadaddalla, and thus obtained the name of Dalla, instead of Alla.

^d Metre, Utpalāmālikā; and in the next verse.

^e We have here bāḷvud, an optional form of the 2nd pers. plur. imperat. of bāl, 'to live, to be alive,' etc.; so, also, nīlvud, in line 114.

TRANSLATION.

[After the exclamations Ōm !, Hail !, the record opens with a verse, a good deal of which is illegible and cannot be restored, but which is directed to the praises of a person not mentioned in it by name apparently, but identical of course with the Mārasimha of the rest of the record, who is here described as enjoying, through the power of the sword of his arm, the whole earth, up to the ocean,— as being a very jewel to adorn the kings of the Gaṃga lineage,—and as darkening, like a bank of clouds, the moon that was the faces of the women of his foes. It then proceeds]:—

[Lines 28 to 47 mention the person who is the subject of eulogy as the crest-jewel of the Gaṅgas, the Gaṅga king, Nolamb-Āntaka, and Mārasimha, and speak of victories over the Pallavas. And then the record continues]—

(L. 50)—He, the glorious crest-jewel of the Gaṅgas, became a very forest-fire for (the destruction of) the lion Rājāditya, the crest-jewel of the Chālukyas, who in these words¹ had made a brave declaration of war. When the world was wasting away with a feverish apprehension that Maḍhu and Kaiṭabha and other leaders of the demons, slain by (the god) Viṣṇu the foe of (the demon) Mura, had thus risen again, (old) foes in (fresh) illusory disguises, he, Nolamb-Āntaka, made the (whole) circuit of the earth happy with the [lamentations] of the demon-like Naraga, which intermingled with the tears of joy of the earth.

[Lines 56 to 83 contain a further description of the prowess and conquests of the same person, who is mentioned again as the crest-jewel of the Gaṅgas in line 74. But no connected passages can be made out here. The record then continues]:—

(L. 84)—Shall I praise the valiance which put to flight and conquered Alla, who was possessed of strength that was too great to be realised?; shall I praise the magnificence which brought shame to Vajjala, who was famous in the world?; shall I praise the bravery which utterly slew the of the Pallava kings?; say, how shall I praise him, the lintel of firmness of character?; I know not how! Glorious was the array² of him

² Mr. Rice has in his text given offaje, which means 'a heap, mass, company, abundance, a row,' but in his translation has given 'tribute,' for which the proper Kanarese word is offaja. The actual reading is offaji which is probably to be taken as a variant of offaje.

He has spoken, (and) he will protect; let not your courage fail;³ the protection of Yama (shall be with you): he will give you that which he has promised: shall any of the deeds or words of him, the crest-jewel of the Gaṅgas, ever fail?

(L. 100)—Om! Having thus fought (and) conquered (the aforesaid) enemies, and numerous other people, on the banks of the Tāpi in the neighbourhood of the forests of the Vindhya mountains, at Mānyakhēṭa the best of towns, at Gonūr, at Uchchaṅgi, in the Banavāsi country, at the fortress of Pāvase, and in various other localities, (and) having set up great banners⁴ at various places, (and) having bestowed great gifts, he, the glorious Nōlambakuḷ-Āntakadeva, who had (thus) become famous,—(who had the titles of) the Vidyādhara of the Gaṅgas, the hero among the Gaṅgas, the lion of the Gaṅgas, the crest-jewel of the Gaṅgas, the Gaṅga Kandarpa (god of love), the Gaṅga diamond (or thunderbolt), the lintel of firmness of character, the Gaṅga of Gutti, the incarnation of religion, the sole hero of the world, the keeper of promises, the sun (for the destruction) of enemies, the rough in battle, the very Triṇētra (Śiva) among chieftains,—caused to be made, at various places, Jain temples and mānastambhas.⁵ (May there be) auspiciousness!

(L. 110)—Om! Having carried out acts of religion in a most worthy fashion, one year later he laid aside the sovereignty, and, at the town of Bankāpura, in the performance of worship in the proximity of the holy feet of the venerable Ajitasēna, he observed the vow (of fasting) for three days, and attained rest.

(L. 112)—Metre:—Aho! Chōḷa king, quiet down by gentle rubbing (thy palpitating) heart!; O Pāṇḍya, cease thy, and give up weeping!; O Pallava, run not away in fear; O retreat not from thy territory, (but) remain! the Gaṅga chieftain, Nōlamb-Āntaka, has gone in triumph to the abode of the gods!

² For “the Kāḍuvatti,” see page 171 above, note 1. In line 92, I analyse ḍiṭṭa vīgaḍa. The latter word may possibly be a proper name; or it may be something similar to gaḍa, ‘indeed, certainly;’ or it may perhaps stand for eggaḍu, = aggaḍa, = utkaḍa, ‘excess; affliction, trouble.’

No. 19.— ASSAM PLATES OF VALLABHADEVA;
SAKA-SAMVAT 1107.

By F. KIELHORN, PH.D., LL.D., C.I.E.; GÖTTINGEN.

These plates belong now to the Asiatic Society of Bengal, to which they were presented¹ by Mr. W. Winckler, Assistant Executive Engineer of Tezpur, the chief town of the Darrang district of Assam, Constable's Hand-Atlas of India, Plate 30 Bb. The text of the inscription has already been published by Dr. Hultsch, in the Zeitschrift D. Morg. Ges. Vol. XL. p. 42 ff. I re-edit the inscription² from excellent impressions which were taken by Dr. Fleet in February 1886, and given to me by him some years ago.

These are five copper-plates, the first and last of which are inscribed on one side only, and each of which measures from $7\frac{1}{8}$ " to 8" broad by from $5\frac{1}{4}$ " to $5\frac{1}{2}$ " high. Plates i to iv³ are numbered with numeral figures, which are engraved on the proper right margin of the second side of each plate. In the middle of the upper part each plate has a hole, for a ring, which had been cut already when the impressions were taken. The ring is $1\frac{1}{8}$ " in diameter and $\frac{1}{4}$ " thick; on it there slides another, thin pear-shaped ring, the ends of which are joined and were evidently run into the socket of a seal; but the seal is not now forthcoming. Some sides of the plates are quite smooth, others have rims, partly raised and partly fashioned; but, on every side, the writing is in a perfect state of preservation. The engraving is good throughout; the letters are shallow and, though the plates are thin, do not shew through on the backs. The average size of the letters is about $\frac{1}{16}$ ".—The characters belong to a variety of the northern alphabet which was used, about the 12th century A.D., so far as I can judge at present, in the most eastern parts of Northern India. They closely resemble those of the Deopara inscription of Vijayasêna, published with a photolithograph in Ep. Ind. Vol. I. p. 305 ff., and apparently also those of the three Sêna copper-plate inscriptions, published with indifferent photolithographs (or lithographs) in the Journal Beng. As. Soc. Vol. VII. p. 43 ff., Vol. XLIV. P. I. p. 11 ff., and Vol. LXV. P. I. p. 6 ff. That this alphabet belongs to Eastern India, is shewn at once by signs like those for *ê*⁴ (e.g. in état, l. 47), kha (in kha-dalê khalu, l. 2), ñka and nga (in Nihsankasinhasya, l. 23, and maṅgalasya, l. 3), ṭa (in ṭaṭi-prakaṭā, l. 2), ṭa (in bhagavatê, l. 1), etc., as well as by the numeral figures⁵ on the margins of the plates; and signs like those for ja, (in jagatām, l. 3), pha (in sapholitah, l. 15), la (in kha-dalê, l. 2), and especially those for jha (in jhāṭa, l. 41), and for the initial i (in itī, ll. 49 and 54), together with other peculiarities which the characters of this inscription have in common with those of the Deopara inscription, clearly distinguish the alphabet here used from another variety⁶ of eastern writing. As a trustworthy photolithograph

² When I suggested to Dr. Hultsch the great desirability of having the plates photolithographed, he most readily gave his permission to do so, and himself requested me to re-edit this record. The photolithograph has been prepared under Dr. Fleet's supervision.

⁶ I allude to the alphabet used, e.g., in the Kamauli plates of Vaidyadêva of Prâjyôtiṣha, published with a photolithograph in Ep. Ind. Vol. II. p. 347 ff. One special feature of that alphabet, which is essentially the same as that of the Gôvîndpur inscription of the poet Gaṅgādharma, published ibid. p. 330 ff., is, that many letters, at the top, have a kind of triangle. And another peculiarity is, that the letter r, before another consonant, is denoted by a short line which is sideways attached, on the proper right, to the middle of the akshara of which r forms part. In the Gôvîndpur inscription r is so written in all conjuncts; in the Kamauli plates, this is published herewith, I need not attempt a minute description of all individual characters; but one or two more general points may be drawn attention to. In deciphering the text, as was stated already by Dr. Hultsch, a difficulty is occasionally caused by the great similarity of two or even three different letters. Thus, it is not always easy to distinguish between p and y, between n and l (compare nalini-dalasya, l. 6). between ch and r (compare kiri chandra-, l. 9), ch and v (compare vachobhir-, l. 32), v and dh (compare vadhū-vaiddhavya-, l. 11), or between the subscript u and r (compare induh, l. 4, and °ragēndrau, l. 7); and where letters like these happen to occur in proper names such as we find in lines 36 and 43-49, it is impossible to vouch for the absolute correctness of the transcribed text. Another matter which may be mentioned is, that for some letters we have two or more different forms. This is particularly the case with the subscript u, but also, e.g., with l and dh; (for the forms of u compare Vasudēvāya, l. 1, dyumanind, l. 4, °pinadyugē, l. 8, induh, l. 4, and punātu, l. 5; for those of l, khalu, l. 2, Lamvōdarah, l. 3, and kēli-kula, l. 25; and for those of dh, dhṛita, l. 6, and khaḍg-āyudha, l. 34). I may also state that the letter r, where it immediately precedes another consonant, is written by the ordinary superscript sign, except in the conjuncts rgg, rññ, and rth, the forms¹ of which may be seen from svargga, l. 38, Udayakarnñah, l. 17, and °tyartham, l. 15. In the word varññavālī in line 2, the superscript r has been wrongly engraved on the top of an akshara which would be rññā, already without it.² The sign of aragraha is not used in the inscription; nor are there any special signs for final consonants. The sign of anusvāra is always written above the line and is nowhere employed in the interior of a simple word, instead of the nasal of one of the five classes; and the sign of visarga, differing from the sign which is used in the Deopara inscriptions, is much like an English 8, except that often, at the bottom, it has a short tail.³—The language sign for r is generally used when the sign of the consonant with which r is combined has a triangular top, as is the case in conjuncts like rkk, rchch, rjj, rll, rdd, rdh, rll, rvo, etc. Neither of these two peculiarities is found in the Deopara inscription or in the inscription here edited. It is true that in these inscriptions the signs of certain aksharas, such as ku, tu, tra, tri, trai, etc., more or less frequently, have an angular top, but we nowhere see the triangle; and r never is denoted in them by the side-line, described above. [In lines 1-46 of Vaidyadēva's inscription, according to Mr. Venis's edition, the letter r, as the first part of a conjunct, is omitted by the engraver 36 times,—twice (according to the impressions only once) before y, once before m, and no less than 33 times where the r would ordinarily be denoted by the side-line. According to my experience, this side-line generally is very thin and shallow in the original inscriptions, so that often it does not shew at all clearly in the impressions; and, in the case of Vaidyadēva's plates an examination of four impressions, of which I owe one to Mr. Venis himself and three to Dr. Führer, enables me to state with confidence that the engraver is not guilty of so many omissions as would seem to occur at first sight.]—As regards the letter jh, it will suffice to compare the sign for jh (which is almost exactly like the jh of the modern Bengali) in jhāṭa in line 41 of the present inscription, and that for jñ in the akshara jñhi (not jh) of ujjhita in line 21 of the Deopara inscription, with the quite different signs for the same letters in the words jhāṭiti and ujjhita in lines 28 and 7 of Vaidyadēva's plates. The initial i, in the Gōvīndpur inscription, is denoted by two circles, placed side by side, with a kind of circumflex above them; and in Vaidyadēva's plates we have two signs for i, one with two circles below (as in iti, l. 3), and the other with the two circles at the top (as in iva, l. 45, and imdm, l. 66), both quite different from the i of the inscription here edited. [I may mention that Vaidyadēva's plates furnish two corresponding forms of the rare initial f. One of them occurs at the end of line 40, in Pdī, where the photolithograph omits the vertical line between the two circles, by which f is distinguished from i, and which is perfectly clear in the impressions; and the other form we have in the word īdāna, in line 54, the f of which has been erroneously taken to be ai.]—If I had to suggest special names for the two varieties of the alphabet spoken of above, I, with my present knowledge, should call that of Vaidyadēva's plates the Pdīa, and the other the Sēna variety.

² The same mistake was made by the engraver of the Gauhati plates of Indrapālavarman (Jour. Beng. As. Soc. Vol. LXVI. P. I. p. 123 ff.) in the word arññava, Plate iia, l. 5; compare the proper sign for rññā, without the superscript sign for r, in varñña, ibid. Plate iib, l. 2. The sign transcribed by ñña (corrected to rñña), ibid. Plate iia, l. 3, is really rñña in the original. Whether in the Gauhati plates, in the conjunct rgg, r is written on or above the line, it is difficult to decide.

of the inscription is Sanskrit, and, with the exception of the introductory ôm ôṃ namô bhagavatê Vāsudêvâya, the whole is in verse. Of unusual words, or words used in an unusual sense, the text offers nârapatya, l. 20, 'rule, reign,' kâśa(sa)ra, l. 33, 'a buffalo,' chhūrikâra l. 34, 'one who is skilled in the use of the dagger,' jhâṭa in the technical expression sa-jhâṭa-viṣapa, l. 41, 'with the woods and thickets,' and âkarshaka, l. 45, 'the extent (? of a piece of land).' In respect of orthography the following points may be noted : The letter b is written by the sign for v; the palatal and dental sibilants are confounded in sam̐sîra (for samsâra), l. 25, kâśara, l. 33, śimâ, l. 42, śringâra, l. 24, subhê and sastê, l. 41; the guttural nasal is employed instead of the sign of anusvâra in the word van̐śa, ll. 9, 16, and 52; before y, l is doubled in lallyasya, l. 31; and eight times the rules of saṁdhi have not been observed in regard to the final consonant of a word before a following consonant. Besides it may be noted that in line 21 samutsritâni is used instead of samuchchritâni.

The inscription is one of a prince Vallabhadêva of whom, in verses 3-10, the following genealogy is given : In the race of the Moon there was a certain Bhâskara; his son was the king or chief Râyâridêva-Trailôkyasimha (whose wife¹ was Vasumatî ?); his son, again, was Udayakarna-Niṣaṅkasimha, whose wife was Ahiavadêvi²; and their son was Vallabhadêva-Śrīvallabha. Nothing of historical importance is recorded of any of these chiefs.

According to verses 13-22, Vallabhadêva, at the time of the sun's progress to the north in the Śaka year 1107 (given in numerical words), at the command of his father and for the spiritual welfare of his mother, founded an alms-house or place for the distribution of food (bhaktâ-śilâ, anna-sattra), near a temple of the god Mahâdêva (Śiva) to the east of Kirtipur in the Hâpyachâ³ district (maṇḍala); endowed it with (the revenues of) certain villages and hamlets the names and boundaries of which are given, and (so far as I understand the text) assigned the services of five men, whose names also are recorded, and of their families.

The localities mentioned in the inscription I am unable to identify. The date does not admit of verification; it would correspond to the 25th December of either A.D. 1184 or 1185, according as the Śaka year 1107 is taken as a current or an expired year.

TRANSLATION.

Om! Om! Adoration to the holy Vāsudêva!

(Verse 1.) May Lambôdara⁵ rejoice over the spreading of the glory of the worlds, as long as the moon continues with the sun,—he, the row of bees on whose round cheeks verily is like the line of letters of a blessing on the leaf of heaven!

(V. 2.) May the body of Vishnu purify you,—the body of him who, in the body of a hog, rising, as from a pool, from the lower regions towards the sky, bore on his tusk the earth, like a lotus-leaf of which the tortoise and the lord of serpents⁶ looked like the root and the stalk!

(V. 3.) In the race of the Moon there was that Bhâskara, who on his pair of sandals put a multitude of jewels from kings' diadems, as straps.

(V. 4.) From that sun of valour sprang, dear to the earth⁷ for the confidence which he inspired, a leader in battle whose banner was (the performance of) the sacrifice—the widowhood of his enemies' wives,⁸ a destroyer of lakhs of adversaries, king Râyâridêva, (residing) with whom Fortune, to the end of his life, divested herself of her most patent blemish, that of fickleness.

(V. 5.) He, king Râyâridêva, the frontal ornament of the kings in Bhâskara's race, it was, who, at the gorgeous festival of battle which was fearful on account of the presence of the lordly elephants of Vaṅga, made the enemy abandon the entire practice of arms on the battle-field; and who, in his own person, rendered the creation of 'the Lion of the three worlds' exceedingly fruitful.⁹

(V. 6.) As the full moon, rising on the Sumêru which is dear to the gods, delights all the worlds with the collection of her rays, and takes her place on the mountain-peaks, so

² Metre of verses 28 and 29: Ślôka (Anushtubh).

⁴ Read bhûmih.

⁶ The earth is carried by Śêṣha, the lord of serpents, who again rests on the back of a tortoise. Compare, s.g., Ind. Ant. Vol. XV. p. 18, verse 14.

⁸ Compare expressions like ripucadhâ-vidhavya-baddha-erata in other inscriptions.

⁹ Râyâridêva had the surname Trailôkyasimha. The poet therefore says that he was created a Trailôkyasimha and that, by his valorous acts, he really was a lion of the three worlds.

Udayakarna, springing from king Rāyāridēva who pleased the learned, delighted all people with heaps of wealth, and took his place over the heads of princes.

(V. 7.) In the reign of king Nihśaṅkasimha (other) kings entirely ceased to uplift their valorous arms; but for this,¹ how would their wives and their wealth continue even in mountain-caves?

(V. 8.) King Nihśaṅkasimha had a queen, dear to him as his life, who bore the name Abhavadēvi.²

(V. 9.) A swan in that Mānasa lake which was the heart of king Nihśaṅkasimha, for every kind of amorous dalliance what the moon in loveliness is to the water-lily, glorious as the lotus in that lake which is the quintessence of mundane existence, she stood manifested as the one dwelling-place of exquisite beauty.

(V. 10.) Having received on unprecedented favour from the Lord of Gaurī³ who was pleased with the might of their great austerities, they obtained as a son the Favourite of Fortune Vallabhadēva, who by all the valiant sons of kings, as if they were Garuḍas, is sung of as Nārāyaṇa,⁴ and who by his heroism sportively overcomes hostile princes, as if they were courtézans.

(V. 11.) The groups of the gods, having come to witness the might of his arrow which, able to pierce whatever is hard (to pierce) in a chase, entered up to the butt into a row of buffaloes, all followed him, joyfully shouting 'Be victorious, Vallabha!' Only one of them, Yama,⁵ turned back, to preserve his own buffalo.

(V. 12.) Vallabhadēva alone knows⁶ how to wield the sword, is the chief of those skilled in the use of the dagger, is sole and supreme⁷ in the science of archery, and is a rider of teams of Kāmbōja horses as well as of lordly elephants.

(Vs. 13 and 14.) In the proximity of (the temple of) Mahādēva, situated in the Hāpyachā maṇḍala, to the east of Kirtipur, Vallabhadēva, the son of Nihśaṅkasimha, at the command of his father, gave an alms-house for the hungry, in order that his mother might obtain heaven everlasting.

(Vs. 15-17.) For the support of this widely famous alms-house, the long-armed illustrious Vallabhadēvaka, who has thrown off the quality of darkness, in the Śaka year counted by the mountains (7), the sky (0), and the Rudras (11),⁸ at the sun's auspicious progress to the north, at an auspicious moment, and under a happy sign of the zodiac, granted—with their woods and thickets, with the people in them, with their water and land, and settled within their four boundaries—seven villages, the names of which are written here⁹ :—

(Vs. 18-20.) Chāḍi, and Dēvūnikōñchi, and Sajjāpigā, (and) Vaṅgaka, and Samśrahnikōñchikā together with Dō[sh]rjipātaka, and (the village) named Sōñchipātaka—these seven pleasant villages.

² The name may possibly be Abhavadēvi.

³ I.e. the god Śiva, Gaurī's (Pārvatī's) husband.

⁶ In the original the past tense is used in this verse.

⁷ The original has pratham-aika-rākhah (for, in my opinion, rākhā), the meaning of which is given in the St. Petersburg Dictionary, under the word rākhā. In the Madanapāḍa plate of Viśvarūpa (Jour. Beng. As. Soc. Vol. LXV. P. I. p. 9 ff.) we have saundarya-rākhā, in line 28, in the sense of 'exquisite beauty,' and in line 13 Lakshmapāḍa is described as trailōbya-rākhā-dābhata, which I take to mean 'marvellous in being the most exquisite being of the three worlds.'

⁸ I.e. in Śaka-Samvat 1107.

⁹ In the original we have the compound adma-lākhita, instead of lākhita-(or likhita)-naman.

The boundary also is carefully written (here), settling the extent (P) of the land: On the east is Muṇṭakāśvatha, on the west Gōsaridhara, on the north Rājakāni, and on the south Kardamālikā.

(Vs. 21 and 22.) Outside these boundaries, in Maitaḍā and Dvāripāṭa, six hamlets were given, and also Achadāśhēḍikā. Also five assistants¹ (were given), viz. Thaṭhi, Pādharu, Vāthōla, Lōhataḍi, and Raśāyana, together with their wives and children.

(V. 23.) Whatever king there may be in this royal lineage² of mine, descending without limit from Bhāskara, to him Śrīvallaḥa, with words of good omen, frankly says: 'Guard my fame!'

(V. 24.) And if, when my own race is extinct, some other king come, what indeed will I not be³ to him who does not curtail my fame!

(V. 25.) If any persons ever commit any wrong in regard to any part of this (grant) which has been thus fully described, and the localities of which with their boundaries have been stated, and the fact be ascertained by Brāhmaṇas conversant with the Vēdas,⁴ then the primeval Boar⁵ at once will mete out due punishment to them.

(V. 26.) Whoever, even for a moment or even in thought, does the slightest kind act to this alms-house, which is both a pilgrimage to the city of heaven and a victorious march against adversaries,⁶ he in this world defeats his enemies and is the recipient of all good fortune, and in the life to come rejoices in the coveted world of the immortals.

(V. 27.) People who, religious by nature and with their minds solely directed to acts of religion, do anything whatever here in regard to this (alms-house), may they with their children and children's children enjoy prosperity in this world, and in the life to come obtain the manifold delights of everlasting glorious heaven!

(V. 28.) Whosoever taketh away land, whether given by himself or by others, he becometh a worm in ordure and is burnt together with his ancestors.

(V. 29.) Land has been granted by many kings, commencing with Sagara; whosoever at any time possesses the earth, to him, for the time being, belongs the reward (of a grant).

NO. 20.—DEOLI PLATES OF KRISHNA III.;

SAKA-SAMVAT 862.

By R. G. BHANDARKAR, M.A., PH.D., C.I.E.

The copper-plates, a transcript and translation of which are given below, were found in a well in Dēḍil, about 10 miles south-west of Wardhā near Nāgpur. They were first published by me in Vol. XVIII. of the Journal of the Bombay Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society. The ¹ Viz. for the management of the alms-house, or as servants. I cannot be sure that I have given the proper names, which follow, correctly.

² The original has rdjyā, literally 'in this kingdom' or 'reign'; but the context shews what is in the author's mind.

³ I.e. I promise (or am ready) to be to him whatever he wishes me to be; I will be to him even—as the text implies—a nasy-dhka, i.e. an animal (such as a beast of burden) 'which is marked with the nose-string (nasyā).' In an Orissa copper-plate inscription (Jour. Beng. As. Soc. Vol. LXIV. P. I. p. 151, l. 3) the second half of a similar verse is: tasy-dham kara-lagnaḥ syām yā mat-kr̥ttikā na lumpati.

⁵ I.e. the god Vishṇu.

⁶ I take the writer to have formed a Dvandva compound (which may always be used in the neuter singular) of surapuragātrā and amitragātrā.

Editor of the Epigraphia Indica having procured the original plates from the Secretary of the Society and having got a new facsimile prepared, I now publish a revised edition of my paper on those plates.

The plates are three in number, each being about one foot in length and about eight inches in breadth. The inscription is engraved on one side of the first plate, on both sides of the second, and on one side of the third. The letters are carefully and well formed in the first part, but in the latter the work is negligently done, and in consequence several letters look alike. The seal bears a figure of Śiva.¹

The inscription is a charter announcing the grant of a village, named Tālapurumshaka (ll. 53 and 57) and situated in the district of Nāgapura-Nandivardhana,² to a Brāhmaṇa named Rishiappa or Rishiyapayya (ll. 53 and 57), of the Vedic schools of Vājin and Kāṇva and of the Bhāradvāja gōtra. The grant was made by Kṛishṇa III. or Akālavarsha of the Rāshtrakūṭa family in the name of his brother Jagattuṅga (ll. 48 f. and 51), while staying at his capital Mānyakhēṭa (l. 46 f.), in the year 882, expired, of the Saka era, corresponding to 940-41 A.D., on the 5th tithi of the dark half of Vaiśākha, the cyclic year being Sārvarin (l. 47 f.). The genealogy of Kṛishṇa III. is thus given :—

² [It deserves to be noted that the names of the village granted and of its boundaries and district, as well as those of the donee and of his father, tākhā, gōtra and native village, are engraved on erasures. Hence the names of the four boundaries of Tālapurumshaka are difficult to read and uncertain.— E. H.]

This grant clears up several doubts and difficulties as regards the genealogy of the Rāshtrakūṭas. In the first place, the Rāshtrakūṭa family is said to have sprung from the Sātyaki branch of the Yādava race and to be known by the name of Tuṅga (verse 6). The genealogy begins with Dantidurga (v. 8), as it was he who acquired for his family the supreme sovereignty of Mahārāshṭra or the Dekkan, the limits of which were the Narmadā in the north and the Tuṅgabhadra in the south. He was succeeded by his paternal uncle Kṛishṇa I., who is represented to have decorated the earth with many temples of Śiva, which looked like the Kailāsa mountain (v. 9). I have shown in my Early Dekkan History that a temple of exceedingly great beauty was caused to be constructed at Ellora by this Kṛishṇarāja, and have said that it was perhaps the Kailāsa itself. I should have said that it could be no other than the Kailāsa. For, if the demigods saw it while moving in the sky in their aerial cars, and were struck with its beauty, as stated in the Baroda inscription, the temple must have had a carved exterior; i.e. it must have been a temple entirely cut out from the rock, and not a mere cave temple without an architectural exterior. There is one such only at Ellora, and that is the Kailāsa. The comparison, made in the present grant, of the temples constructed by Kṛishṇarāja with Kailāsa points, I believe, in the same direction.

The circumstances under which Dhruva Nirupama superseded his brother Gōvinda II. are distinctly given. Sensual pleasures made Gōvinda careless of the kingdom; and, entrusting the affairs of the state to his younger brother, he allowed the sovereign power to drop away from his hands (v. 10). Nothing particular is stated about Gōvinda III. or Jagattuṅga. His son, known as Amoghavarsha, the great patron of the Digambara Jainas, is here called Nripattuṅga (v. 12), which name is found in a Jaina work also. The city of Mānyakhēṭa, which, in one grant, is mentioned as simply flourishing in his time, is represented here to have been founded by him. His son, Kṛishṇa II., who is also known by the name of Akālavarsha, is spoken of as a powerful prince, and several particulars are given about him. He frightened the Gūrjara, destroyed the pride of the Lāṭa, taught humility to the Gaudas, and his command was obeyed by the Aṅga, the Kalinga, the Gāṅga and the Magadha (v. 13). As this Kṛishṇarāja was not the reigning prince, whom the writer of the charter might be suspected of flattering, and as the grant is not reticent about the faults also of some of the other princes, this account may be relied on as true. Akālavarsha is represented as a powerful prince in the Prasasti at the end of the Uttara-Purāṇa of the Jainas also. The Lāṭa prince alluded to seems to have belonged to the Gujarāt branch of the Rāshtrakūṭa family, which was founded in the time of Gōvinda III. or Jagattuṅga, who assigned the province of Lāṭa, that he had conquered, to his brother Indra. Akālavarsha, the grandson of Jagattuṅga, seems thus to have humbled or uprooted his kinsmen of the Lāṭa country.

Jagattuṅga was the name of Akālavarsha's son. From the mere fact of the mention of his name in the grants, he was supposed to have been a reigning prince; and, following others, I stated in the first English edition of my Early Dekkan History that he became king after his father. But from a number of circumstances it soon appeared to me that he could not have been an actual king, and in the Marāṭhī edition of the work I corrected that statement. This inference of mine has now been confirmed by the grant before us, in which he is represented to have been taken away by the creator to heaven without having succeeded to the throne, as if through the solicitations of the heavenly damsels who had heard of his beauty (v. 14). Akālavarsha was thus succeeded by his grandson Indra III., the son of Jagattuṅga.

There has hitherto been some confusion as regards the next prince, named Amoghavarsha, who was the son of Indra III. He is not mentioned by name or as a king in the Sāṅgalī grant of his brother and successor, but is noticed in the Khārēpāṭaṇ grant; while, in the third and only other grant which gives us information about the two princes, there is a mistake which has led all writers on the subject to drop Gōvinda IV. altogether and regard Amoghavarsha as the only prince. But the grant before us clears the difficulty. Amôghavarsha is there spoken of as "having immediately gone to heaven, as if through affection for his father" (v. 17). He reigned therefore for a very short time (for a year, as stated in the Bhādāna grant published after this), and hence is not noticed in the Sāṅgali grant. The next prince, Gōvinda IV., is of course highly praised in his Sāṅgali grant. But the grant before us represents him to be a prince addicted to sensual pleasures, and to have died an early death on account of his vicious courses (v. 18). The Khârêpāṭaṇ grant agrees with it in speaking of him as "the abode of the dramatic sentiment of love" and as "surrounded by women."

Our grant agrees also with that found at Khârêpāṭaṇ in representing his successor as a very virtuous prince. His name was Amôghavarsha, and he was the son of Jagattuṅga, and consequently the uncle of Gōvinda IV. He assumed the throne, being entreated to do so by the feudatory chiefs, who thought there was none else able to maintain the power of the Râshtrakûṭas (v. 19). The Khârêpāṭaṇ grant gives his proper name, which was Baddiga. He was assisted in the government of the kingdom by his son Kṛishṇa III., who was engaged in wars with his neighbours and subjugated Dantiga and Vappuka (v. 22). He uprooted Rachhyāmalla and placed on the throne in the Gāṅga country (Gāṅgapâtî, i.e. Gaṅgavâḍi) a prince of the name of Bhûtārya (v. 23). In an inscription at Âtakûr, noticed by Mr. Rice¹ and published by Dr. Fleet,² one Bûtuga is represented to have killed a prince of the name of Râchamalla and to have made himself master of the Gāṅga country. Bûtuga assisted Kannaradêva, i.e. Kṛishṇa III., who is mentioned at the beginning of the inscription, in destroying Râjâditya, the Chôla king, and received a reward from him. Bûtuga is elsewhere called Bûtayya,³ and our Bhûtārya is a Sanskritised form of this, while our Rachhyāmalla is clearly the Râchamalla of the Âtakûr inscription. But in the latter, Kṛishṇa's connection with the destruction of Râchamalla and the rise of Bûtayya are not mentioned. The reason probably is that it was not necessary to state the fact in that manner. But there can be no question that Bûtayya was assisted by Kṛishṇa III. and owed his elevation to him, since, in the fight with Râjâditya, Bûtayya acted as if he was his feudatory and received a reward as from a master. The name of the Pallava whom Kṛishṇa III. is stated to have subdued was Appiga (v. 24). Who the Dantiga and Vappuka were, that he put down, it is difficult to say; but the former name was borne by some Pallava rulers of Kāñchi.

On the death of Amôghavarsha, which seems to have taken place a short time before the date of this grant, Kṛishṇa III. ascended the throne (v. 28). He was called Akâlavarsha also, as the other princes of this dynasty, bearing the name Kṛishṇa, were. Here too the present grant clears up a difficulty. Misunderstanding a passage in the Kardâ grant, Kṛishṇa III. is made by writers on this dynasty to be an elder brother of Amôghavarsha, and another Kṛishṇa is brought in, who is identified with one of his younger sons, who never reigned, but is represented to have reigned and is called Kṛishṇa IV. In my Early Dekkan History I have given the true sense of the passage and shewn the mistakes. The Khârêpāṭaṇ grant, which gives the true relationship and is perfectly clear on the points, was disregarded. But now the present grant confirms the account in the Khârêpāṭaṇ plates, so far as it goes, and, according to them both, Baddiga or Amôghavarsha had no brother of the name of Kṛishṇa who could have preceded or succeeded him; the king who preceded him was his nephew Gōvinda IV.; and the Kṛishṇa who succeeded him was his son. There was no other Kṛishṇa, who followed this last and could be called Kṛishṇa IV., according to any of our authorities. Jagattuṅga, the brother of Kṛishṇa III., in whose name the grant of the village is made, must have died before him; for the latter was succeeded by Khotṭiga, who appears to have been Kṛishṇarâja's step-brother according to the Kardâ grant, and he was followed by the son of his brother Nirupama.

³ Ind. Ant. Vol. XII. p. 270.

Jagattunga's name therefore does not appear in the subsequent history, but those of his brothers who were probably his step-brothers.

The name of the grantee ends in appa, or apayya, which shews that he was a Southern Brāhmaṇ. He belonged to the Kāṇva school of the White Yajurveda, and even at the present day there are followers of that school near Nāgpur. The village Tālapurumshaka, which was granted, was bounded on the east by another of the name of [Mādāṭaḥiṇḍhara], on the south by the river [Kanhana], on the west by the village of [Môhama] or [Môhama]grāma, and on the north by [Vadhrira] (l. 56 f.). Of these, Kanhana is the present river of the same name, which has a course from the north-west of Nāgpur to the south-east; Môhama or Môhamagrāma is the Mohgaon of the present day, situated in the Chhindwārā district, about 50 miles to the north-west of Nāgpur; and Vadhrira is Berdi in the vicinity of that town. Nothing corresponding to the remaining two names appears on the map, and I am not able to identify them.

A.—RAJARAJA.

No. 27.— Inscription in the Vaikunṭha-Perumāḷ temple at Maṇimangalam.¹

"In the 15th year (of the reign) of² on the day of Hasta, which corresponded to a Thursday and to the tenth tithi of the first fortnight of the month of Rishabha."

As Rājārāja's reign has been found to commence between the 24th December A.D. 984 and (approximately) the 29th August A.D. 985 (above, p. 48, No. 25), a date in the month of Rishabha (April-May) of the 15th year of his reign will be expected to fall either in A.D. 999 (in Śaka-Saṃvat 921 expired) or in A.D. 1000 (in Śaka-Saṃvat 922 expired).

In A.D. 999 the month of Rishabha lasted from the 23rd April to the 24th May. During that time the 10th tithi of the bright half (of the lunar month Vaiśākha) commenced 0 h. 53 m. after mean sunrise of Thursday, the 27th April, and ended 1 h. 4 m. after mean sunrise of Friday, the 28th April; and the nakshatras on the two days were—on the Thursday, by the Brahma-siddhānta and according to Garga, Uttara-Phalgunī the whole day; and by the equal space system, Pūrva-Phalgunī up to 9 h. 12 m., and afterwards Uttara-Phalgunī; on the Friday, Uttara-Phalguni, by the equal space system and according to Garga for 10 h. 30 m., and by the Brahma-siddhanta for 7 h. 13 m.; and afterwards Hasta.

² The name of the king is lost, but the historical introduction, the whole of which is preserved, makes it certain that the inscription belongs to the time of Rājārāja I.

In A.D. 1000 the month of Rishabha lasted from the 23rd April to the 23rd May; and during that time the 10th tithi of the bright half (of the lunar month Jyaisht̥ha) ended 20 h 53 m. after mean sunrise of Wednesday, the 15th May, when the nakshatra was Hasta, by the equal space system and according to Garga for 22 h. 20 m., and by the Brahma-siddhanta for 19 h. 3 m., after mean sunrise.

From this it follows that, if the year of the king's reign is correctly given, either the nakshatra (Hasta) has been quoted incorrectly, or the weekday (Thursday). In A.D. 999 the 10th tithi of the bright half of the month of Rishabha may undoubtedly be joined with Thursday, the 27th April, because the tithi commenced as early as 0 h. 53 m. after mean sunrise of that day;¹ but during no part of the Thursday was the moon in the nakshatra Hasta. On the other hand, for A.D. 1000 the day of the date would undoubtedly be the 15th May, when the nakshatra was Hasta up to nearly the end of the day; but the 15th May A.D. 1000 was a Wednesday, not a Thursday.

My own opinion is, that the day of the date probably is Thursday, the 27th April A.D. 999, and that the writer, confounding the solar and the lunar months Jyaisht̥ha, without verifying his statement, has coupled with that day the nakshatra Hasta, because in the great majority of years² Hasta really is the proper nakshatra for the 10th tithi of the bright half of the lunar Jyaisht̥ha.

I may add that I have calculated the date also for the surrounding years A.D. 998 and 1001, as well as for A.D. 1009 and 1010, without any satisfactory results.

Since, during the month of Kumbha, a twelfth tithi cannot possibly be joined with the nakshatra Śatabhishaj, I feel confident that the twelfth is wrongly quoted here instead of the second tithi of the bright half, and that the date, therefore, in every respect is the same as No. 20, above, Vol. IV. p. 262.

¹ I could quote very many similar dates from my lists.

³ South-Ind. Inscr. Vol. III. No. 32.

⁴ The identity of this king with Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa I. is proved by the fact that three persons mentioned in this inscription are also referred to in another inscription at Maṇimaṅgalam (above, Vol. IV. p. 262, No. 20), which opens with the usual historical introduction of the inscriptions of Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa I. (Pugaḷ-mādu vijaṅga).

"In the 2[9]th year (of the reign) of the emperor of the three worlds, the glorious Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷadēva, who was pleased to take Madurai, Īlam, and the crowned head of the Pāṇḍya,—on the day of Mṛigaśirsha, which corresponded to a Wednesday and to the seventh tithi of the first fortnight of the month of Mina."

As the reign of Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa III. commenced between the 5th June and the 8th July A.D. 1178 (above, Vol. IV. p. 266), a date in the month of Mina (February-March) of the 29th year of his reign will be expected to fall in A.D. 1207 (in Śaka-Saṃvat 1128 expired); and for that year this date is correct.

In A.D. 1207 the month of Mina lasted from the 23rd February to the 24th March; and during that period the seventh tithi of the bright half (of the lunar month Chaitra) ended 20 h. 16 m. after mean sunrise of Wednesday, the 7th March A.D. 1207, when the nakshatra was Mṛigaśirsha, by the equal space system and according to Garga for 19 h. 42 m., and by the Brahma-siddhānta for 18 h. 23 m., after mean sunrise.

"In the 37th year (of the reign) of the emperor of the three worlds Tribhuvanaviradēva, who was pleased to take Madurai, Īlam, Karuvūr, and the crowned head of the Pāṇḍya, and was pleased to perform the anointment of heroes and the anointment of victors,—on the day of Hasta, which corresponded to a Sunday and to the ninth tithi of the first fortnight of the month of Mithuna."

According to what has been stated above, a date in the month of Mithuna (May-June) of the 37th year of the king's reign will be expected to fall either in A.D. 1214 (in Śaka-Saṃvat 1136 expired) or in A.D. 1215 (in Śaka-Saṃvat 1137 expired). As a matter of fact, this date is correct for A.D. 1215.

In A.D. 1215 the month of Mithuna lasted from the 27th May to the 26th June; and during that time the 9th tithi of the bright half (of the lunar month Āshāḍha) ended 17 h. 17 m. after mean sunrise of Sunday, the 7th June A.D. 1215, when the nakshatra was Hasta, by the equal space system and according to Garga for 5 h. 55 m., and by the Brahma-siddhānta for 2 h. 38 m., after mean sunrise.

The date reduces the period during which the reign of Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa III. must have commenced (by three days, viz.) to the time from (approximately) the 8th June to the 8th July A.D. 1178.

From what has been stated above, this date of the month of Rishabha (April-May) of the 20th year of the king's reign would be expected to fall in A.D. 1198 (in Śaka-Samvat 1120 expired); but for that year the date is quite incorrect.

In A.D. 1198 the month of Rishabha lasted from the 25th April to the 25th May, and during that time the 10th tithi of the bright half (of the lunar month Jyāishṭha, as a kṣaya-tithi) commenced 0 h. 43 m. and ended 22 h. 43 m. after mean sunrise of Sunday, the 17th May, when the nakṣatras by the equal space system and according to Garga were Uttara-Phalguni and Hasta, and by the Brahma-siddhānta Hasta and Chitrā.

Of the many years for which I have calculated the date, only the year A.D. 1200 (the month Rishabha of which would fall in the 22nd year of the king's reign) yields an approximately correct result. In that year the tithi of the date ended 7 h. 9 m. after mean sunrise of Thursday, the 25th May, which was the last day of the month of Rishabha, and on which the nakṣatra was Svāti, by the equal space system and according to Garga from 19 h. 42 m., and by the Brahma-siddhānta from 16 h. 25 m., after mean sunrise.¹ Even this result I cannot regard as satisfactory, because, in my opinion, this Thursday, the 25th May A.D. 1200, would have been described as 'the day of Chitrā.'

No. 22.—VAKKALERI PLATES OF KIRTIVARMAN II.; SAKA-SAMVAT 679.

By F. KIELHORN, PH.D., LL.D., C.I.E.; GÖTTINGEN.

These plates were first brought to public notice, about twenty years ago, by Mr. L. Rice, C.I.E., who in the Indian Antiquary, Vol. VIII, p. 23 ff., gave the text and a translation of the inscription which they contain, with photolithographs prepared under Dr. Fleet's supervision. The plates were obtained, and are still, at Vakkalēri, the head-quarters of a hōbālī in the Kōlār district of the Mysore state. My revised text² is based on excellent impressions, furnished to me by Dr. Hultzsch, for whom the original plates were kindly obtained on loan by Mr. Rice.

These are five copper-plates, the first and last of which are inscribed on one side only, and each of which measures about $9\frac{1}{4}$ " broad by from $4\frac{5}{8}$ " (in the middle) to 5" (at the two ends) high. The plates have raised rims and are strung on a ring, which had been cut already before the impressions were taken. The ring is about $4\frac{1}{2}$ " in diameter and $\frac{1}{2}$ " thick, and has its ends secured in the base of an elliptical seal, which measures about $1\frac{1}{2}$ " by $1\frac{1}{4}$ " and bears, in relief on a countersunk surface, a standing boar which faces to the proper right.—The writing is well engraved and is in an excellent state of preservation, so that almost every single letter may be read with absolute certainty. The characters¹ belong to the same variety of the southern alphabet which is used, e.g., in the Togarchêdu and Karpâl district plates of the Western Chalukya Vinayâditya, Ind. Ant. Vol. VI. pp. 86 and 89, and Plates. As regards individual letters, the chief point to note is that, except in the akṣhara lā, in which we have the full form of l of the older inscriptions, the letter l is everywhere denoted by the sign which in the earlier Western Chalukya inscriptions, so far as I know, is employed for the subscript l only.² For other test-letters, such as kh, j and b, the ordinary earlier types are used throughout.³ The inscription contains no sign of punctuation, nor any form of a final consonant. The size of the letters is about $\frac{1}{8}$ ".—The language of the inscription is Sanskrit, and, with the exception of a well-known verse in praise of the god Viṣṇu in lines 1 and 2, and three benedictive and imprecatory verses ascribed to Vyāsa, in lines 72-76, the whole is in prose. From the word śrīmatām in line 2 to djñāpayati in line 61 the text forms a single sentence, the construction of which is not always correct, and in which occur two forms⁴ which are contrary to the strict rules of grammar. In respect of orthography, it will suffice to draw attention to the use of the Dravidian ḷ in pāḷidhvaja, ll. 20, 27 and 33, and in some proper names the most important of which are Kaḷabhra, Kēraḷa, Ohōḷa, and Sīmhaḷa, and to the fact that visarga before surd guttural and labial letters has mostly been changed to the jihvāmūliya and upādhmāntiya, and has nearly always been assimilated to a following ṣ and s. In general, the text is remarkably free from clerical mistakes.

The inscription is one of the Western Chalukya Mahārājādhirāja Paramēśvara Bhaṭṭāraka Kirtivarman [II.] Satyāśraya, styled Śrīprīthivīvallabha, 'the favourite of fortune and the earth,' whose genealogy is given in lines 2-59. It records (in lines 61-69) that, when six-hundred and seventy-nine Śaka years had gone by, in the eleventh year of his reign, on the full-moon tithi of the month of Bhādrapada, while encamped at the village of Bhaṇḍāragaviṭṭage on the northern bank of the river Bhīmarathī, the king, at the request of a certain Dōsirāja, granted the village of Suḷḷiyūr, together with Neṅgiyūr and Nandivalli, situated in the midst of the villages Tāmaramuge, Pānuṅgal, Kīruvalli and Bālavuru, on the southern bank of the river Aradore, in the Pānuṅgal-vishaya, to Mādhavaśarmaṇ, the son of Kṛṣṇaśarmaṇ and son's son of the student of the Rīg- and Yajurvēdas Viṣṇuśarmaṇ, of the Kāmākāyana gōtra. The charter (according to lines 76 and 77) was written by the Mahāsāmādhivigrahika Anivārita Dhanamjaya,⁵ styled Punyaavallabha, 'the favourite of religious merit.'

The date does not admit of verification; for Śaka-Samvat 679 expired it would correspond to the 2nd September A.D. 757. Of the localities mentioned, Bhaṇḍāragaviṭṭage, according to Dr. Fleet, must be 'Bhaṇḍār-Kawte' in the Sholāpur district—the 'Kowteh' of the map—on a stream which flows into the Sina, which again flows into the Bhīma (the Bhīmarathī of the inscription); Pānuṅgal is the modern Hāngal in the Dhārwar district, and Bālavuru seems to be the modern Bālūr, three miles south by east of Hāngal; the other places have now disappeared.

Of lines 1-59 of the inscription, which contain the genealogy of the donor, commencing with Polekēsi-vallabha (Pulikēsin I.), it would be superfluous to give a translation or even an abstract of the contents. Lines 1-35 have been translated by Dr. Fleet in Ind. Ant. Vol. IX. p. 128 f.,¹ and lines 36-52 by Dr. Hultzsch in South-Ind. Inscr. Vol. I. p. 146 f.;² and every historical fact, recorded in the inscription, has been fully discussed by Dr. Fleet and by Prof. Bhandarkar in their accounts of the Western Chalukya dynasty.

² Owing to my different reading, I do not take the compound ghōrnamān-dr̥gas in line 49 as a proper name.

⁵ Metre: Ślōka (Anuṣṭubh).

⁶ Read vapuḥ II.

⁸ The two plates, mentioned in the preceding note, have Pulakēsi.

⁹ This is the reading also of the cognate inscriptions, with the exception of the Haidarābād plates of Pulikēsin II., which have pratiḍḍha; see Ind. Ant. Vol. VI. p. 73, text l. 7.

¹¹ Here one would have expected śvaras-tasya.

¹² At first sight gamēp seems to be engraved, but the last akshara in the original really is ṣai.

¹³ The three Nerūr plates, mentioned above, have tsādīt.

¹⁵ Read śrī-kṛit.

¹⁶ The four copper-plate inscriptions of Vinayāditya, instead of this, have an epithet which, in my opinion, is prabhāva-kulīśa-dalita-Chōja-Pāṇḍya-Kēraja-dharaṇīdhara-nāyamāna-mānāśringasya; see Ind. Ant. Vol. VI. p. 96, l. 16, and p. 99, l. 16, Vol. XIX. p. 150, l. 11, and Vol. VII. p. 301, l. 15. The epithet of our text occurs first in the plates of Vijayāditya, ibid. Vol. IX. p. 127, l. 12.

⁴ Originally 'ādhigat' was engraved.

⁵ The three Nerūr plates have sat-sāhasa-.

⁶ Read pardāmukhī.

⁷ The akṣhara in brackets, which is not quite clear in the impressions, may possibly be da (but is not ṣa). There is the same uncertainty about the actual reading in the three Nerūr plates. Above, Vol. IV. p. 343, l. 50, the reading appears to be paḍa (not paḍa). In the Lakṣmēśvar inscription noticed by Dr. Fleet in Ind. Ant. Vol. VII. p. 112, the reading distinctly is, in the first part, paḍaḍakkā, and in the second, paḍaḍakkā. Mr. Kittel's Kannada-English Dictionary gives paḍaḍakkā and paḍaḍakkā in the sense of 'a kettle-drum.' Above, Vol. IV. p. 305, l. 26, and elsewhere, we have pālikāna-pratiḍakkā.

¹⁰ From here down to the word bhaṭṭārakasya in line 52 the text is given and translated by Dr. Hultzsch in South-Ind. Insor. Vol. I. p. 146.

¹¹ Read 'śdha.

Handwritten text in Devanagari script, continuing the record from the previous plate. The text is arranged in horizontal lines, with some characters appearing to be in a different script or dialect. A large circular hole is visible on the left side of the plate, obscuring some of the text.

1. The first part of the document is a list of names and dates, which are arranged in a columnar fashion. The names are written in a cursive script, and the dates are written in a more formal, printed style. The list appears to be a record of some kind, possibly a list of births or deaths.

2. The second part of the document is a list of names and dates, which are arranged in a columnar fashion. The names are written in a cursive script, and the dates are written in a more formal, printed style. The list appears to be a record of some kind, possibly a list of births or deaths.

3. The third part of the document is a list of names and dates, which are arranged in a columnar fashion. The names are written in a cursive script, and the dates are written in a more formal, printed style. The list appears to be a record of some kind, possibly a list of births or deaths.

4. The fourth part of the document is a list of names and dates, which are arranged in a columnar fashion. The names are written in a cursive script, and the dates are written in a more formal, printed style. The list appears to be a record of some kind, possibly a list of births or deaths.

5. The fifth part of the document is a list of names and dates, which are arranged in a columnar fashion. The names are written in a cursive script, and the dates are written in a more formal, printed style. The list appears to be a record of some kind, possibly a list of births or deaths.

6. The sixth part of the document is a list of names and dates, which are arranged in a columnar fashion. The names are written in a cursive script, and the dates are written in a more formal, printed style. The list appears to be a record of some kind, possibly a list of births or deaths.

7. The seventh part of the document is a list of names and dates, which are arranged in a columnar fashion. The names are written in a cursive script, and the dates are written in a more formal, printed style. The list appears to be a record of some kind, possibly a list of births or deaths.

8. The eighth part of the document is a list of names and dates, which are arranged in a columnar fashion. The names are written in a cursive script, and the dates are written in a more formal, printed style. The list appears to be a record of some kind, possibly a list of births or deaths.

9. The ninth part of the document is a list of names and dates, which are arranged in a columnar fashion. The names are written in a cursive script, and the dates are written in a more formal, printed style. The list appears to be a record of some kind, possibly a list of births or deaths.

10. The tenth part of the document is a list of names and dates, which are arranged in a columnar fashion. The names are written in a cursive script, and the dates are written in a more formal, printed style. The list appears to be a record of some kind, possibly a list of births or deaths.

No. 23.—MINDIGAL INSCRIPTION OF RAJADHIRAJA;

By H. KRISHNA SASTRI, B.A.

Mindigal is a village about eleven miles north-west of Chintāmani, the head-quarters of the Chintāmani tāluka of the Kōlār district in the Mysore State. The older form of the name, Minḍumgallu, occurs in line 9 of the inscription, which also states that the village belonged to the district of Koyyakore-nāḍu.

The subjoined record was first brought to my notice by a goldsmith of Mindigal, who sent me for examination a pencil-sketch of the writing on the stone, expecting some hidden treasure to be referred to therein. It was, however, found out to be an important inscription of the Chōla king Rājādhirāja, dated both in the Śaka era and in a year of his reign, and I was at once deputed by Dr. Hultzsch to prepare inked estampages of the stone, from which I now edit the inscription. The slab on which the inscription is written measures 5' by 4' 9" and is fixed into the platform of the Sōmēśvara temple in the fields to the north-east of Mindigal. At the top, to the proper right of lines 1 and 2, are engraved the figures of a cow and a calf. The characters are of the old Kanarese type and are neatly engraved between horizontal lines. The language of the inscription is throughout Kanarese, with the exception of the Tamil words kōv=Irājākēsaripadmar=āna uḍeyār in l. 3, and yāṇḍu in l. 4.

As regards the orthography of the inscription, I have to make the following remarks:— (1) Except in the case of ā, the secondary forms of long vowels do not differ from those for the corresponding short ones. (2) The anusvāra is represented by a small dot, which is placed at the right upper corner of the letter to which it belongs. The same symbol is used in l. 1 for the cypher, as in other Kanarese and Telugu inscriptions. (3) The superscribed form of r does not occur in the inscription; and where such a form is required, it is indicated by the doubling of the consonant to which it was meant to be prefixed. (4) The anusvāra takes the place of other nasals before ga (ll. 9 and 13), gha (l. 5), da (l. 5) and pa (l. 8). (5) The virāma is represented, as in modern Kanarese and Telugu, by a zigzag line attached to the talakaṭṭu. (6) The consonants ra and ṛa, ḷa and ḷa are used in their proper places, except in the cases of aḷivam for aḷivam (l. 11) and goḷamgaṇ for goḷagaṇ (l. 14).

In galḍeyuvam (l. 15 f.) and Bāṇarāsiyuvam (l. 17) the accusative termination is, in strict accordance with the rules of grammar, affixed only to the last of the nouns which are the objects of the same verb, while the others remain in the nominative case combined with the copulative conjunction um; but in Sāleyu[m]* (l. 3) the accusative termination is omitted. The word sahvatsaradal (l. 1 f.), which ought to stand after muḃattaneya (l. 4), has been misplaced.

The inscription records the gift of some land and of an oil-mill to the temple of Sōmēśvara at Minḍumgallu by the Daṇḍānāyaka Appimayya, surnamed Rājendra-Chōla-Brahmamārāya (ll. 4 ff. and 11 f.), who governed the Mārājavāḍi Seven-thousand country from his camp at Vallūru. This grant was made when a certain Bairayya, surnamed Rājendra-Chōla-Pōmpalamārāya,¹ the son of Muddarasa of Muruganamale (l. 7 f.), had repaired the temple of Sōmēśvara. The land granted was irrigated by two tanks,—Pallavakaṭṭu (ll. 9 and 12) and Baḍagaṇa-Pōmpalakaṭṭu (l. 13 f.), the first of which had been built by Bairayya and the second by Appimayya.

The record is dated in the Śaka year 970, which corresponded to the current Sarvajit-sahvatsara and to the thirtieth year of the reign of (the Chōla king) Rājakesarivarman, alias Rājādhirājādēva, 'who took the head of the glorious Vīrapāṇḍya and the Sāle of the Chēra king.' This date corresponds to A.D. 1047-48² and has enabled Professor Kielhorn to calculate the dates of four other inscriptions of the same king and to show that his reign commenced between the 15th March and the 3rd December A.D. 1018,³ i.e. during the reign of his predecessor Rājendra-Chōla I. whose reign extended from A.D. 1011-12 to at least A.D. 1033.⁴ Consequently Rājādhirāja must have been the co-regent of Rājendra-Chōla I. and did not rule independently before the death of the other.⁵ The birudas of the chiefs Appimayya and Bairayya, viz. Rājendra-Chōla-Brahmamārāya and Rājendra-Chōla-Pōmpalamārāya, were evidently acquired by them during the reign of Rājādhirāja's predecessor Rājendra-Chōla I. The conquests of Rājādhirāja are described in detail in an inscription of his 29th year at Maṇimaṅgalam. One of his achievements is stated to have been that he routed the Chēra king and followed the example of his ancestor Rājārāja I. in destroying the ships at Kāṇḍaḷūr-Sālai.⁶ This is the incident alluded to by the biruda 'Sēramana Sāleyu[m]* koṇḍa,' which is given to Rājādhirāja in l. 2 f. of the subjoined inscription.⁶ The 'taking of the head of Vīrapāṇḍya' is not mentioned in the historical introduction of the Maṇimaṅgalam inscription, which refers to three other Pāṇḍya enemies of Rājādhirāja.⁶

Of the proper names contained in this inscription the following admit of identification. The Mārājavāḍi Seven-thousand province (l. 6), over which Appimayya ruled, is mentioned in other inscriptions as Mahārājavāḍi, Mārājavāḍi and Mārjavāḍa-rājya, and Vallūru (l. 6 f.), the residence of Appimayya, has been identified with a village of the same name, about 8 miles north-west of Cuddapah.⁷ Muruganamale (l. 7) is identical with Murugamale, a village near Chintāmaṇi. The first of the two tanks mentioned in the inscription, viz. Pallavakaṭṭu, appears to have been situated near the Sōmēśvara temple (ll. 9-12). The ruins of it still exist a few yards to the east of the same temple.

⁵ South-Ind. Inscr. Vol. III. p. 52.

⁶ Sāle is the Kanarese equivalent of Sālai, i.e. Kāṇḍaḷūr-Sālai.

⁷ South-Ind. Inscr. Vol. III. p. 108. In his Epigraphia Carnatica, Vol. IV. Introduction, p. 20, Mr. Rice mentions Vallūr as being situated "to the north-east of Mysore and described as the capital of the Mahārājavāḍi Seven-thousand." This name is perhaps a mistake for Mahārājavāḍi.

No. 24.—DAULATPURA PLATE OF BHOJADEVA I. OF MAHODAYA; [HARSHA]-SAMVAT 100.

By F. KIELHORN, PH. D., LL.D., C.I.E.; GÖTTINGEN.

This plate is said to have been found, some thirty years ago, among the ruins of an ancient temple near the village of Sīvā, the 'Sewa' of the map, about 7 miles E.N.E. of the town of Didwāna in Jōdhpur (Mārṇād), Rājputāna, Indian Atlas, quarter-sheet No. 33 N.E., long. 74° 44' E., lat. 27° 27' N. It was taken at the time to the small fortress of Daulatpurā, about 4 miles E.S.E. of Didwāna, but since September 1897 has been deposited in the Historical Records Office at Jōdhpur. I edit the inscription which it contains from impressions, which were kindly furnished to Dr. Hultzsch by Munsiff Debiprasad of Jōdhpur and by Dr. Führer.

This is a single plate, inscribed on one side only. It is very similar to the Dighwā-Dubauli plate of Mahēndrapāla and the Bengal As. Soc.'s plate of Vināyakapāla, published by Dr. Fleet, with photolithographs, in Ind. Ant. Vol. XV. p. 105 ff. and p. 138 ff. The plate is about 1' 9½" broad by 1' 4½" high, and on to its proper right side is soldered a heavy brass seal, about 6½" broad by 9½" high, the top of which is raised into an arched peak. The letters of the legend on the seal are in relief, and the arch contains a standing figure which is only faintly visible in the impressions. The writing on both the plate and the seal is well executed, and in an excellent state of preservation. The size of the letters on the plate is between ⅜" and ½", and on the seal, between ⅝" and ¾". The characters belong to the northern class of alphabets, and are similar to, but in some particulars³ more antique than, those of the two plates mentioned above. They include, in line 16 of the plate, numerical symbols for 100 and 10, and the numeral figure for 3.⁴ The language of the inscription is Sanskrit, and, with the exception of one verse in lines 15 and 16, the text is in prose. In respect of orthography, I may note the use of the sign for v, to denote b; the constant doubling of t before r; the employment of n instead of anusvāra in the word anśa, in lines 10 and 14 of the plate; the use of parambhagavatibhaktō in lines 4 and 6⁵ of the plate, and of parambhagavatibhaktō in lines 5 and 10 of the seal, for paramabhagavatibhaktō; and the occurrence of the term samvaterō,⁶ for samvatsarah or the ordinary samvat, in the date, in line 16.

The inscription is one of a Mahārāja Bhōjadēva, who, from his residence or camp of Mahōdaya, on the representation of one of the people concerned, renews here a grant which had been made by his great-grandfather, the Mahārāja Vatsarājadēva, and continued by his grandfather, the Mahārāja Nāgabhaṭadēva, but, in his own reign, had fallen into abeyance. The object of the grant is the village of Sīvā, in the Dēṇḍvānaka-vishaya of the Gurjaratrā-

Date of the Daulatpura Plate.

The genealogy of Bhōjadēva, which is given on both the plate and the seal, was known already from the Dighwā-Dubaulī and Bengal As. Soc.'s plates mentioned above. The Dighwā-Dubaulī plate, which is dated 55 years later, records a grant of his son Mahēndrapāla; and from the Bengal As. Soc.'s plate we know that Mahēndrapāla's son and successor was another Bhōjadēva (or Bhōjadēva II.), who in turn was succeeded by Vināyakapāla, his brother from a different mother. All the three grants were issued from the skandhāvāra (i.e. either a camp or royal residence¹) at Mahōdaya. As was first pointed out by Dr. F. E. Hall, Mahōdaya or Mahōdayā, according to the lexicographers,² is another name of Kanyakubjā (Kānyakubja, or Kanauj), and there is no reason now why that identification should not be accepted here. So long as only the two other grants were available, which refer to localities about 250 miles south-east and 150 miles east by north of Kanauj, it could well be doubted³ whether the government of these Mahārājas had extended so far west as to include Kanauj; but we now see from the present inscription that these princes held sway even over a part of the country which is more than 300 miles west of Kanauj, and for the three grants together it would be difficult to find a place of issue more favourably situated than that well-known city.

Our inscription indicates the solution of another difficulty presented by the other grants. The plate of Mahēndrapāla, in line 14, contains the half-verse Śrīmad-Bhāka-prayuktasya śāsanasya sthir-āyatēḥ, and Vināyakapāla's plate, in line 16, has the similar half-verse Śrī-Harshēna prayuktasya śāsanasya sthir-āyatēḥ. To make some sense of these incomplete sentences Dr. Fleet had to supply the words 'this is the writing of;' but now a different explanation is furnished to us. Instead of the half-verse we here, in lines 15 and 16, have the full verse Prabhāsēna prayuktasya śāsanasya sthir-āyatēḥ śrīmān=Nāgabhaṭo nāmnā yuvarājō=tra dātakaḥ. This verse makes it clear, that the half-verse of the other grants also is part of a customary verse, the object of which was to record, in the second half, the name of the dātaka; and that, through the force of habit (and perhaps for a reason which will appear below), the half-verse was inserted even when no dātaka was to be mentioned. The exact interpretation of the details of the verse solely depends on the sense of the word prayuktasya. In my opinion, the meaning which at once suggests itself for śāsanam prayuj, is, 'to employ a command for a certain purpose, to address an order to somebody, to proclaim an edict, to issue a charter,' and Prabhāsēna prayuktam śāsanam, therefore, could hardly be anything else than Prabhāsasya śāsanam, 'an order or charter of Prabhāsa,' which, in the case of the present inscription, of course would mean 'of Bhōjadēva.' In accordance with this interpretation I take the three names, Prabhāsa, Bhāka and Harsha, to be second names of the three Mahārājas who issued the respective grants; and I suspect that in the grants of

³ See Ind. Ant. Vol. XV. p. 111.

Mahēndrapāla and Vināyakapāla the by themselves meaningless half-verses, to some extent, were inserted for the very purpose of recording those second names of the donors. With the full verse of the present inscription I would compare the concluding verse of the Achyutapuram and Parlā-Kimeḍi plates of the Gāṅga Mahārāja Indravarman,¹ in which also the second name of that prince, Rājasimha, is mentioned, as it were incidentally, only in connection with the writing of the grants.

The localities mentioned in this inscription admit of easy identification. The village of Sivā of course is the very place near which the plate was found, and the name of the Dēṇḍvānaka-vishaya survives in that of the town of Didwāna which is about 7 miles W. S. W. of Sivā. The Dēṇḍvānaka-vishaya is stated to have been in the Gurjaratrā-bhūmi. I have not been able to trace the name Gurjaratrā in any of the published records;² but I find the term Gurjaratrā-maṇḍala, denoting the same part of the country (and no doubt synonymous with Gurjaratrā-bhūmi), in an unpublished inscription of about the 8th century at Kālāñjar.³ That inscription speaks of a man who had gone forth from Maṅgalānaka, situated in the Gurjaratrā-maṇḍala, and Maṅgalānaka⁴ clearly is the 'Maglona' of the map, which is only about 28 miles N. N. E. of Didwāna.

The date of the inscription, like the dates of the two cognate grants, must be referred to the Harsha era. It does not admit of verification, but, judging by the date of Mahēndrapāla's plate, it would probably correspond to the 2nd March A.D. 706.

The Mahārāja Bhōjadēva I. of our inscription was preceded by his father, the Mahārāja Rāmabhadradēva, and succeeded by his son, the Mahārāja Mahēndrapālādēva. The same names we find again, in the same order, in the list of the later Mahārājādhirājas of Kanauj. According to the Peheya (Pehoa) inscription of [Harsha-]Samvat 276, No. 546 of my List, the Mahārājādhirāja Bhōjadēva was the successor of the Mahārājādhirāja Rāmabhadradēva; and according to the Siyaḍṇi inscription, ibid. Nos. 18 and 20, Bhōjadēva was succeeded by the Mahārājādhirāja Mahēndrapālādēva. This alone would go far to prove that the later Mahārājādhirājas were descendants of the earlier Mahārājas. But in addition to this, like the Mahārājas the Mahārājādhirājas also, in the Siyaḍṇi inscription,⁵ apparently are referred to as ruling at Mahōdayā as their capital; and so far as we can judge from the known inscriptions, the extent and situation of their respective dominions, at least from the west to the east, were about the same. On the west, we have seen above, the plate of the Mahārāja Bhōjadēva I. takes us to Didwāna in Mārwaḍ; and on the east, the plate of his grandson, the Mahārāja Vināyakapāla, records the grant of a village near Benares. The direct distance from Didwāna to Benares is about 540 miles; and from between the two places, and not far from a straight line connecting them, we have, from west to east, the Rājōrgaḍh (in Alwar) inscription of the reign of the Mahārājādhirāja Vijayapāladēva, No. 39 of my List, the Gwālior inscriptions of the reign of the Mahārājādhirāja Bhōjadēva, ibid. Nos. 15 and 16, the Asnī inscription of the reign of the Mahārājādhirāja Mahīpāladēva, ibid. No. 25, and¹ the Jhūsi plate of the Mahārājādhirāja Trilōchanapāladēva, ibid. No. 60. Since of the reign of the Mahārājādhirāja Bhōjadēva we besides have an inscription at Pehevā (Pehon) in the north, ibid. No. 546, and another at Dēōgaḍh in the south, ibid. No. 14, the kingdom, in his time, in either direction may have been far more extensive than under the Mahārājas; but that they also ruled over part of the more northern country, is shewn by the Dighwā-Dubaulī plate of Mahēndrapāla which, like the Madhuban plate of Harsha, records a grant in the Śrāvastī-bhukti, and future discoveries may shew that their rule extended farther to the north and south than we know at present.

Regarding the connection of the Mahārājas of Mahōdaya with any of the earlier rulers of Kanauj, and particularly concerning their relation to the great king Harsha, I am unable to give any information. I can only draw attention to the fact that the manner in which their genealogy is given in their plates, and especially the way in which each of them is described as the devotee of a particular deity, remind one of, and apparently are adopted from,² the corresponding portions of Harsha's own grants.

² The same may be said of the genealogy in the Dēō-Baranārk inscription of the Mahārājādhirāja Jivitaguptadēva II. of the family of the Guptas of Magadha, Gupta Inscr. p. 215.

⁵ Read paramabhaga?

⁶ Read deva, and omit the following sign of punctuation.

⁷ This sign of punctuation is superfluous.

⁸ This clearly is the reading of the plate, but the forms of the consonants of the four akṣaras Siddhānta appear to be more modern than the forms of the same letters, elsewhere employed in this inscription. The difference is particularly striking in the case of the s and m; but the gr of grā also does not agree with the gr of the following grahārē, and the v of vā differs somewhat from the v in e.g. the word bhagavatī of the preceding line. At the same time, I see nothing in the impression which could lead me to think that another name had been previously engraved.

(L. 8.) The Bhaṭṭa Harshuka has apprised (us) that the above-written agrahāra, with every income from it excepting previous gifts to gods and Brāhman, by means of a charter was granted by our great-grandfather, the Mahārāja Vatsarājadēva, for as long as the moon, the sun and the earth endure, to his grandfather, the Bhaṭṭa Vāsudēva, and was possessed (by the latter), and that by him (the Bhaṭṭa Vāsudēva) the sixth part of it was given by a deed of donation to the Bhaṭṭa Viṣṇu; that our grandfather, the Mahārāja Nāgabhaṭadēva, signified his consent; but that, in our own reign, that charter and consent have fallen into abeyance.

(L. 12.) Having heard, then, of that charter thus brought to our notice, of the consent, the deed of donation and the (fact of) possession, we, for the increase of the religious merit of our parents, have given permission that (the agrahāra), shared in exact accordance with previous possession, shall belong to the Brāhman born in the lineage of the Bhaṭṭa Vāsudēva, who are of the Kāśyapa gōtra and are students of the Āśvalāyana (śākhā) of the R̥gveda, and to the Brāhman born in the lineage of the Bhaṭṭa Viṣṇu, who are of the Kātyāyana gōtra and are students of the Āśvalāyana (śākhā) of the R̥gveda. No. 25.—INSCRIPTIONS AT ABLUR.

By J. F. FLEET, PH.D., C.I.E.

Ablūr is a village about two miles to the west of Kōḍ, the chief town of the Kōḍ tāluks of the Dhārwar district. Its name occurs in the ancient records in the fuller form of Abbalūr or Abbalūru; and the record E. places it in the Nāgarakhanda seventy, which was a subdivision of the Banavāsi twelve-thousand province (see below). Ink-impressions of seven inscriptions were obtained for me at this village. The most important of the inscriptions is E., the record which gives the history of the revival of Śaivism in the twelfth century A.D. This will be edited in full; so also F., a short record connected with it, and G., which is interesting as being a virgal or monumental tablet, belonging to a class of records of which not many specimens have as yet been made fully available. The other records all present points of interest: but they are not important enough to repay the time and trouble that would be required to edit them in full; and it will be sufficient to give abstracts of the contents of them.

A. and B.—Of the time of Vikramāditya VI.—A.D. 1104.

These are duplicate copies, almost word for word the same, but not absolutely so, of a record at a temple of Śiva which is now known as the temple of Basavēśvara, though, as the records themselves shew, it was originally called the temple of *Brahmēśvara*² because it was founded by a Gāvvaṇḍa or village-headman named Bamma or Barma, i.e. Brahma. A. is on a stone tablet outside the temple; and B. is on a stone tablet inside it.

² Brahmēśvara-dēvara dēgula, e.g., A. line 62; and Brahmēśvara-dēvatā-sihana, e.g., C. line 27.—The founding of it is mentioned in A. lines 27, 28.

In A., the writing, consisting of eighty-five lines of about seventy letters each, covers an area about 4' 1" broad by 6' 5" high : it is in a state of very good preservation as far as line 70 : from there it has suffered a good deal of damage ; but the illegible portions can almost all be supplied from B. In B., the writing, consisting of ninety-one lines of about sixty-five letters each, covers an area about 4' 1" broad by 6' 10" high : at about one-third from the proper right side, the tablet is broken into two pieces from top to bottom ; but no entire letters are destroyed along the line of fissure : in other respects, it is in a state of very good preservation, except for a few places in lines 79 to 91, where, however, the illegible passages can almost all be supplied from A.— In both cases, the sculptures at the top of the stone are, in the centre, a liṅga, with an officiating priest, inside a shrine ; on the proper right side, towards the top, the sun, and, in the lower part, a standing figure inside a shrine, with the bull Nandi near the edge of the stone ; and on the proper left side, towards the top, the moon, and, in the lower part, another standing figure inside a shrine, with a cow and calf near the edge of the stone.— The characters are Kanarese, of the regular type of the period to which the record refers itself ; and they are well formed and well executed throughout. The size of the letters ranges, in A. from about $\frac{1}{2}$ " to $\frac{3}{4}$ ", and in B. from about $\frac{3}{8}$ " to $\frac{1}{2}$ ". The second part of the record, commencing in A. line 72 and B. line 77, was engraved by the *Rāvāri*¹ Honnōja or Honṇōja ; and the first part was engraved by the same person in conjunction with the Rāvāri Sōvōja : the writers or composers of the two parts were different people : but, on each stone, the execution is so uniform throughout that, in each case, the whole record must have been put on the stone at one and the same time, at or soon after the second date, in A.D. 1104, which must, therefore, be considered the proper date of the record.— Except for the opening invocation of Śiva, repeated in A. line 72 f. and B. line 77 f., and for the verse which follows it in the first instance, and for one imprecatory verse in A. line 71 f. and B. line 76, the language is Kanarese ; partly in verse, and partly in prose. In addition to rāvāri, 'an engraver,' the record gives us another word, khaṇḍarīsu (A. line 85, B. lines 77, 90), evidently meaning 'to engrave,'² which is not found in Mr. Kittel's Kannada-English Dictionary, and dhāḷi (A. line 6, B. line 7) as a variant of dāḷi, 'attack, incursion, invasion,' gāvunḍa (s.g., A. line 19) as a variant of gauḍa, gavuḍa, 'a village-headman (the Marāṭhī pāṭī), and bhāṇasu (A. line 75, B. line 80) as a variant of bāṇasa, bāṇasu, 'kitchen : ' it also gives, in A. line 6, B. line 7, kutkīḷa, 'a mountain ; ' Kittel's Dictionary includes this word ; but Monier-Williams' Sanskrit Dictionary seems to give only the form kutīḷa.

The whole inscription is a record of the time of the Western Chālukya king Vikramāditya VI. It is a Śaiva record. And it registers grants that were made in his twenty-sixth year, in A.D. 1101, and in his twenty-ninth year, in A.D. 1104. On the first occasion, when the Daṇḍanāyaka Gōvindarasa was ruling the districts known as the Hānūṅgal five-hundred, the Bāsavura hundred-and-forty, and the Nāgarakhaṇḍa seventy, he came in state to Abbalūr, and saw the temple of the god Brahmēśvara which Bammaḡāvunḍa had caused to be built there, and was pleased ; and, at the request of Bammaḡāvunḍa's son Echaḡāvunḍa, he granted to the temple a village named Muriganahallī³ in the Nāgarakhaṇḍa seventy. On the second occasion, grants were made by some of the villagers to provide for the aṅgabhōga and the perpetual lamp of the same temple.

² So, also, C. line 52 gives khaṇḍarane, evidently in the sense of 'engraving.'

³ This name is not found now in maps, etc.—The place is mentioned again in a record of later date,—an addition at the end of an inscription of A.D. 1162 at Bajagāmi (P. S. O.-C. Insors. No. 184 ; and see Mys. Insors. p. 96),—which registers a grant of the villages of Karinele and Maruvasi and Muriganahallī and Kunderage (?) in the Nāgarakhaṇḍa kampana, and Chikka-Kaṇṇuge in the Hānūṅgal kampana, for the aṅgabhdga of the gods Dakṣiṇa-Kēdāreśvara (of Bajagāmi), Sōmanātha, and Brahmēśvara of Abbalūr.—Chikka-Kaṇṇuge is evidently the modern 'Chikkangi' in the Hāṅgal tāluka.

The record contains two dates. The details of the first date,—when the grant was made by the Danḍanāyaka Gōvindarasa,—are Sunday, the new-moon day, when there was an eclipse of the sun, of the month Vaiśākha of the Vishu (properly called Vṛisha) saṃvatsara, which was the twenty-sixth year of the reign of Vikramāditya VI. This date was not recorded correctly. The given saṃvatsara was Śaka-Saṃvat 1024 current. There was, indeed, an annular eclipse of the sun, which was probably visible in Southern India, on the specified new-moon day.¹ But the tithi ended, by Sewell and Dikshit's Tables, at about 2 hrs. 12 min. after mean sunrise (for Ujjain) on Tuesday, 30th April, A.D. 1101; and it cannot be connected with the Sunday at all, as it began at about 30 min. after mean sunrise on the Monday. The details of the second date,—when the grants were made by the villagers; shortly after which time, presumably, the whole record was put on the stone,—are, Sunday, coupled with the sixth tithi of the bright fortnight of the month Bhādrapada of the Tārāṇa saṃvatsara, which was the twenty-ninth year of the same reign. The given saṃvatsara was Śaka-Saṃvat 1027 current. And the corresponding English date is Sunday, 28th August, A.D. 1104; on which day the given tithi ended at about 18 hrs. 42 min.

Lines 8 to 17 of this record mention a Danḍanāyaka Gōvindarāja, who is described as “ruling,” but without any hint as to the sphere or nature of his powers. Lines 59 to 62 mention a Mahāsāmantādhipati and Danḍanāyaka Gōvindarasa, who in A. D. 1101 was “ruling” the Hānūṃgal, Bāsavura, and Nāgarakhaṇḍa districts. And a third passage,—A. lines 75, 76, B. line 80.—mentions a Danḍanāyaka Gōvindarasa, who in A. D. 1104 was administering the Banavāsi province and the vaḍḍarāvula-duty at the command of Anantapāla, a high minister of the Western Chālukya king Vikramāditya VI., who is mentioned in many of the records of this period.

The Gōvindarāja of the first passage was the son of a certain Kṛishnarāja, whose pedigree is not disclosed, and of Padmaladōvī, an elder sister of Anantapāla. And he seems to be identical with the Gōvindarasa of the second passage. This is inferred, partly from the fact that it would have been unnecessary to mention him with such prominence in the first passage, and especially as “ruling,” unless more details were to be given about him further on, and partly from the description of the Gōvindarasa of the second passage as mīvanagandhavārāṇa, which is taken to mean “the choice elephant of his maternal uncle,”—with reference to Anantapāla, who stood in that relationship towards the Gōvindarāja of the first passage.² It may be remarked, in passing, that the allotment to the Gōvindarasa of the second passage of so high a rank as that of Mahāsāmantādhīpati, is undoubtedly incorrect, whoever he may have been; just as much as in line 4 the record makes a mistake in describing Anantapāla as merely a Mahāsāmanta, instead of a Mahāsāmantādhīpati.

² Māva means ‘a mother's brother,’ and also ‘a wife's father.’ This record does not mention anyone, with reference to whom it could be taken in the latter sense in the case of the Gōvindarāja of the first passage. And on the other hand, it does not seem at all probable that Rāparāṅgabhairava-Gōvindarasa (regarding whom, see further on) was either a nephew or a son-in-law of Anantapāla; no such hint is given in any of the passages mentioning him, though they describe him very fully.—Moreover, the full description of the Gōvindarasa of the second passage in this record (line 59 ff.) runs—Samādhiḡatapaṃhohamahāsābdamahāśāntādhīpati-mahāprachandamāḡa-ndyakan=dsthāna-vastu-ndyakan nija-kula-kulaṇya-sudhakarām guṇa-ratnākarām sukara-sukavi-pika-nikara-mākamām kīrti-lāḡ-kāmām samara-samaya-Shaymukhām chatura-Chaturmmukhām dushṭa-darppishṭh-śhḡhḡ(śhḡ)ś-drāṭi-mada-nirāraṇām māvana-gamdhavārāṇām ndm-ddi-samasta-prasasti-sahitām śrīmad-damḡandya-Gōvindarasaṃ. The biruda Rāparāṅgabhairava does not occur here. And I do not find any of these epithets applied to Rāparāṅgabhairava-Gōvindarasa, or anything bearing on them in the various descriptions of him, with the exception that in line 39 of the record of A.D. 1114 he is described as samara-mukha-Shaymukha, which may be compared with the samara-samaya-Shaymukha of the present passage; but this is not conclusive, and the dsthāna-vastu-ndyaka of the present passage occurs elsewhere (see page 217 below, note 6) in the case of Anantapāla, and not of Rāparāṅgabhairava-Gōvindarasa.

The Gōvindarasa of the third passage, however,—though the special biruda does not occur in it,¹—being described as having a much more extensive authority, is most probably another person, to be distinguished by the full name of Raṇarāṅgabhairava-Gōvindarasa, who was apparently a paternal uncle of the Gōvindarāja of the first passage, and regarding whom we learn the following facts from records at Baḷagāmi and Tālgund.² He belonged to the Parāsara gōtra, and was the son of Dāsirāja, son of Kēsirāja and Nilabbe, and of Sōvala-dēvi or Sōmāmbike (e.g., the records of A. D. 1102, line 24 f., and A.D. 1114, line 37 f.). The record of A.D. 1102 styles him (line 44) Kṛishṇarāj-ānuja, “the younger brother of Kṛishṇarāja,”—with reference, doubtless, to the Kṛishṇarāja of the Ablūr inscription; and the record of A.D. 1112 styles him (line 37) aṇṇan=aṇṇakāḍṛa, “the champion of his elder brother,” and Kṛishṇarājan=aṇṇugina-tamma, “the affectionate (or beloved) younger brother of Kṛishṇarāja.” The record of A.D. 1114 further describes him as Lāṭ-ānvaya-lalāṭa-maṇḍala-tilaka, which expression, taking lalāṭamaṇḍala as meaning much the same thing as lalāṭapaṭṭa, we may render by “a forehead-mark of the broad forehead that was the lineage of the Lāṭas:” so, also, the record of A.D. 1102 describes Anantapāla (in line 8) as Lāṭa-kulakumudavana-vidhu-kara, “a very ray of the moon to (open) the cluster of water-lilies (flowering at night) that was the family of the Lāṭas:” evidently, both the persons traced their origin to ancestors who were natives of the Lāṭa country; and this, no doubt, accounts in part for the intermarriage and the special favour shown by Anantapāla to Raṇarāṅgabhairava-Gōvindarasa. His biruda of Raṇarāṅgabhairava, “a very Bhairava (Śiva) in the field of battle,” figures more or less prominently in all the records. And the record of A.D. 1114 styles him (line 40) Tribhuvanamalladēva-vijaya-dakṣiṇa-bhujā-daṇḍa, “the staff of the victorious right arm of Tribhuvanamalladēva-(Vikramāditya VI.)” In A.D. 1102, the Daṇḍāṇḍyaka Anantapāla, the Mahāsāmantādhīpati who had attained the pañchamahāśabda,³ was “protecting, with the delight

³ The term pañchamahāśabda, meaning literally “five great sounds,” denotes the sounds of five musical instruments, the use of which was allowed, as a special mark of distinction, to persons of high rank and authority. The epithet samadhigatapañchamahāśabda is found most commonly in connection with the names of great feudatories and high officials; the instances in which it occurs among the epithets of paramount sovereigns, are but few. I have given a general note on the term in my Gupta Inscriptions, p. 296; in the course of which I have quoted a paper in Ind. Ant. Vol. XII. p. 95 f. which tells us that the Liṅgāyat Fiedhachintamani enumerates the five instruments as being the śrīṅga or horn, the tammaṭa or tambour, the śaḥḥa or conch-shell, the ḍḍḍḍ or kettle-drum, and the jayaghaṇḍ or gong. And an inscription of A.D. 1032 at Sattūra in Mysore (Ep. Ca-n. Vol. III., Nj. 184; I quote, however, from an ink-impression) enumerates them as the tiva [i], daḍḍa, khaḍḍike, jayaghaṇḍ, and ḍḍḍḍ, and provides an allotment to the god śāṇa-śāṇam-udēyar for playing these musical instruments, and performing the worship of the god, three times a day.—For the ḍḍḍḍ, which is the same as the śrīṅga, see a note further below. The word daḍḍa may perhaps stand for daḍḍasa, which is explained in Kittel’s Dictionary as ‘the drum of a Pomba.’ The tiva and khaḍḍike remain to be identified. The former of them was the special musical instrument of the Rāshṭrakūṭa kings of Mākhḍḍ and of the Raṭṭa chieftains of Saundatti.—For the special instruments of some other great families, reference may be made to my Dyn. Kan. Dist. p. 327, and note 7.—The custom of kings being heralded in public by musical instruments is mentioned by the Chinese pilgrim Hiuen Tsiang, in connection with Śīlāditya-Harshavardhana of Kanauj; he tells us (Liṭt., Beal’s translation, of an agreeable or friendly interchange of communications (with his paramount sovereign),¹ the two-six-hundred (i.e. the Belvola three-hundred and the Purigeṇe three-hundred), the Banavase twelve-thousand, and the vaḍḍarāvula and perjuṅka duties; and his subordinate,² the Daṇḍanāyaka Baṇaraṅgabhairava-Gōvindarasa, holding office by the favour of Anantapāla,³ was "protecting, with the delight of an agreeable or friendly interchange of communications (with Anantapāla)," the vaḍḍarāvula of the melvaṭṭe,⁴ the eraḍum-bilkoḍe, and the perjuṅka. In A.D. 1103, Anantapāla, with the same two titles and also those of Mahāpradhāna and Bhāṇasavergaḍe, was "protecting, etc.," the Belvola three-hundred, the Purigeṇe three-hundred, the Banavase twelve-thousand, and the panndya-duty of the saptārḍhalakṣhe or seven-and-a-half-lākṣ country;⁵ and the Daṇḍanāyaka Baṇaraṅgabhairava-Gōvindarāja, who had obtained the administration of the Vanavāsi twelve-thousand through his favour,⁶ was "protecting, etc.," the Banavase twelve-thousand, the vaḍḍarāvula, and the achchupannāya of

.,⁷ and had, under himself, a Samdhivigrahādhipati or minister for peace and war named Īśvarayyanāyaka. In A.D. 1107, the Mahāpradhāna, Bhāṇasumanavergaḍe, and Daṇḍanāyaka Anantapāla⁸ was "happily governing"⁹ the two-six-hundred (i.e. the Belvola and Purigeṇe districts) and the Banavāsi twelve-thousand; and his subordinate, the Daṇḍanāyaka Baṇaraṅgabhairava-Gōvindarāja, who had attained good fortune by his favour,¹⁰ was "protecting, etc.," the Banavāsi twelve-thousand, the vaḍḍarāvula, the perjuṅka, and the eraḍum-bilkoḍe;¹¹ and this record mentions, as a subordinate of him,

p. 173) that, "as Śilādityarāja marched, he was always accompanied by several hundred persons with golden drums, who beat one stroke for every step taken; they called these the 'music-pace-drums:' Śilāditya alone used this method,—other kings were not permitted to adopt it."

⁴ The meaning seems to be that he was administering the collection and expenditure of that portion of the vaḍḍarāvula which was levied on, or was allotted to, an object called the melvaṭṭe or mélvaṭṭe. The genitive melvaṭṭeya may qualify also the eraḍum-bilkoḍe and the perjuṅka. Kittel's Dictionary gives mélvaṭṭe, 'an awning' (in which vaṭṭa is for paṭṭa; and paṭṭe occurs as another form of paṭṭa), and mélvaṭṭe (which might easily occur in the form of also mélvaṭṭe), 'superior, fine cloth.' But the vaṭṭe may equally well stand for baṭṭe, 'a road;' and mélvaṭṭe may indicate the levy of the duty, or the three duties, on the principal high-roads: compare mélva-durga, 'a high, superior fort,' and mélva-paṅkti, 'the best or principal row.'

a certain Trivalḷbhaṭṭa, of the Vatsa gōtra,—described as the mayduna, i.e. sister's husband, or wife's brother, of the Danḍanāyaka Gōvindarasa,—who was holding office as *Pergaḍe*¹ of the mahāvadda-village of Tānagundūr (Tālgund). The record of A.D. 1112 introduces a new official superior of Raṇaraṅgabhairava-Gōvindarāja: it tells us that, under Vikramāditya VI., the Pāṇḍya Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Tribhuvanamalla-Kāmarasa, “the lord of Gōkaruṣa the best of towns,”—who belonged to the line of the Pāṇḍya rulers of Sisugali, the capital of the Haive division of the Koṅkan,—was “ruling with the delight of an agreeable or friendly interchange of communications (with his paramount sovereign);” that Anantapāla gave him the Vanavāsi country;² that, on receipt of it, he made appointments; and that, by appointment from him, Raṇaraṅgabhairava-Gōvinda, mentioned further on in the record as the Danḍādhipati Gōvinda, was “protecting” the Banavase country.³ The record of A.D. 1114 does not make any reference to the Pāṇḍya prince: it speaks of Anantapāla as a feudatory of Vikramāditya VI., but, evidently with reference to past events only, as, like the record of A.D. 1112, it does not couple any titles with his name; it speaks of the Danḍādhipa Gōvinda as a rājahansa or flamingo dwelling on the water-lilies that were his feet; and it describes him more fully as the Mahāsāmantādhipati who had attained the pañchamahāśabda,⁴ he who was a very Raṇaraṅgabhairava, the Mahāpradhāna, the Manevergaḍe, the Danḍanāyaka Gōvindamayya, who was “governing” the Banavase twelve-thousand, the Sāntalige thousand, the two-six-hundred (i.e. the Belvola and Purigere districts), and the vaḍḍarāvula and panḍya duties. By this time, then, Raṇaraṅgabhairava-Gōvindarasa had been promoted to most of the high offices that had been held by his patron Anantapāla.⁵

* * * * *

When the Danḍanāyaka Gōvindarasa made his grant in A.D. 1101, as mentioned in line 59 ff. of the record, he laved the feet of a Śaiva teacher or priest named Sōmēśvara, who is introduced to us in a passage, commencing in line 51, which runs thus:—

Śrīmad-Abbalūr-Ēcha-gāvuṇḍana gurugaḷ śrī-Sōmēśvara-paṇḍita-dēvar-ajja-gurugaḷa tapaḥ-prabhāvam=em̐t-em̐dōḍe || Dhareg⁶=eseva Sa(śa)kti-paṇḍhege karam=agraṇiy=enipa

A Kēdāra-yatimdrana⁷ lōka-prastuna⁸ śiṣyan=atyamaḷa-guṇ-ānikam nirmmaḷa⁹-charitam

² Anantapāla seems, from this, to have been retiring from office about that time.

Read, in either case, āmbra, for āmbra.¹¹ F. l., dhara.¹² In the Ablūr record there follows one more verse about Sōmēśvara: but it does not present anything of interest; and it is not included in the Baḷagāmi record of A.D. 1102.¹³ I have not found anything yet to explain the meaning of this name. Mūvara must be the genitive of mūvaru, ‘three persons,’ unless it can be connected with mā, = mudu, ‘advanced age.’ For kōṇe, of which kōṇya is the genitive, the dictionary only gives the meanings of ‘a pitcher; an inner apartment or chamber, a room.’¹⁴ It seems impossible to avoid taking the word akalaṁka as a proper name; to render it by simply “stainless people,” seems to give a very inadequate meaning to the text. At the same time, we do not yet know of any Śaiva writer named Akalaṁka; and Sōmēśvara can hardly have given encouragement to the writings of the Jain Akalaṁka, even in the department of tarka or logic with which the name of that Akalaṁka is sometimes specially connected (e.g. in line 45 of a Jain record of A.D. 1077 at Baḷagāmi, P. S. O.-C. Inscr. No. 163, Mys. Inscr. p. 129).— The next three epithets, also, are puzzling. From line 65 of the Ablūr inscription, we learn that Sōmēśvara was a follower of Lakulīśa; and (see page 227 below) Lakulīśa was an opponent of the Lōkāyatas, Mīmāṁsakas, and Sāmkyas.— There are, perhaps, some hidden second meanings, which I have failed to see. Kujāta, for instance, may mean ‘base-born,’ as well as ‘tree,’ but the alternative reading maḷḷa is opposed to that.

to (bring to full tide) the ocean that is the Lōkāyatas,— a very guardian elephant of that quarter of the regions which is the Sāṃkhyā-doctrine,— a very pearl-ornament glittering on the white throat of the woman who is the Mīmāṃsā,— a very hot-rayed sun to (close) the water-lilies (blooming at night) that are the Buddhists,— the logician, the learned Sōmēśvara, the leader of the Naiyāyikas, attained greatness.” And a further passage, in lines 63 to 66, describes him, in rhyming epithets, as— Yama-niyama-svādhyāya-dhyāna-dhāraṇa-maunānushṭhāna-japa-samādhi-śīla-sampañna vibudha-jana-prasaṃna nyāya-śāstra-vistri(stri)ta-sarōjavana-divākara Vaiśeṣhika-vārdhhi-varddhana-sa(sa)rat-sudhākara sāṃkhyā-gama-praviṇa-māṇikyābharaṇa guru-charaṇa-sarasruha-shaṭoharaṇa śabda-śāstra-sahakāra-vana-vasanta prajā-ōday-ōdbuddha-Lākula-siddhānta nirupam-ōpanyāsa-dēvanadi-pravāha nija-datta-mantra-prasāda-samvarddhita-śishya-samdōha śāhitya-vidyā-mahā-nadi-pravāha-nimnagādhiśvara bhakti-pravāha-paritusṭa-Paramēśvara niravadya-nirmmaḷa-tapō-guṇ-aika-niḷaya kirtti-kaumudi-mudita-mēdinī-valaya nām-ādi-samasta-prasasti-sahita,— namely, “he who is possessed of the glory of such names as he who is endowed with self-control, the observance of restraint, the repetition of the scriptures to himself, meditation, immovable abstraction of the mind, the observance of silence, the muttering of prayers, deep contemplation, and good character, and who is gracious to learned men; he who is a very sun to (open) the great cluster of water-lilies (blooming in the daytime) that is the Nyāyāśāstra, and who is a very autumn-moon to bring to full tide the ocean of the Vaiśeṣhikas; he who is a very ruby-ornament of those who are versed in the Sāṃkhyāgama, and who is a very bee on the water-lilies that are the feet of his teacher; he who is a very spring to the grove of mango-trees that is the Śabdaśāstra, and who has given new life to the *Lākulasiddhānta*² by the development of his wisdom; he who is a very stream of the river of the gods in unequalled reasoning, and who has made the assembly of his disciples to prosper by the favour of the counsel given by him; he who is a very ocean to (receive) the stream of the great river that is the Śāhityavidyā, and who has quite satisfied the god Paramēśvara (Śiva) with the unbroken flow of his devotion; he who is the sole abode of the virtue of blameless and spotless penance, and who has delighted the whole circuit of the earth with the moonlight that is his fame.”

We gather a good deal of information about the Mūvarakōṇeyasaṃtati from various records at Baḷagāmi.³ And, in the first place, we find that it was connected with the sect of the Kālamukhas, which is already fairly well known. We learn this from the record of A.D. 1112, which says (line 49)—Parvvaṭ-āmnāyada Mūvara-kōṇeya-santānada Śakti-pariṣheyaḥ=negaḷte-vadeḍu śishya-chātaka-varṣākāḷa-mukhar=enisida Kālamukharoḷ,— “among the Kālamukhas,¹ who, having attained fame in the Śaktiparishē of the Mūvarakōṇeyasam̐tāna of the Parvatāmnāya, had caused themselves to be spoken of as the very burst of the rainy season for the chātaka-birds that are disciples,"—and then goes on to place among these "Kālamukhas" Kēdārāsakti, his son Śrīkaṇṭha, and Śrīkaṇṭha's son Sōmēśvara. This passage would, indeed, seem to identify the Kālamukhas with the Mūvarakōṇeyasam̐tati. But this appears not quite consistent with the fact that the college (sthāna) of the Kālamukhas of the ancient Balligāve was the temple of Pañchalinga,² whereas the college of the Mūvarakōṇeyasam̐tati was a different building. And it seems probable that what the passage really means, is, that the founder of the Mūvarakōṇeyasam̐tati was a member of the Kālamukha sect who established some particular school, the tenets of which differed in some respects from the general doctrine of the Kālamukhas. The verse Dhareg-eseva, etc., seems to name, as the order of development, first the Śaktiparishē,³ then the Parvatāvali, and then the Mūvarakōṇeyasam̐tati. On the other hand, the prose passage, just quoted, indicates first the Parvatāvali, then the Mūvarakōṇeyasam̐tati, and then the Śaktiparishē. The verse used in the record of A.D. 1129 (see page 223 below), and in some subsequent records, does not mention the Śaktiparishē, and indicates first the Parvatāvali and then the Mūvarakōṇeyasam̐tati. And the record of A.D. 1192 mentions only the Parvatāvali.

² Regarding Lākula, the founder of the tenets that were classed under the general head of Lākulasiddhānta, see page 226 ff. below. Several references to him and his writings will be quoted from the Baḷagāmi records. And mention is made of the Lākulidgama in line 21 of the Bijāpur inscription of A.D. 1074 (Ind. Ant. Vol. X. p. 126).

The members of the Mūvarakōṇeyasam̐tati were the hereditary priests of the temple of the god Śiva in the form of Dakṣhiṇa-Kēdārēśvara, "the Kēdārēśvara of the South,"⁴ which, as we learn from line 57 of the record of A.D. 1112, was on the śrī or raised bank of a tank called Tāvaregere and Tāvareyakere, "the tank of water-lilies," which was in the southern part of the lands of Balligāve. They had also the temple of Śiva in the form of Nagārēśvara or Nakharēśvara,⁵ which, again,—as we are told in line 26 of the record of A.D. 1094,—was at the Tāvaregere tank. And, from A.D. 1139 onwards (see page 224 f. below), they had also a temple of Śiva in the form of Kuvuvēśvara, which was then built in connection with the temple of Dakṣhiṇa-Kēdārēśvara. Their maṭha or college is sometimes spoken of as the Kēdāramatṭha and the Kēdārasthāna. But its actual name was, in Kanarese, Kōḍiyamatṭha, which appears in a Sanskrit passage as Kōṭimātṭha.⁶ From line 60 f. of a record of

A.D. 1158,¹ which speaks of "Vāmaśaktipañḍitadēva, the Āchārya of the Kōḍiyamaṭha of the Hergaḍe Vennamarasa of that place (Balligāve)," it seems to have been built for the members of the line by the said Vennamarasa. And it would appear that it was named the Kōḍiyamaṭha because, probably, it stood somewhere near the kōḍi or outlet of the Tāvaregeṇe tank. That the Kōḍiyamaṭha was the maṭha of the Mūvarakōṇeyasaṃtati, we learn explicitly from the record of A.D. 1162, which mentions, as belonging to "the succession of the family of the Gurus of the Kōḍiyamaṭha," two persons, Gautama and the Vāmaśakti mentioned above, who, as will be seen, were disciple-descendants of Kēdāraśakti. And the same record further gives (line 27 ff.) the following rather singular description of the maṭha,—Dakṣhiṇa-Kēdāra-sthānamuṃ Śiva-liṅga-pūjā-pulaka-sasya-sarasa-kēdāra-sthānamuṃ naiṣṭhika-brahmacharyya-Śiva-muniḥ-ānusthāna-niṣṭhita-sthānamuṃ sāṃga-Rig-Yajus-Sām-Ātharvva-chaturvēda-svādhyāya-sthānamuṃ Kaumāra-Pāṇiniya-Śākāṭyana-Śabdānūsāsan-ādi-byā(vyā)karaṇa-byā(vyā)khyāna-sthānamuṃ nyāya-vaiśeṣhika-mīmāṃsā-sāṃkhya-bauddh(ā)ddh(ā)-ādiśāḍu-darsana-byā(vyā)khyāna-sthānamuṃ Lākulaśiddhānta-Pātañjala-ādi-yōgaśāstra-byā(vyā)khyāna-sthānamuṃ aṣṭādaśapurāṇa-dharmaśāstra-sakala-kābya(vya)-nāṭaka-nāṭik-ādi-vidyā-vidyā-sthānamuṃ dīn-ānātha-paṃgva-mādhya-badhira-katṭhaka-gāyaka-vādaka-vāṃśika-nartaka-vaitālika-nagna-bhagna-kṣhapanak-aikadāṃḍi-tridāṃḍi-haṃsa-paramahaṃsa-ādi-nānā-dēśa-bhikṣhukajan-ānivāry-[ā*]mānāna-sthānamuṃ nān-ānātha-rōgijana-rōdha-bhaishajya-sthānamuṃ sakala-bhūt-ābhaya-pradāna-sthānamuṃ-āgi Kōḍiyamaṭhav-irppudn,—namely, "there is the Kōḍiyamaṭha, which has become the abode of the god Kēdāra of the South,—a very field charming with a crop which is the standing erect of the hairs of the body that is induced by doing worship to the liṅga of Śiva,—a place devoted to the observances of Śaiva saints² leading perpetually the life of celibate religious students,—a place for the quiet study of the four Vēdas, the Rich, Yajus, Sāman, and Atharvan, together with their auxiliary works,—a place where commentaries are composed on the Kaumāra, Pāṇiniya, Śākāṭyana, Śabdānūsāsa, and other grammatical works,—a place where commentaries are composed on the six systems of philosophy, namely the Nyāya, Vaiśeṣhika, Mīmāṃsā, Sāṃkhya, Bauddha, etc.,³—a place where commentaries are composed on the Lākulaśiddhānta, and the Pātañjala and other Yōgaśāstras,—a place for (studying) the eighteen Purāṇas, the law-books, and all the poetical compositions, the dramas, the light comedies, and the other various kinds of learning,—a place where food is always given to the poor, the helpless, the lame, the blind, and the deaf, and to professional story-tellers, singers, musicians, bards, players, and minstrels whose duty it is to awaken their masters with music and songs, and to the naked and the crippled, and to (Jain and Buddhist) mendicants, to (Brāhmaṇ) mendicants who carry a single staff and also those who carry a triple staff, to haṃsa and paramahaṃsa ascetics, and to all other beggars from many countries,—a place where many helpless sick people are harboured and treated,—a place of assurance of safety for all living creatures."

The founder of the Mūvarakōṇeyasaṃtati appears to have been Kēdāraśakti; at any rate, we have obtained no earlier name at present. For him, we have as yet no date.

The son and chief disciple of Kēdāraśakti, and evidently his successor as head of the maṭha, was Śrīkaṇṭha. The record of A.D. 1094 names him as his chief disciple (line 21); and the record of A.D. 1112 names him as his son (line 50). In the record of A.D. 1094, after the verse Dharege-seva, etc., there is used (line 21 f.), to describe Śrīkaṇṭha, a verse which we can now render more correctly, as follows,—Ā⁴ munipan-agra-śishyar śrīmat Śrīkaṇṭhapaṇḍitar=vvasudhevo]=imn=ê mā[t]o Lākuliśar=ttām=ene Sarvvajña-ka[par=esedar=alumba[m],—“the chief disciple of that great saint was the holy Śrīkaṇṭhapāṇḍita, who, being but little inferior (in knowledge) to the Omniscient one, shone out excessively in the world just as if,—what more could be said?,—he was Lākuliśa¹ himself.” For Śrīkaṇṭha, again, we have as yet no date.²

³ The usual enumeration of the six systems seems to be Nyāya, Vaiśeṣhika, Pūro-Mīmāṃsā, Uttara-Mīmāṃsā, Sāṃkhya, and Yōga. This passage speaks of six systems, but names only five. The inclusion of the Bauddha or Buddhist system is rather peculiar.

The son and disciple, and evidently the successor, of Śrīkaṇṭha was Sômesvara. The record of A.D. 1094 names him as his disciple (line 22); and the record of A.D. 1112 names him as his son (line 52). In A.D. 1094,³ he was the Āchārya of the god Nakharêśvara; and his feet were then laved by the assembly of the Paṭṭanasvāmin and other representatives of the people of the town, on the occasion of making a grant to that god. In A.D. 1101, as we learn from the Ablūr inscription A., he was at Ablūr, and his feet were laved by the Danḍanāyaka Gôvindarasa, on the occasion of making a grant to the god Brahmêśvara of that village. The record of A.D. 1102 describes him (line 49) as the Āchārya of the sthāna of the god Dakṣhiṇa-Kêdārêśvara, and tells us that his feet were then laved by the Danḍanāyaka Raṇarāṅgabhairava-Gôvindarasa, in making a grant to that god. And in A.D. 1112 his feet were laved by the Pāṇḍya Mahāmaṇḍalêśvara Tribhuvanamalla-Kāmadêvarasa, when another grant was made to the same god.⁴ This last record describes Sômesvara, in line 34, as the Ārādhyā or family-priest of Kāmadêvarasa.

The record of A.D. 1129 opens the account of these teachers with a new verse, which runs (line 58 f.)—Mûvara⁵-kôneya-saṁtati-dêvabra(vra)tan=eseva Parvat-âvaliyo[=tān=âvirbhha(bbha)visidan=ama[ya]śô-vibhu Kêdārâsakti-paṇḍita-dêva[m]*,—“in the famous Parvatâvali there was born Kêdârâsaktipāṇḍitadêva himself, the lord of pure fame, a devotee of the gods in the Mûvarakôneyasaṁtati.” It mentions Śrīkaṇṭha as the disciple of Kêdârâsakti, and Sômesvarâryya as the disciple of Śrīkaṇṭha. After Sômesvara there came, it tells us, his younger brother Vidyâbharana. But he, it says, did not care for any occupation except the steady pursuit of knowledge; and so he transferred all the business affairs of the maṭha to his own chief disciple Vâmasakti. In A.D. 1129, however, when the grant registered in this record was made,—namely, the allotment of a village for the repairs and other purposes of the maṭha,—it was Vidyâbharana who was summoned (line 69), and whose feet were laved, by the Western Châlukya king Sômesvara III., who had then come south to make a state progress through his dominions and was encamped at Hulluniyatîrtha.⁶ Vidyâbharana's name was afterwards expanded into Vâdividyâbharana, by which appellation he is mentioned in the Ablūr inscription C., and line 44 of the Baḷagāmi record of A.D. 1149.

As far as dates go, the next name is that of Jñānasakti, who is mentioned as a disciple of Vâdividyâbharana in the Ablūr inscription C. This record gives dates for him in A.D. 1130 and 1144. In A.D. 1130 his feet were laved by the Nālprabhu Barmagâvuṇḍa, when the latter made his grant to the god Brahmêśvara of Abbalūr. In this record there is used a

² A record of A.D. 1098 (P. S. O.-C. Inscri. No. 167, Mys. Inscri. p. 107) mentions (line 31 f.) “Śrīkaṇṭhapāṇḍitadêva, the Āchārya of the temple of Pañchalînga.” But he must have been a different person, if only because the date there given for him is later than the date of Sômesvara, the son and disciple of the Śrīkaṇṭha who was the son and disciple of Kêdârâsakti.

³ Mr. Rice (Mys. Inscri. Introd. p. 90, note) would allot to him an earlier date, in A.D. 1071, from another record at Baḷagāmi (P. S. O.-C. Inscri. No. 160, Mys. Inscri. p. 164). But the person there mentioned (lines 26, 29 f.) was a different person, namely Sômesvarapaṇḍita, sthānapati of the god Mallikāmôdêśvara, and a disciple of Chandrabhūṣanapaṇḍita.

variation of the verse given in the record of A.D. 1129 ; and the whole passage (line 36 ff.) runs — Mūvara-kōneya-santati-dēvabha (vra)tar=eseva *Parvvat-āvaliyo*l=tām=āvirbhbbha(rbbba)-visidar=ama]a-yaśō-vibhava-vinūtar=arebar=āchāryyarkka] || Va || Avar=olage || Svasti Yama-niyama-svādhyāya-dhīyāna-dhāraṇa-mō (mau)nānushṭhāna-japa-samādhi-śīla-saṁpanna-rum | vibudha-jana-prasannarum | śrīmad-Vādividyābharāṇa-paṁḍita-dēvara śishyarum=appa śrīmadu-Jñānaśakti-paṁḍita-dēvara kālām karchchi, etc. There does not appear to be any mention of this Jñānaśakti in the records at Baḷagāmi.

We take up the line again from the record of A.D. 1129. The arrangement of this document is rather unusual. The ordinary part of it,— ending with the date and the details of the grant,— comes to a close in line 72. But the benedictive and imprecatory passages, which would usually stand next, do not commence till line 76. And there intervenes a parenthetical passage, which is now to be considered. As already stated, this record says, in lines 62 to 64, that Vidyābharāṇa transferred all the business affairs of the maṭha to “his own chief disciple Vāmaśakti;” the words in the original are,— *Enisid=ā Vidyābharāṇam vidyā-bharāṇa-vyāsaṁgay=allad=itara-vyāsaṁgaman=ollade maṭha-vyāsaṁgaman nij-āgra-śishyanum guru-kula-samuddharāṇa-vāma-śaktiyum=enisida Vāmaśakti-muniśvarano*l=niyōjisid-āga]e : and this prose passage introduces a verse which says that he directed Vāmaśakti to “protect” the maṭha, i.e. to manage it. But the opening verse of the record invokes the protection of the god Kēdārēśvara for Gautama, who is described in it as having received the ādhipatyā of the Kēdāramatṭha by the favour of the command of Vidyābharāṇa. And the parenthetical passage, which intervenes between the donative portion and the benedictive and imprecatory passages, commences by telling us that Vidyābharāṇa transferred the office of head of the maṭha to “his own chief disciple Gautama;” here, the text runs (lines 72, 73), in verse, with a prose connection,—¹ Ā Vidyābharāṇam vidyā-vividha-vinōda-yōga-saukhya[m] stṭhiti.[bha]m]g-āvahav=end=adan=ē]isi bhūvinuta-nij-āgra [śish]y[a]-Gau[tama-muniyo] || Maṭh-ādhipatyamam niyōjisid-āga]e. There is nothing in the record that explains why Gautama, as well as Vāmaśakti, is called the chief disciple of Vidyābharāṇa, and why Vidyābharāṇa “censured” or came to regret the happiness of having devoted himself to the various delights of learning because it had proved “destructive of stability,” and on that account, appointed Gautama to the office of Maṭhapati. And it is not at all intelligible why,—after a verse in lines 73, 74, which runs on in construction with the words niyōjisid-āga]e, and says that, just as saints before him, like brilliant lamps, had lit up the maṭha, so Gautama lit it up, like a very pure gem that serves as a lamp,—the parenthetical passage ends with a verse (lines 74 to 76) which makes no mention at all of Vidyābharāṇa, and says that the fortunes of the maṭha were nourished by Sōmēśvara, and then by Vāmaśakti, and then by Gautama.² But, evidently, when he entrusted the management of the affairs of the maṭha to Vāmaśakti in order that he himself might devote his whole time to study, Vidyābharāṇa retained the actual office of Maṭhapati in his own hands. And it seems clear that the record, though registering a grant made in A.D. 1129, was not really drawn up till some time after that date. In the interval, something or other must have occurred,—not disclosed in the record,—which prevented the eventual succession, that was doubtless intended, of Vāmaśakti as Maṭhapati, and led to the substitution of Gautama as being the next senior disciple.

The Vāmaśakti who is mentioned in the record of A.D. 1129, does not figure in any other of the records. But, for Gautama we have subsequent dates in A.D. 1139 and 1149; and he is mentioned in also some of the later records. The record of A.D. 1139 speaks of him as

Gautamārya and Gautamadēva, the Āchārya of the Kōḍiyamaṭha, and tells us that two sculptors named Bāvaṇa and Rāvaṇa, in order to do away with, i.e. to make amends for, some fault committed by their guild, founded a temple of the god Kuvuvēśvara in connection with the temple of Kēdārēśvara, and gave it to Gautama, and that, along with some other grants, Gautama himself allotted, for the purposes of this temple of Kuvuvēśvara, sixty kammas of rice-fields in the hakkaḷēśaya-land belonging to himself in the open plain on the east of the culturable land of the god Nārasimha. The record of A.D. 1149 speaks of him as Gautamārya and Gautamapaṇḍitadēva, the Āchārya of the Kēdārasthāna, and the disciple of Vādividyābharanapaṇḍitadēva, and tells us that his feet were then laved by the Śāntara Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Tribhuvanamalla-Jagaddēvarasa and his son Bammarasa, who had come to Balligāve, on the occasion of granting to the god Dakṣiṇa-Kēdārēśvara a village in the Śāntalige thousand.

The successor of Gautama was his son and disciple Vāmasākti,—the second of that name. He is mentioned first in a record which belongs to the end of A.D. 1155 or the beginning of A.D. 1156, according to the way in which we interpret the date, which is not recorded correctly. This record does not mention any members of the line previous to Gautama. It introduces him with another adaptation of the verse that is elsewhere found first in the record of A.D. 1129; here (line 35 f.) it runs,—Mūvara-kōṇeya-santati-dāvavratān-esava Parvvat-āvaliyol tāt-āvirbbhavisidan-amala-yaśō-vibhava-vinūtan-enipa Gautama-munipā[ni]*. The next verse tells us that Gautama's son was Vāmasāktipaṇḍitadēva. And the donative passage describes Vāmasākti as the Āchārya of the sthāna of the god Dakṣiṇa-Kēdārēśvara, and tells us that his feet were laved by the Mahāpradhāna and Daṇḍanāyaka Māyidēvarasa, the Hergaḍe of the vaḍḍarāvula and hejjuṇka duties of the Banavase twelve-thousand, on the occasion of making a grant to that god. A record of A.D. 1158¹ mentions him in lines 60, 61 as the Āchārya of “the Kōḍiyamaṭha of the Hergaḍe Veṇṇamarasa,”—in line 72, as the Ārādhyā or family-priest of the Mahāpradhāna and Daṇḍanāyaka Kēsimaṇḍya, Kēsīrāja or Kēsavadēva,—in line 74, as the son of Gautamamuni,—and in line 75, as the Rājaguru or royal preceptor; and it tells us that his feet were then laved by Kēsimaṇḍya. The record of A.D. 1162 describes him in line 40 as the disciple of Gautamāchārya, and tells us that then, on the occasion of making a grant to the god Dakṣiṇa-Kēdārēśvara, his feet were laved by the Kaḷachurya Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Bijjala, who was encamped at Balligāve in the course of a state progress undertaken with a view to secure the possession of the southern provinces.² The record of A.D. 1168 mentions him again as the Āchārya of the sthāna of Dakṣiṇa-Kēdārēśvara, as the Rājaguru, and as “the beloved disciple of Gautamadēva,” and describes him (line 33 ff.) as “a very Pāṇini in grammar, a very Bhūṣaṇāchārya in political science or moral philosophy, a very Bharata in knowledge of dramatic representation and the other Bharataśāstras, a very Subandhu in poetical composition, a very Lakulīśvara in establishing conclusive arguments, and a very Skanda on the earth at the feet of Śiva,³ and tells us that his feet were then laved by the Mahāsāmanta, Sēṇḍidāhattaraniyōgādhiśthāyaka, Mahāpradhāna, Sarvādhikārin and Mahāpasāyita, the Daṇḍanāyaka Bolikeya-Kēsimaṇḍya, in making a grant to the god Dakṣiṇa-Kēdārēśvara. A record of A.D. 1171⁴ mentions him again as the Rājaguru Vāmasāktidēva. A record of A.D. 1179⁵ speaks of him as “the beloved son of Gautama,” and as the Rājaguru and Āchārya of the sthāna of the god Kēdārēśvara, and tells us that his feet were then laved by the Kaḷachurya king Saṅkama, who had come to the south, the best of all countries, with all his ministers, on a pleasure-trip,¹ and also by the Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Tailahadēva and Egarahasa, who added to the grant made by Saṅkama a grant by themselves because the Gurus of the sthāna were their own family-preceptors; and an addition to this record registers the fact that in A.D. 1186 Vāmaśakti himself granted some land to the masons Bisandōja, Bāvōja, and Singōja, being pleased with them for building a maṇḍapa of the god Kēdāra. And finally, we have a later date for him from the record of A.D. 1192, which mentions him again as the Rājaguru, the son of Gautama of the Parvatāvali, and tells us that his feet were then laved by the Mahāpradhāna, Sarvādhikārin, and Mahāpasādyita, the Daṇḍandya Ereyappa, in making a grant, on behalf of his sovereign lord the Hoysala king Vīra-Ballāla II., to the god Dakṣiṇa-Kēdarēśvara.

After this, there were another Śrīkaṇṭha and a third Vāmaśakti; and with them our knowledge of the line comes to an end for the present. We take their names from the record of A.D. 1215. This record contains, in line 19 f., the following verse, in connection with the temple of Dakṣiṇa-Kēdarēśvara which is mentioned just before it,—Upāsate Virūpākṣam tatra Kōṭi-maṭha-sthitā Vāmaśaktir-yyathā pūrvvām-upamanyur-mmahā-tapāḥ,—“there they worship the god Virūpākṣa; as formerly did the zealous Vāmaśakti, abiding in the Kōṭimaṭha, and practising severe penances.” The reference here may be to either the first or the second Vāmaśakti. The record goes on to mention, in lines 20, 21, “Vāmaśaktidēva, the disciple of the Āchārya Śrīkaṇṭhadēva.” It speaks of him in line 24 as the Sthānāchārya. And it tells us that then, in A.D. 1215, his feet were laved, at the saṅkādādhikāra or office for the collection of customs of the Banavāse nāḍ, by a certain Hemmayyanāyaka, an official of the Mahāpradhāna, Sarvādhikārin and Mahāparamavivāsin Māyidēvapāṇḍita.

* * * * *

In the mention of the Lakulasiddhānta in line 65 of this record at Ablūr, and in certain allusions in some of the Baḷagāmi records quoted above, reference is made to the doctrine of a Śaiva teacher named Lakula, Lakulīśa, Lakulīśvara, and Nakulīśa,² the founder of the school of the Lakulīśa-Pāsupatas, regarding whom some information may conveniently be put together here. The Cintra prastāvi, which was composed in the period A.D. 1274 to 1296,—(edited by Dr. Bühler, Ep. Ind. Vol. I. p. 271),—claims that he was an incarnation of the god Śiva. It mentions, in connection with him, a place named Kārōhaṇa, in the Lāṭa country,—which Dr. Bühler has identified with the modern Kārvān, about seven miles towards the west from Dabhōl in the Baroda State,³—where four branches of his school were established by four of his pupils named Kuśika, Gārgya, Kaurusha, and Maitrēya. And Dr. Bühler understood it to imply that Kārōhaṇa-Kārvān was his birthplace. Now, however, in the light of the facts that I shall adduce further on, it seems clear that the words used in the original, saṁśṛīya Kārōhaṇam=adhyvāsa,—meaning, literally, as translated by Dr. Bühler, “he came to and dwelt at Kārōhaṇa,”—are not to be interpreted as implying that it was at Kārōhaṇa that the god became incarnate, but mean that Lakulīśa came from some other part of the country and settled there. Dr. Bühler has told us that the doctrines of the Lakulīśa-Pāsupatas are explained in Śāyana's Sarvadarśanasamgraha. But, he added, “nothing is known regarding their history.” And it is interesting, therefore, to be able to fix, from the southern records, the period when the founder of the school lived.

² For this form of the name, see Dr. Bühler's remarks (in his paper referred to in the next sentence), p. 274 and note 10. He has there told us that Nakulīśa is the form that is commonly used in Sanskrit literature; and he has expressed the opinion that the older form is Lakulīśa, which he explained as “a compound of lakula, i.e. lakṣiṇ, and īśa, ‘the lord wearing the staff,’ i.e. the khaṭvāga.” We find the form Nakulīśvara in the Baḷagāmi inscription of A.D. 1179 (see page 225 above, note 3).

The most important record is an inscription at Balagāmi of A.D. 1035, of the time of the Western Chālukya king Jayasimha II. (P. S. O.-C. Insers. No. 155; and see Mys. Insers. p. 146). It registers grants that were made in that year for the purposes of "the temple of the god Pañchalīnga, founded by the Pāṇḍavas, which was the college of the Kālāmukha Brāhmaṇ students of Balligāve, the capital of the Banavase twelve-thousand."¹ And it states (line 11 ff.) that the grants were made,—samasta-tarkk-ādi-sāstra-pārāvāra-pāragam vādi-Rudram vādibha-mastaka-nakh-āspāḷa(ṭa)na-kisōra-kēsari vādi-mah-āraṇya-davadahanam dushṭavādi-nishṭhura-paṭishṭha-sārdḍūlam *Bauddh-ābdi-baḍavāmukhaṁ Mīmāṃsaka-dhātṛidhara-vajram Lōkāyata-mahā-taru-vidāraṇa-krakacham sāmky-āhīmdra-rumdra-Vainatēyan*²=*advaitavādi-bhūja-kuṭhāraṇa=Akalāṅka-tripura-dahana-Tripētram Vādigharaṭṭa-disāpaṭṭam Mādhavabhaṭṭa-gharuṭṭam Jñānānanda-mada-bhamjuna[m] Viśvāna[m]da-pralay-ōgr-āṇalaṇa=Abhayachandra-kālāṇalaṇam Vādibhasi[m]ha-sarabham Vādirāja-mukhamudra[m] Nayapaṇḍi-disāpaṭṭam Naiyāyika-sa[m]rakshaṇa-ika-daksham sva-paksha-pōshaṇa-para-paksha-dūshaṇa-paṭutara-Virimchaṇam vāgvadhū-maṇḍanaṇa=āsthāna-Padmāsanaṇam vivēka-Nārāyaṇam gamaka-Mahēśvaraṇa-upanyās-āmarāpagā-pravāhaṇam vyākhyāna-kēlila[m]paṭa-manōhara-sarasīruha-bhṛimgan=avadāta-kīrtti-dhvaṇa-amaḷina-charitraṇam dvishṭa-darppishṭha-paṇḍita-gaḷa-K[ā]la-pāsaṇam vādi-Digambara-dhūmakēṭuv-ādi ru[m]dra-guṇa-nām-āṁkitaṇa=appa śrīmal-Lakuṣṭhara-paṇḍitargge,—namely "to the holy Lakuṣṭharapaṇḍita, who was distinguished by names, of great virtue, such as³ he who has penetrated to the very end of both the further and the nearer shores of (the ocean that is) the tarka and other sāstras; he who is a very Rudra (Śiva) among disputants; he who is a young lion in tearing open with his claws the heads of the elephants that are (hostile) disputants; he who is a jungle-fire to the great forest of (hostile) disputants; he who is a cruel and very crafty tiger to those who dispute unfairly; he who is a submarine fire in the ocean of the Buddhists; he who is a thunderbolt to the mountains that are the Mīmāṃsakas; he who is a saw to cleave asunder the great trees that are the Lōkāyatas; he who is a great Vainatēya (Garuda) to the large serpent that is the Sāmkyā-doctrine; he who is an axe to the trees that are those who propound the Advaita-philosophy; he who is a very Tripētra (Śiva) to burn the three cities in the shape of Akalāṅka;⁴ he who has utterly confuted⁵ Vādigharaṭṭa;⁶ he who is the grindstone of Mādhavabhaṭṭa; he who has broken the pride of Jñānānanda; he who is a fierce fire of*

⁵ Disāpaṭṭa. The word has been met with before, e.g., Jour. Bo. Br. E. As. Soc. Vol. XII. p. 35, text line 16, [and above, Vol. IV. p. 270 and note 2]. Kittel's Dictionary gives it,—with the single f, disāpaṭṭa,—as a Sanskrit word meaning 'causing (his enemies) to be scattered in all directions;' and, as such, we may derive it from disā, 'region, direction,' and paṭṭa, which is to be traced to the root paṭ, 'to split, cleave, tear, etc.'

This is evidently the biruda, used instead of the proper name, of some well-known leader of some other sect or religion. So, also, Vādibhasimha, which occurs further on.

destruction to Viśvānanda;¹ he who is a world-destroying fire to Abhayachandra;² he who is a sarabha to (the lion that is) Vāḍibhasinḥa;³ he who has silenced Vādirāja;⁴ he who has utterly confuted Nayaṇandi; he who is supremely clever in protecting the Naiyāyikas; he who is a very Viriñcha (Brahman) in being most expert in supporting his own adherents and refuting the adherents of his adversaries; he who is the ornament of the goddess of eloquence; he who is a very Padmāsana (Brahman) in darbūr; he who is a very Nārāyaṇa (Viṣṇu) in discrimination; he who is a very Mahēśvara (Śiva) in making things clear; he who is a very stream of the river of the gods in reasoning; he who is a very bee on the charming water-lilies which are those who are lustfully addicted to the sport of commentating; he who has the banner of pure fame; he who is of spotless behaviour; he who is a very noose of Death to the throats of hostile paṇḍits puffed up with pride; he who is a fiery portent in (the sky that is the array of) the disputant Digambaras." These grandiloquent terms plainly describe, no ordinary priest of a temple, but someone of great note, who was a recognised leader among the Śaivas. And we need not hesitate about identifying the Lakulīśvarapaṇḍita of this record with the Lakulīśa of the Cintra prastāsi, who, therefore, was alive in A.D. 1035 and was then at Baḷagāmi.

An earlier date for him is furnished by an inscription at Mēlpāḍi near Tiruvallam in the North Arcot district.⁵ This record is dated in the ninth year of the Chōla king Parakēsarivarma-Rājēndrachōlādēva I., i.e. in A.D. 1019 or 1020.⁶ It registers the fact that certain shepherds of that village pledged themselves to supply ghee for a lamp in the Aṇṇiśvara Śaiva temple. And the declaration was made before the Pājūri Lakulīśvarapaṇḍita, of the maṭha of the god Mahādēva connected with the temple. Here, we need not assume that mention is made of simply some namesake of the great Śaiva teacher, or that the maṭha at Mēlpāḍi was a branch of an establishment previously founded in Gujarāt; we may safely identify the Lakulīśvarapaṇḍita of this record of A.D. 1019-20 with the person of the same name of the Baḷagāmi inscription of A.D. 1035. And it would seem, therefore, that Lakulīśa commenced his career at Mēlpāḍi in North Arcot, and laid there the foundations of the reputation and influence that he subsequently acquired,—that from there he went to Baḷagāmi in Mysore, and attached himself to one of the great Śaiva establishments at that place,—and that it was towards the end of his career that he proceeded to Gujarāt and then, settling at Kārvān, founded the school of Pāsupatas which carried on the memory of him for so long a time.

ABSTRACT OF CONTENTS.⁷

The record opens with the usual verse Namas-tuṅga-tīrat-chumbi, etc., in praise of the god Śi, under the name of Śāmbhu, followed by another which runs—Girijā-tīrṅgār-ēṇḍuh

¹ If the name here were Vidyānanda, we could identify the person. The second akṣara, however, is distinctly śud.

² This name occurs in a record of A.D. 1398 (Inscr. at Śrav.-Bel. No. 105), but apparently cannot be referred to a period early enough for the person there mentioned to be the one who is spoken of in this passage.

*pravarttayaty=am̐taram manô-vârdhîm sura-danuj-ârâdhyasya cha yasya stavah=pâtum mām.*¹ It then refers itself to the reign of the asylum of the universe, the favourite of fortune and of the earth, the Mahārājādhirāja. Paramēśvara, and Paramabhāṭṭāraka, the glory of the family of Ātyāśraya, the ornament of the Chālukyas, the glorious Tribhuvanamalladēva (Vikramāditya VI.) (line 3). And it then mentions his feudatory,² the Mahāsāmanta who had attained the pañchamahāśabda, the Danḍanāyaka Anantapāla (l. 4),³ who in the north subdued the seven Mālava countries⁴ up to the Himālaya mountains, and in the south drove all the kings of the dakṣiṇāśā or Dekkan into the ocean (l. 5), and thus became famous among the leaders of the forces of the emperor; at the command of the Chālukya emperor,⁵ he led an invasion, and gave the seven Mālavas to the flames, up to the Himālaya mountains (l. 6).

The elder sister of the thus famous Danḍanāyaka Anantapāla was Padmaladēvi (l. 7). She became the wife of Kṛishnarāja or Kṛishṇa (l. 8). And to them there were born Lakshmaṇa and Gōvindarāja (l. 8). They had two younger brothers, named Mallidēva and Gaṇapati (l. 9). And all four of them attained the rank and office of Danḍanāyaka. There follow here two verses in praise of the Danḍanāyaka Lakshmidhara (l. 9) or Lakshma (l. 11), and six in praise of Gōvindarāja (l. 11), otherwise called the Danḍādhipa Gōvinda (l. 13). And then we are told that, while the famous Gōvindarāja was ruling (l. 17):⁶—

There was a certain person named Mudda (l. 17), a resident of Abbalūr, who was possessed of such unequalled virtues that he was looked upon as the very father and mother and friend of the Banavase twelve-thousand.⁷ He belonged to the Madanḍa or Maḍanda family (l. 18).⁸ To him and his wife Bhāganabbe, there were born Bamma (l. 19) and Eṣahagāvunḍa: the former of them is also mentioned as Bammagāvunḍa (l. 22) and Bammadēva (l. 23); and he is described as having the management of the hejjuṅka, vaḍḍarāvula, and billoḍe duties of the nāḍ or district (in which Abbalūr was situated) (l. 24). Four verses follow in praise of his virtues and liberality; one of which tells us that he, a very Dīḷṭpa in generosity, a very Champāpati (Karṇa) in truthfulness, a very tree of paradise for the benefit of other people, caused to be made, in such a fashion that Abbalūr (l. 28) became famous, a temple,⁹ in respect of which people said that it was the mountain Kaiḷāṣa, the home of Īśvara (Śiva),— that it had all the grandeur of except where otherwise specified, towards the end of the record, where passages illegible in A. have to be supplied from B. In many respects, B. is more easy to read than A.; but I have quoted the lines of A., because this copy is outside the temple and would probably be more easy of access to anyone who might wish to examine the original.

⁴ Septa-Mālava; and Ēṣuṁ-Mālava in line 6. The seven Mālavas (Mālavam-ēṣum) are mentioned again in line 16 of an inscription of A.D. 1019 at Baḷagāmi (P. S. O.-C. Inscr. No. 154, Mys. Inscr. p. 148; in my published version of it, Ind. Ant. Vol. V. p. 15, we have to read Mālavam-ēṣumam, not Mālava-mēṣumam), and in line 12 of a record of A.D. 1054 at the same place (P. S. O.-C. Inscr. No. 158, Mys. Inscr. p. 121); this latter passage mentions also the seven Konkanas (see Dyn. Kan. Distrs. p. 282, note 5), and the seven Māle countries.

the golden mountain (Mêru), the abode of Achyuta (Vishnu),¹—and that it looked like the mountain of dawn, for the rising of the sun. Then there comes a string of epithets in prose, in the course of which he is mentioned as having acquired the excellent favour of the god Brahmêśvara (l. 30). And then we are introduced to his wife, Suganabbe (l. 31). To them there were born two sons,—Ēchi (l. 33), Ēcha (l. 34), Ēchama (l. 41), or Ēchagâvunḍa (l. 51), and Muṭṭiga (l. 33) or Muṭṭa (l. 45). Seventeen verses follow in praise of the virtues and prowess of the two brothers. Then the record reverts (l. 48) to the elder brother, Ēchagâvunḍa, whom it mentions as a bee on the succulent water-lilies that are the feet of the god Hara (Śiva) (l. 49),²—as the moon of the water-lily that was the Maṇḍanda family,—as a very Vatsarāja with restive horses,³—and as being also called “the lion of his father” (l. 50).⁴ His Guru or religious preceptor was Sômesvarapaṇḍitadêva (l. 51), the disciple of Śrīkaṇṭha (l. 52), who was the disciple of Kêḍârasakti, who was the ajja-guru, lit. ‘grandfather-preceptor,’ of Sômesvarapaṇḍitadêva (l. 51), and was an ornament of the succession of teachers called the Mûvarakôṇeyasaṁtati (l. 52).

While the *Mahâśmântâdhipati*⁵ who had attained the pañchamahâśabda (l. 59),—the choice elephant of his uncle (l. 60),⁶—the Danḍanâyaka Gôvindarasa (l. 61), was ruling the Hânūṅgal five-hundred, and the Bâsavura hundred-and-forty which was a kampana included in the Banavase twelve-thousand, and the Nâgarakhaṇḍa seventy,⁷ punishing the wicked and protecting the good, with the delight of an agreeable or friendly interchange of communications (with his official superiors) (l. 62),⁸ he came in state to Abbalûr,⁹ and saw the temple of the god Brahmêśvara which Bammagâvunḍa had caused to be made, and was pleased. And, Ēchagâvunḍa (l. 63) preferred a request, on the strength of which he (Gôvindarasa) laved the feet of Sômesvarapaṇḍitadêva (l. 67), and made libations of water, and, at the time of the vyatipâta and an eclipse of the sun on Sunday the new-moon day of the month Vaiśâkha of the Vishu saṁvatsara, which was the twenty-sixth of the years of the glorious Châlukya Vikrama (l. 69),¹⁰ he gave, as a gift to the god Paramêśvara,¹¹ the village of Muriganahallî, a town that was included in the Nâgarakhaṇḍa seventy (l. 67),¹² for the aṅgabhōga of the god Brahmêśvara of Abbalûr (ll. 67, 68), and for the frankincense and the oblation, and for the repairs of whatever might become broken, torn, or worn-out, and for the provision of food for ascetics and for boys who were desirous of being taught,¹³ as a sarvanamasya-grant, free from all imposts.

After two verses (one in Kanarese, and one in Sanskrit) about the merit of preserving and the sin of confiscating religious grants, we are told that the record was written (i.e., apparently,

¹ The original has, in both versions, kirmmy-dḍri, which can only be a mistake for haim-dḍri. As haima means, according to its derivation, either ‘wintry’ or ‘golden,’ we might take haim-dḍri as equivalent to either himâdri, ‘the snowy mountain, Hîmalaya,’ or hêmdḍri, ‘the golden mountain, Mêru.’ But Achyuta is a distinctive name of Vishnu. And the explanation seems to be that his paradise, Vaikunṭha, is placed, according to some authorities, on the eastern peak of mount Mêru.

C.— Of the time of Perma-Jagadēkamalla II.— A.D. 1144.

This inscription, also, is at the temple which is now known as the temple of Basavēśvara, but was originally called the temple of Brahmēśvara.— The writing, consisting of fifty-two lines of about fifty letters each, covers an area about 2' 11" broad by 4' 8½" high, and is in a state of perfect preservation almost throughout.— The sculptures at the top of the stone are, in the centre, a līṅga, with an officiating priest, inside a shrine; on the proper right side, the bull Nandi, with the sun above it; and on the proper left, a cow and calf, with the moon above them.— The characters are Kanarese, of the period to which the record refers itself; and they are almost exceptionally well formed and engraved. The size of the letters ranges from ½" to 1".— Except for the opening invocation of Śiva and one imprecatory verse in line 45, the language is Kanarese, partly in verse, and partly in prose. The record gives us a word, khaṇḍarane (line 52), evidently meaning 'engraving,' which is not to be found in dictionaries.¹ And, as variants, it gives gaunḍa (e.g. line 7) and gavunḍa (e.g. line 10), as further forms of gaunḍa, gavunḍa;² nāl (in nālprabhu, lines 21, 51), as another form of nāl, = nāḍ, 'district';³ and hāl (line 33), as another form of hāl, 'ruin, desolation, a waste' (i.e. land left uncultivated). In respect of metrical license, we may note that in line 8 Jakkave is written for Jakkavve, and in line 29 eppat-okkalum is written for eppatt-okkalum, simply to suit the metre.

The inscription is a record of the time of the Western Chālukya king Perma-Jagadēkamalla II. It is a Śaiva record. And it registers grants that were made, both in the reign of that king and on a previous occasion, to the temple of the god Brahmēśvara. The later grant was made by a Daṇḍanāyaka named Mallibhāvarasa, who was administering the viḍḍarāvula and hejjuṅka taxes under the Daṇḍanāyaka Yōgēśvaradēvarasa who was in charge of the Banavāse twelve-thousand province; and it consisted of an oil-mill and a tax, for the maintenance of the perpetual lamp of the god. The earlier grant was made by a certain Bammagaunḍa or Barmagaunḍa,⁴ the Nālprabhu or official in charge of the local district; and the chief item of it was an area of land, as much as his horse was able to go round, ridden at full speed.

The record contains two dates. The details of the first date,— when the grant was made by Bammagaunḍa,— are Monday, the new-moon day, when there was an eclipse of the sun, of the month Māgha of the Saumya saṃvatsara, which was the fourth year of the Western Chālukya king Bhūlōkamalla-Sōmēśvara III. The given saṃvatsara was Śaka-Saṃvat 1052 current. And the corresponding English date is Monday, 10th February, A.D. 1130: on this day, the tithi ended at about 2 hrs. 29 min. after mean sunrise (for Ujjain); but there was no eclipse. The full details of the second date,— when the grant was made by the Daṇḍanāyaka Mallibhāvarasa; shortly after which time, presumably, the whole record was put on the stone,— are Sunday, coupled with the fifth tithi of the bright fortnight of the month Kārttika of the Raktākshin saṃvatsara, which was the seventh year of (Perma)-Jagadēkamalla II. (the son and successor of Sōmēśvara III.). This date was not recorded correctly. The given saṃvatsara was Ś.-S. 1067 current. And the given tithi ended at about 10 hrs. 50 min. after mean sunrise (for Ujjain) on Tuesday, 3rd October, A.D. 1144, and cannot be connected with the Sunday at all.

⁴ This Bammagaunḍa was a son of Ēchagaunḍa (lines 8, 9); and consequently he was a grandson of the first Bammagaunḍa, the founder of the temple of Brahmēśvara,— Ēchagaunḍa being mentioned in A. line 33, as a son of the first Bammagaunḍa.

ABSTRACT OF CONTENTS.¹

The record opens with the usual verse Numas=tuṅga-sīraś-chuṁbi, etc., in praise of the god Śiva under the name of Śāmbhu. It then refers itself to the reign of the asylum of the universe, the favourite of fortune and of the earth, the Mahārājādhirāja, Paramēśvara, and Paramabhāṣṭāraka, the glory of the family of Satyāśraya, the ornament of the Chālukyas, the glorious Bhūlōkamalladēva-(Sōmēśvara III.) (line 3). And it then says that, while he was reigning, there was a certain Bammagavūṇḍa (l. 7), Bammagavūṇḍa (l. 8), or Barmagavūṇḍa (l. 10),—son of Échagavūṇḍa and Jakkavve (ll. 8, 9),—who was an angry bee on the water-lilies that are the feet of the god Hara (Śiva),² and whose wife was Bhāgale (l. 20).

One day, while the Nāḍprabhu Bammagavūṇḍa (l. 21) was enjoying the pleasure of a talk about religion, the Sēnabōva or accountant Boppa (l. 22), Boppapa (l. 24), or Boppimayya (l. 25),—himself, also, a bee on the water-lilies that are the feet of the god Hara,³—faced him, and reminded him that religion is one's aid, one's ornament, and one's treasure, and that therefore it is a man's duty to accumulate good works; that so it was that the shrine of the god Brahmeśvara at Abbalūr (ll. 26, 27) had come along under the protection of Barmagavūṇḍa's grandfather and father; that his ancestors and himself owed all their success to granting allotments to the shrine; and that the seventy husbands (l. 29),⁴—born in the lineage of the Seṭṭiguttas of the place, and themselves always playing the part of angry bees on the water-lilies that are the feet of the god Abhūdrabhūṣaṇa (Śiva),⁵—had lifted high the religion of Śiva, by concurring in all the religious proposals that he had made.

On this representation (l. 30), Bammagavūṇḍa, inflamed more than ever with a desire for union with the passionate woman that is devotion to the god Śiva, immediately mounted a very tall horse, and promised that, as far as his horse should run at the top of its speed, so far he would give land to the god Brahmeśvara.⁶ And so, having made his horse run (l. 33), and having laved the feet of Jñānaśaktipañḍitadēva (l. 38), the disciple of Vādividyābharaṇapāṇḍitadēva of the Mūvarakōṇeyasaṁtati, with libations of water, at the time of the vyatipāta on Monday, when there was an eclipse of the sun, the new-moon day of the month Māgha of the Saumya saṁvatsara, which was the fourth of the years of the glorious Bhūlōka[malla]* (l. 39),⁷ for the oblation and the perpetual lamp of the god, and to provide food for ascetics, and for the repairs of whatever might become broken, torn, or worn-out (l. 40), he gave, free from all imposts, eight mattars of rice-land in the open field⁸ called Haṇṇeya-hal (l. 33), and six mattars ,⁹ and fifteen mattars ,¹⁰ and a betel-nut plantation of one thousand trees below the large tank, and sites for twenty houses in that part of the town which belonged to the gods.¹¹

After a mandate, in prose, to preserve the grant thus made, and two verses (one in Kanarese and one in Sanskrit) about the merit of preserving and the sin of confiscating religious grants, the record proceeds (l. 45) :—

On Sunday, (coupled with) the fifth tithi of the bright fortnight of the month Kārttika of the Raktākshin saivatsara, which was the seventh of the years of the asylum of the universe, the favourite of fortune and of the earth, the Mahārājādhirāja, Paramēśvara, and Paramabhāṭṭāraka, the glory of the family of Satyāśraya, the ornament of the Chālukyas, the glorious Pratāpachakravartin Jagadēkamalla (II.) (l. 47),¹ while the Daṇḍanīyaka Yōgēśvaradēvarasa was ruling the Banavāse twelve-thousand, punishing the wicked and protecting the good, with the pleasure of an agreeable or friendly interchange of communications (with his paramount sovereign),² Mallibhāvarasa (l. 49), the Daṇḍanīyaka of the vaḍḍarāvula and hejjunka taxes, came in state to Abbalūr,³ and saw the grants that had been made to the temple of the god Brahmēśvara, and was pleased, and allotted, for the oil of the perpetual lamp of the god, one oil-mill and the okkalu-dere tax on one shop, free from all imposts.

The Nālprabhu Bammagāvunḍa (l. 51) and the great saint Jñānasaktidēva⁴ shall preserve (these grants). The writing (i.e., apparently, the composition)⁵ is that of the born poet,⁶ the Upādhyāya Mahadēvabhāṭṭa, and of Malliyāṇa, the nephew of the Śenabōva Boppimayya; the engraving⁷ is that of Sātōja, the son of Lālāra-Chaṇḍōja.

D.—Of the time of Taila III.—About A.D. 1153.

This inscription is on a stone tablet in a field, Survey No. 137.—The writing, consisting of forty lines of about forty letters each,⁸ covers an area about 2' 1" broad by 2' 11" high. It is in a state of very good preservation as far as the end of line 13. From that point onwards, it has suffered more or less damage. But all the historical information that I quote from it, can be made out without any doubt. And it is only from line 28 that the record becomes undecipherable.—The sculptures at the top of the stone are, in the centre, a liṅga; on the proper right side, a squatting figure, facing full-front, with the sun above it, and perhaps a water-pot beyond it; and on the proper left, a cow and calf, with the moon above them.—The characters are well-formed Kanarese characters, of the period to which the record refers itself. The size of the letters ranges from $\frac{3}{8}$ " to $\frac{1}{2}$ ".—Except for the opening Sanskrit verse in praise of Śiva, the language is Kanarese, throughout all the legible portion, partly in verse, and partly in prose. Lines 10 and 12, 13, give the word turaya, as a corruption of turaga, 'a horse,' which is not yet shewn in dictionaries.

The inscription is a record of the time of the Western Chālukya king Taila III. It mentions also his feudatory, the Mahāsāmantādhipati, Kariturayapattasāhani or groom of the head-trappings of elephants and horses,⁹ and Manevergaḍe, the Daṇḍanīyaka Mahadēvarasa who was ruling the Banavase twelve-thousand province and the Huligere three-hundred district; and a subordinate of the latter, the Danḍandiyaka Māyidēva.¹ And it further mentions a Mahāmāṇḍalēśvara named Sōvidēvarasa, belonging to some branch of the Kāḍamba family, who had the hereditary title of "supreme lord of Bāṇdhavapura, the best of towns,"² and the epithet of "he who has attained the excellent favour of the god Praṇamēśvara."³

That part of the record which contained the donative passages and the date, is either illegible or broken away and lost. But, from the fact that Mahadēvarasa is here described as a feudatory of Taila III. himself, as also in the record of A.D. 1152,⁴ whereas in the Baḷagāmi inscription of A.D. 1155⁵ he is described as a Danḍandiyaka of Bijjala, we may refer the present record to about A.D. 1153.

ABSTRACT OF CONTENTS.⁶

The record opens with the usual verse Namas=tuṅga-tiraś-chumbi, etc., in praise of the god Śiva under the name of Śambhu. It then refers itself to the reign of the asylum of the universe, the favourite of fortune and of the earth, the Mahārājādhirāja, Paramēśvara, and Paramabhaṭṭāraka, the glory of the family of Satyāśraya, the ornament of the Chāḷukyas, the glorious Trailōkyamalladēva-(Taila III.) (line 3). And it then proceeds to say that the Chōḷika (l. 4) came against him in war, but had to unwillingly pay tribute to him; that, in the other direction, the king of Mālava (l. 5) was frightened and fled away to refuge, and the Gūrjara saved himself only by giving even more than the Chōḷa had given (l. 6); and that all other kings had to acknowledge the sway of the emperor Nūrmadi-Tailapa (III.) (ll. 6, 7).

While he, the Pratāpachakravartin (l. 8), bearing the burden of the whole earth, was reigning with the delight of an agreeable or friendly interchange of communications (with his feudatories),⁷—and while his feudatory,⁸ the Mahāśāmantādhipati who had attained the which is tied to the head of a king's favourite horse or elephant.' And the same dictionary gives sahaṇi, sḍhaṇi, and sḍhaṇiga, in the sense of 'groom,' and sḍhana, in the sense of 'the act of tending and training horses,' and, under sahaṇi, quotes the Malayāḷam chāṇi. [Compare p. 103 above, and note 6].—The same official title, with the same use of turaga for turaga, occurs again in a record of A.D. 1152 (see the next note).

¹ These two persons are mentioned together in other records also :—(1) An inscription of A.D. 1155-56 at Baḷagāmi in Mysore (P. S. O.-C. Inscr. No. 181; and see Mys. Inscr. p. 100). The construction of this record is—Trailōkyamalladēvara vijaya-rājyam (lines 3, 4) * * * * * mahāmāṇḍalēśvaraṁ Bijjaṇa-dēvarasaru (ll. 10, 11) * * * * * tan-mahāprachāṇḍa-danḍandiyakam (ll. 11, 12) * * * * * Māyidēvarasaṁ (l. 13) * * * * * tan-mahāpradhānam (l. 16) * * * * * Māyidēvarasaṁ (l. 20). This describes Māyidēvarasa as a Mahāpradhāna of Mahadēvarasa, and the latter as a Danḍandiyaka of Bijjala, during the reign of Taila III. (2) An inscription of A.D. 1152 which is said to be at a temple of Siddhappa at Pura in the Kōḍ tāluks, Dhārwar district (Carn.-Dēsa Inscr. Vol. II. p. 1: but there does not seem to be a village named Pur or Pura anywhere in the Dhārwar district; perhaps Puradakeri, in the Kōḍ tāluks, is intended). This describes Mahadēvarasa as a feudatory of Taila III. himself, and as a Mahāśāmantādhipati, Karituraya-paṭṭasahaṇi, Sēndādhipati, and Danḍandiyaka, enjoying the Huligere three-hundred and the Banavase twelve-thousand, with the pleasure of an agreeable or friendly interchange of communications; and it describes Māyidēvarasa as a Mahāśāmantādhipati and Danḍandiyaka subordinate to Mahadēvarasa, and as enjoying the kejjunka and caḍḍarōḷa taxes.

⁶ These words, though quite illegible here, may be safely supplied from lines 26 ff. of the Balagāmi inscription of A.D. 1155-56 (see page 235 above, note 1), which run — Enisida mahāpradhānam Banavase-pannirchēhḥādirada vaddarāvula-hejjuṇkada herggode daṇḍāṇḍyakam Māyidēvarasaru rājadhāni-Balligrāmeya arlevidiṇoḥ sukhadim-irad=ondu ditasam.—So also the inscription of A.D. 1152, which is said to be at Pura in the Kōḍ tāluka, Dhārwar district (see the same note), describes him as the Mahādmantādhīpati and Daṇḍāṇḍyaka Māyidēvarasa, who was enjoying (anubhavisuttam) the hejjuṇka and vaddarāvula taxes.

E.— Of about A.D. 1200.

This inscription is on a stone tablet standing against the wall, or perhaps built into the wall, on the right of the god inside a temple of Śiva under the name of Sōmanātha, which appears to be the temple the foundation of which is recorded in the inscription.— The writing covers an area about 3' 7½" broad by 6' 1" high. It is in a state of good preservation almost throughout.— The sculptures at the top of the stone are, in the centre, a liṅga, with a standing priest; on the proper right, the bull Nandi, with the sun above it; and on the proper left, a cow and calf, with the moon above them.— The characters are Kanarese, of the period to which, from the internal evidence, the record is to be referred. The size of the letters is somewhat irregular, ranging from about ⅜" in the n of janā, line 15, to nearly 1" in the śh of manuṣhya, line 24. The characters are mostly well formed and well engraved. But in many places they are difficult to read, because the execution is indifferent and imperfect, owing to sometimes the tops of the letters, and sometimes other parts of them, not being completed in the engraving, though marks in the ink-impression shew that they were sketched on the stone and were partially cut by the engraver. Some pointed instances of this are as follows:— In line 8, nishada-himavanta reads at first sight gishada-bāravana, the hi, which may always be easily confused with bā, being badly formed, and the side-strokes which would turn gi into nī and va into ma, and the whole of the subscript t, having not been filled in by the engraver, though the ink-impression shews that they were more or less outlined on the stone; in line 9, the tops of the second, third, fifth, and seventh akṣaras are similarly imperfect in śama-mahimā-kamḍaram, and the rtti at the end of the line was left almost altogether unformed; in line 12, there are two instances in prakaṣṭak, in which the k reads at first sight as r, and another, in sukēṣiyu, in which the superscript vowel, as well as the top of the k, was left unformed; and in line 48, if the name of the Jain temple were not known from other sources, it would probably have been read āṇeṣejjya, instead of ānesejjya. Many other similar instances might be pointed out; but the preceding ones seem sufficient. Whether these faults are due to pure carelessness on the part of the engraver, or to his coming unexpectedly on very hard places in the stone, it is difficult to say from simply the ink-impression. The characters include the upadhānūya in puṣpāli, for pushpāli, line 2. The lingual ḍ is usually expressed by its distinct sign, which appears very clearly in maṇḍana, line 7; but in a few places we have the ordinary d. The dental dh is formed properly enough in svardhunī, line 9; but in some other places it is hardly to be distinguished from v, e.g. in dhāmaṁ, line 2, and dhārā, line 61. There is a somewhat rare mediæval form of y in anvayadoḷu, line 62: we have clear instances of the corresponding forms of m and v in maṛigi, line 44, and nilipevu, line 39; and the m is carried back to A.D. 804 by the Kanarese grant of Gōvinda III. (Ind. Ant. Vol. XI. p. 125; see para-dattam=bā, line 14). The virāma is represented by its own proper sign in puradoḷ, line 13, and in śrīman, line 84, and by the same mark, but imperfectly formed, in dūral, line 50: elsewhere, however, it is represented by the vowel u; and there are pointed instances of this in bhavana, line 26, uruḷag, line 41, aḷuki, line 41-42, śrīmaḍu, line 60, and ētānu, line 98. The anusvāra is written sometimes, in the usual fashion, above the top line of writing, and frequently so faintly that it does not show in the lithograph, and sometimes, in a larger form, between the lines of writing; the word kamḍaram, line 9, illustrates both methods of forming it.—The opening invocatory verse is in Sanskrit; a Sanskrit proverb is quoted in line 19; three Sanskrit ślokas are introduced in lines 25 f., 32 f.; and there are seven of the usual benedictive and imprecatory Sanskrit verses in lines 94 to 98. With these exceptions, the language is Kanarese, in prose and verse mixed. Now that we have a proper vocabulary, the interpretation of this record presents no real difficulties, though I am indebted to Mr. H. Krishna Sastri for assistance in respect of the verses in lines 22, 35, and 40, and to Prof. Kielhorn for advice in respect of some dubious points in Sanskrit passages: but it would have been impossible to deal with this exceptionally interesting and racy document verbatim, all through, without the Rev. Mr. Kittel's Kannada-English Dictionary; and I take this opportunity of recording prominently my appreciation of the great value of that scholarly and admirable work, which has now, for the first time, placed it in the power of Western students to understand fully, and do justice to, the beauties of the Kanarese language, especially in its classical and mediæval dialects, and also of expressing my thanks to Mr. Kittel himself for kindly perusing the proofs of my text and translation of this record and suggesting a few refinements in my rendering.¹ The language of this record may be described as intermediate between the classical and mediæval dialects of Mr. Kittel's classification. The forms are mostly archaic. But the more modern forms appear here and there, even in the metrical portions: in the prose passages, we may note iddalli, line 71, kshêtradalli, line 91, the termination gaḷige, lines 51, 77 (in the copulative form), and the ordinary neuter accusative with v, instead of m, in kāḷavan, line 19, and the copulative accusative with v, instead of m, in kaviḷegaḷuvam brāhmaṇaruvam, line 93; in the verses we may note the neuter nominative in v, instead of m, in dēṣav, line 11, utkaṭav, line 23, and various other places, and the neuter accusative with v, in ānaṁdavam, line 42-43, and such words as pratyakṣav-āgi, line 31, and baḷikkav, line 43, where, again, we have the v instead of the m. In respect of vocabulary, we may note that lines 43, 48 give us baḷikkam, baḷikam, as variants of baḷikkam, baḷikam; lines 73, 93 give, as also do various other records, ali, as a variant of ali, 'to destroy, to be destroyed;' and line 78 gives bēḷkum as a variant of bēḷkum, = bēḷku, bēku, 'it is wished, it is due, it must, etc.'—In respect of orthography, there is a constant use of b for v in Sanskrit words, and of ri for ri,² which requires to be corrected in the verses so as to preserve the metre which is usually satisfied only by restoring the vowel; but the only points to which special attention need be directed, are, the occasional use of ai and aiy for ay, in Rāmaiyanaṁ, line 47, Rāmaiyamaṅgaḷa, line 61, Bamaiyamnum, line 70, aiṇūruvaṁ, line 85, and aiṇūṇar, line 88, and a frequent omission to double consonants after the letter r.

The inscription does not refer itself to the reign of any particular king, and is not dated. But it is assigned to about A.D. 1200, or a few years earlier, by the mention, in lines 81 to 90 and 99, of the Kādamba Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Kāmadēva, and by the statement, in line 101, that the record, though put into shape by another person, was composed by the Daṇḍanāyaka Kēśavarāja. For Kāmadēva, who belonged to the Hāṅgal branch of the Kādamba family, we have dates ranging from A.D. 1181-82 to 1203;³ and Kēśavarāja must be the Mahāpradhāna and Daṇḍanāyaka Bolikeya-Kēśimayya or Kēśirājayya, for whom we have dates ranging from

² Rather curiously, we have aiṇūṇar, with the vowel, in line 28, though line 33 gives aiṇūṇar.

A.D. 1168 to 1181 in records which connect him with the government of the Banavāsi twelve-thousand and other districts.¹ Before them, mention is made of the Western Chālukya king Sômesvara IV. (A.D. 1183 and 1189); and before him, of the Kalachurya prince Bijjala (A.D. 1145, and 1156 to 1167). A short passage at the end, evidently added at a somewhat later date, mentions a Kādamba prince Mallidēva,² and recorded some grant which he, also, made to the same temple.

The interest and importance of the record centre in the fact that it discloses the name of the person, Ēkāntada-Rāmayya, who towards the close of the twelfth century A.D. brought about a revival of the worship of Śiva, or a fresh impetus to the Śaiva faith with elaborated and improved rites and practices, which eventually culminated in the establishment of a new sect of Śivabhaktas or worshippers of Śiva, called technically Vira-Śaivas, i.e. "brave, fierce, or strict Śaivas, Śaiva champions," and popularly Līngāyats or Līngawants, i.e. "those who have the līnga or phallic emblem." The Līngāyats—(using the appellation by which all average members of the sect would describe themselves)—are outwardly distinguished from the ordinary Śaivas by the practice of carrying about with them a miniature līnga, usually in a silver box suspended from the neck and hanging about the waist. And the chief characteristics of their faith and practices are, adoration of the līnga and of Śiva's bull Nandi, hostility to Brāhman, disbelief in the transmigration of the soul, contempt for child-marriage, and approval and habitual practice of the remarriage of widows. They are found chiefly in the Kanarese country; their vernacular is Kanarese; and it is due almost entirely to them that this beautiful, highly polished, and powerful language has been preserved, in later times, amidst the constant inroads of Marāṭhās from the north. They now constitute about thirty-five per cent. of the total Hindū population in the Belgaum, Bijāpur, and Dhārwar districts.³ In Mysore and the Kōlhāpur State, they number about ten per cent. of the Hindū population. And they are also found, but in smaller proportions, in the districts of Poona, Shōlāpur, Sātārā, and North Kanara. Elsewhere, they are constantly met with; but as the result of the migration of isolated families, mostly in connection with trade and manufactures. In the Bijāpur and Dhārwar districts, and possibly in the neighbouring parts of the Nizām's Dominions and Mysore, the sect appears to be still steadily gaining ground. And an interesting internal movement was observable in 1891, when large numbers of the members of it claimed to have themselves entered in the census returns under the designation of Vira-Śaivas, in preference to that of Līngāyats, with which they had been content on previous similar occasions.

According to the tradition of the Līngāyats themselves, as embodied in their principal sacred writings, the Basavapurāṇa and Channabasavapurāṇa,⁴ the events which led up to the establishment of the new sect were as follows:—

To a certain Mādirāja and his wife Madalāmbikā, pious Śaivas of the Brāhman caste, and residents of a place named Bāgewāḍi which is usually supposed to be the subdivisional town of ² Probably identical with the Mallikārjuna or Mallidēva, for whom we have dates ranging from A.D. 1215-16 to 1262 (Dyn. Kan. Distrs. p. 564).

Soc.* Vol. VIII. pp. 65 to 97 and 98 to 221, from which I quote.—In a verse quoted by Mr. Kittel in his Śabdamanidarpaṇa, Introd. p. 26, we are told that the Basavapurāṇa was finished on Śrāvana kṛishṇa 10, Thursday, of the Saumya samvatsara, Śaka-Samvat 1291 (expired). The given tithi, however, ended, not on a Thursday, but on Sunday, 29th July, A.D. 1369.—The Channabasavapurāṇa appears to have been written in Ś.-S. 1507 (expired), = A.D. 1585-86 (*Jour. Bo. that name in the Bijâpur district, there was born a son, who, being an incarnation of Śiva's bull Nandi, sent to earth to revive the declining Śaiva rites, was named Basava.¹ When the usual time of investiture had arrived, Basava, then eight years of age, having meanwhile acquired much knowledge of the Śaiva scriptures, refused to be invested with the sacred Brāhmaṇical thread; declaring himself a special worshipper of Śiva, and stating that he had come to destroy the distinctions of caste. This refusal, with his singular wisdom and piety, attracted the favourable notice of his uncle Baladêva, "prime minister"² of (the Kaḷachurya king) Bijjala, who had come to be present at the ceremony; and Baladêva gave him his daughter Gaṅgâdêvi or Gaṅgâmbâ in marriage.³ The Brāhmaṇs, however, began to persecute Basava, on account of the novel practices propounded by him. And he consequently left his native town, and went to a village named 'Kappadi,' where he spent his early years, receiving instruction there from the god Śiva, in the form of the local god Saṁgamêśvara.⁴

Meanwhile, his uncle Baladêva died. At the advice of the deceased minister's relatives, Bijjala decided on securing the services of Basava, whose ability and virtues had now become publicly known. After some demur, Basava accepted the office; having the hope that the influence attached to it would help him in propagating his peculiar tenets. And, accompanied by his elder sister Nāgalâmbikâ, he proceeded from 'Kappadi' to Kalyâna, where he was welcomed with deference by the king, and was installed as prime minister, commander-in-chief, and treasurer,—second in power to only the king himself;⁵ and the king, in order to bind him as closely as possible to himself, gave him his younger sister Nīlâlôchanâ to wife.⁶

Somewhere about this time, from Basava's unmarried elder sister Nāgalâmbikâ, who was an incarnation of the intelligence of the goddess Pârvatī, there was born, by the working of the spirit of Śiva, a son, who was an incarnation of Śiva's son Śaṁmukha or Kârttikêya, the god of war.⁷ Because, the Channabasavapurâṇa says, he was more beautiful than Basava in many respects, he was named Channâbasava, i.e. "the beautiful Basava."⁸ And he seems to be depicted as playing a more important part than even Basava himself in the propagation of the tenets of the new sect; for, Basava is represented as receiving from him instruction on important points connected with it.⁹

The two Purâṇas are occupied, for the most part, with doctrinal expositions, recitals of mythology, praises of previous Śaiva saints, and accounts of miracles worked by Basava. And it is only quite at the end of each of them, that we come again on any matter that purports to be historical. They assert, however, that, with the influence that his official position gave the uncle, Basava and his nephew propagated with great energy and activity their doctrines, which included the persecution and extermination of all persons,—and especially the Jains,—whose creed differed from that of the Līṅgâyata.¹⁰ Coupled with the lavish expenditure incurred by Basava, from the public coffers, on the support of the Jaṅgams or Līṅgâyat priests, the proceedings aroused in Bijjala, who was of the Jain faith,¹¹ feelings of uneasiness and distrust, which are said to have been fanned from time to time by a rival minister named Mañchappa, in spite of the latter being himself, in secret, a Vīra-Śaiva.¹² And at length an event occurred, which ended in the assassination of Bijjala and the death of Basava.

² The Mackenzie Collection, however, gives the technical official title Dandandya or 'leader of the forces,' which would not necessarily denote a prime minister.

At Kalyāṇa, there were two specially pious Liṅgāyats, named 'Halleyaga' and 'Madhuveyya,' whom Bijjala, in mere wantonness, caused to be blinded. Thereupon, says the Basavapurāṇa,¹ Basava,— himself leaving Kalyāṇa for a place named 'Saṅgamēśvara,'²—deputed one of his followers, Jagaddēva, to slay the king. And Jagaddēva, with two unnamed friends, succeeded in making his way into the palace and accomplishing his errand,—stabbing the king even in the midst of his court. Civil war ensued. And, the news coming to Basava as he was journeying, he hastened on his way, and, reaching 'Kudali-Saṅgamēśvara,' was there absorbed into the god;³ while Channabasava fled to Ulvi, in North Kanara, where he found refuge in a cave.

The Channabasavapurāṇa gives a somewhat different account.⁴ It places first the death of Basava, who, it says, was absorbed in Saṅgamēśvara in the month Phālguna, falling in A.D. 785, of the Raktākshin sainvatsara, Śāka-Saṁvat 707 (current);⁵ and the only reason that it assigns, is, that news had reached Basava that a certain Prabhu, who was an incarnation of Śiva,⁶ had left Kalyāṇa, and had been absorbed into Śiva in a plantain-tree at Śrīśaila,—leaving it to be inferred that Basava simply followed an example set to him by Prabhu. On the death of Basava, Bijjala appointed Channabasava to the office that had been held by his uncle. After this, the king caused the pious 'Halleija' and 'Madhuveija' to be tied to a rope and dragged about the ground till they died. In revenge for this, Bijjala was slain by two torch-bearers, named Jagaddēva and Bommaṇa. Then Channabasava, who had meantime sent away many Liṅgāyats to Ulvi under the pretext of celebrating a feast in honour of the god Jaṅgamēśvara, gathered together his horses and men, and left Kalyāṇa to follow and join them. The "son-in-law" of Bijjala started in pursuit. And a battle ensued, in which the pursuers were destroyed, and the king was taken captive. At the advice of Nāgalāmbikā, however, Channabasava restored the slain army to life; and, having impressed upon the king that he should not persecute the Liṅgāyats, as his predecessor had done, but should walk in righteousness, he anointed him, and sent him back to govern his country.⁷

² Meaning, apparently, the 'Kudali-Saṅgamēśvara' which is mentioned further on.

³ According to Sir Walter Elliot (Jour. R. As. Soc., F. S., Vol. IV. p. 22, note, and Madras Jour. of Lit. and Science, Vol. VII. p. 214, note), the place of Basava's absorption is said to be Saṅgam, in the Hungund tāluka, Bijāpur district, at the junction of the Krishnā and the Malparbhā, where, he added, a depression in the linga at the temple of Saṅgamēśvara is still pointed out as the exact spot into which Basava entered. I am not prepared to deny the correctness of these statements. Still, as regards the true identification of the place, the prefix 'Kudali' seems to me to point rather to the historically much more important (see, e.g., Dya. Kan. Distrs. p. 445, note 1) Kūdal-Saṅgam, at the junction of the Krishnā and the Tuṅgabhadra.

⁴ Loc. cit. pp. 219, 220. This part of the narrative is put as a prophecy in the mouth of Channabasava.

⁷ The Purāṇa ends with various other prophecies, not connected with the present subject, to the effect that the king, thus anointed, should reign for sixty years from the death of Basava; that then, at a time when the Hoysala kingdom was flourishing, the Turks,— (the original probably has Turushkas),— led by the giant Pitāmbara, the Hoya among them by the blessing of Śiva, should come and vanquish Bijjala, destroy Kalyāṇa, kill cattle in the temple of Śiva, erect a mosque there, and build the town of Kalburigi; that the kings of Ānegundi should build the town of Vijayanagara, near Hampi; that Pitāmbara and his house should reign over the land for seven hundred and seventy years; that then there should arise a king named Vasantarāya, who would drive the Turks out of the country and restore Kalyāṇa; that, all the Śaiva saints coming to life again, Channabasava should become the prime minister of this king, and Basava the commander of his forces; and that thus the Liṅgāyat religion should be re-established and greatly increased.—These "prophecies" are, of course, nothing but confused reminiscences of intervening history up to the time when this Purāṇa was written (A.D. 1585-86; see page 239 above, note 4).

The Jain account, as given in the Bijjalarāyacharitra,¹ puts things very differently. Basava's influence with the king is attributed to the fact that he had a very beautiful sister, whom the king took as a concubine. And the end of Bijjala and Basava is related thus:— Bijjala had marched against and subdued the Kōlhāpur chief, i.e. the Śilāhāra Mahā-maṇḍalēśvara, who must have committed some act of rebellion. During a halt on the way back to Kalyāṇa, a Jaṅgam arrived, sent by Basava, and disguised as a Jain, and presented the king with a poisoned fruit, the mere smell of which caused his death. He had time, however, before dying, to tell his son 'Immaḍi-Bijjala,' i.e. "the second Bijjala,"² that it was Basava who had sent the fruit, and to enjoin him to put Basava to death. Immaḍi-Bijjala accordingly ordered that Basava should be apprehended, and that all the Jaṅgams, wherever seized, should be executed. And, on hearing this, Basava threw himself into a well, and died; while his wife 'Nīlāmbā'³ poisoned herself. Channabasava, however, after Immaḍi-Bijjala's resentment was allayed, presented his uncle's treasures to the king, and was admitted to favour and to a ministerial office at court.⁴

Such are the traditional accounts. There are, however, no apparent reasons for attributing either to the Līṅgāyat Purāṇas, of which even the earlier one was written two centuries after the events which it purports to record, or to the Jain poem, any greater historical accuracy than other Hindū works of the same class have been found to possess. And, on the contrary, there are fair grounds for questioning the correctness of the narratives given by them. The Līṅgāyat and Jain accounts differ very markedly, and to a far greater extent than can be accounted for on simply the supposition of a representation of true facts from different sectarian points of view. In respect of the circumstances immediately attending the deaths of Bijjala and Basava, even the Līṅgāyat Purāṇas are not at all in accordance with each other. The Channabasava-purāṇa allots to these events the absurd date of A.D. 785, which is too early by close upon four centuries. Even the Jain poem appears to place them,⁵ not only twelve years before the time, in A.D. 1167, when Bijjala, still alive, abdicated in favour of his eldest son, but also even before the time, in A.D. 1156, marked by the introduction of a reckoning of his own, when Bijjala commenced his independent career. And whereas, if Basava and Channabasava really held the high office that is allotted to them by tradition, we ought to have found by this time a clear mention of them somewhere or other in the mass of epigraphic records that has now come under observation, no allusion of any kind, applicable to either of them, has been obtained, except in the Managōḷi inscription of A.D. 1161 (above, page 9). That record gives us the names of Basava and Mādirāja, both of which appear in the Basava-purāṇa, in connection with the foundation and endowment of a līṅga-temple, evidently of some considerable size and repute, at Managōḷi in the neighbourhood of Bāgewādi, the alleged residence of Mādirāja and birthplace of Basava; and, in doing so, it really seems to give us the original of the traditional Basava who figures in the Līṅgāyat Purāṇas and the Jain book. And, in disclosing the facts that the parents of Basava were, not Mādirāja and Madalāmbikā, but Chandirāja of the Kāśyapa gōtra and Chandrāmbikā, and that Mādirāja belonged to altogether a different family, namely the Harita gōtra, it furnishes further grounds for questioning the correctness of the Līṅgāyat tradition, which, indeed, seems but little better than a legend.

³ A wife of Basava named Nīlāmbikā, daughter of one of Bijjala's ministers, is mentioned, from "another report," in Jour. Bo. Br. R. As. Soc. Vol. VIII. p. 70.

⁴ Sir Walter Elliot has said that Basava's sister, who became the king's mistress, was named Padmāvatī; that it was at Ulvi that Basava drowned himself; and that these events occurred, according to the Jain poem, in Kalivuga-Saṁvat 4255 (expired), = Śaka-Saṁvat 1077 (current), = A. D. 1154-55. But I have not been able to find the authority for these statements.

⁵ See the preceding note.

shrine, and, as is gathered from subsequent passages, built for his own god, under the name of Vīra-Sōmanātha, at Ablūr, a temple "as large," the record says, "as a mountain." The Jains then went and complained to Bijjala, who became much enraged, and sent for Ēkāntada-Rāmayya, and questioned him as to why he had committed so gross an outrage on the Jains. Thereupon Ēkāntada-Rāmayya produced the writing on the palmyra-leaf, and asked Bijjala to deposit it in his treasury, and offered that, if the Jains would wager their eight hundred temples, including the Ānesejjejabasadi,¹ he would repeat the feat, whatever it may have really been, that he had already accomplished.² Wishing to see the spectacle, Bijjala called all the learned men of the Jain temples together, and bade them wager their shrines, repeating the conditions on a palmyra-leaf. The Jains, however, would not face the test again; saying that they had come to complain of the injury that had already been done to them, and not to wager and lose any more of their gods. So Bijjala, laughing at them, dismissed them with the advice that thenceforth they should live peaceably with their neighbours, and gave Ēkāntada-Rāmayya, in public assembly, a jayapattra or certificate of success. Also, pleased with the unsurpassed daring with which Ēkāntada-Rāmayya had displayed his devotion to Śiva, he laved Rāmayya's feet, and granted to the temple of Vīra-Sōmanātha a village named Gōgāve,³ to the south of Malugunda in the Sattaliḡe seventy in the Banavāsi twelve-thousand. Subsequently, the record says, when the Western Chālukya king Sōmēśvara IV. and his commander-in-chief Brahma were at Śeleyahalliyakoppa,⁴ a public assembly was held, in which recital was made of the merits of ancient and recent Śaiva saints. The story of Ēkāntada-Rāmayya being told, Sōmēśvara IV. wrote a letter summoning him into his own presence at his palace, and laved his feet, and granted to the same temple the village of Ablūr itself in the Nāgarakhaṇḍa seventy in the Banavāsi twelve-thousand. And finally, the Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Kāmadēva went and saw the temple, heard all the story, summoned Ēkāntada-Rāmayya to Hāṅgal, and there laved his feet and granted to the temple a village named Mallavalli, on the north of Jōgēsara near Muṇḍagōḍ in the Hosanāḍ seventy in the Pānuṅgal five-hundred.⁵

In this account, there is nothing inconsistent with the possibility of others being concerned in the matter and helping the movement on,—for instance, the Basava or Basavarasayya of the Kāśyapa gōtra, of the Managōḷi inscription of A.D. 1161, who was a contemporary of Ēkāntada-Rāmayya, and in whom we may find the original of the Basava of the Liṅgāyat Purāṇas. And very possibly the Liṅgāyat or Vīra-Śaiva sect was actually established, in somewhat later times, by a person named Channabasava. In fact, as regards the first point, though the worship of Śiva languished in some parts of the country, it had by no means died out; and on some other occasion we may go into the history of the Kālāmukha sect, of the various other Śaiva establishments at Baḷagāmi, of the five-hundred Svāmīs of Aihōḷe, of the adherents of the Vīra-Baṇaṇḡu doctrine, and of other religious bodies, scattered about all over the Kanarese country, from whom the movement must have received encouragement and support,

² The record asserts that, on this occasion, he undertook that, after cutting off his own head, he would even allow his opponents to burn it, and still would recover it.

³ This is the modern 'Gogaw' of the Indian Atlas, sheet No. 42, seventeen miles S. S. E. † S. from Ablūr, in the Shikārpur tāluka, Shimoga district, Mysore. Malugunda apparently does not now exist.

quite as much as from the Śaiva establishment at the temple of Brahmēśvara at Ablūr itself. But the present record indicates a crisis in the history of Śaivism, when it was specially exposed to danger from the attacks of the Jains, and, apparently, of some still existing Buddhist influences.¹ It shews plainly that Ēkāntada-Rāmayya was the person who came most prominently to the rescue of the waning worship. And, as it describes Bijjala as simply a Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara at the time when, after settling the quarrel between Ēkāntada-Rāmayya and the Jains of Ablūr, he made his grant to the new temple of Vira-Sōmanātha which Rāmayya founded there, it places the exploits of Rāmayya shortly before A.D. 1162, in which year Bijjala completed his usurpation of the sovereignty by assuming the paramount titles/

⁴ Metre, Ślōka (Anusṭubh).

⁵ Read sīraś.

⁷ Read vāchehita.

⁸ This akṣara, ma, was perhaps at first omitted, and then inserted in the margin before the beginning of the line. But there are various places in this record, at which the lines begin rather irregularly.

¹⁰ Read vyākīrṇa-āghri.

¹² Metre, Mahārāgdhārā.

¹³ I.e., vachanam.

² For the sake of the metre, either oḍardaḍam must be pronounced as if it were written voḍardaḍam, or else we must read toḍardaḍam, which gives exactly the same meaning. Otherwise, the last syllable of bāḍvadoḷ remains short, and the metre is violated.

³ Read ikkal=drayisidam.

⁵ Read mei-gāydanē.

⁶ Metre, Kanda; and in the next verse.

⁹ Read iraḷu.

¹⁰ Read mārppaḍegaḷu. And see under mḍr, = mḍru (2).

¹¹ Read akkivadim. The prḍa is violated here.

¹³ Read Edmayyanam.

¹⁴ Metre, Kanda.

¹⁵ Read chḷu-mḍru-basadiya.

¹⁶ Read nōḍuvav=om̄du.

¹ The rd was at first omitted, and then was inserted above the line.

Metre, Kanda.

⁵ The more usual expression here would be prāḍḍa.

Read jīrṇn-ōdhārakka.

⁶ Read paṇirchhāsiraḍa.

⁷ We might correct the Sattaligey of the original into Satṭaligey, in accordance with G. line 9, where the reading is quite clear, just as readily as into Sattaligey. But the next line here shows Sattaligey very clearly; and we must accept that as the form intended in this place also.

⁸ Read gaṇḍugaḷamam; and, in the preceding line, Chaffarasanman would be better.

² Read drādhakarum. The following mark of punctuation is unnecessary.³ This mark of punctuation is unnecessary.⁴ On previous occasions I have, like others, been accustomed to give in italics, in brackets, words which are not in the original texts, but are necessary to complete the sense and make readable sentences in English; for instance, in the opening verse of this record, the words "the god" before "Śambhu," "his" before "lofty," and "and" before "who." For the future I shall give all such words in common type, without brackets, and shall give in italics, in brackets, only words which are added to explain or supplement the meaning of the original texts, and as to the correctness or suitability of which any doubt may be possible.⁵ Metre, Ślōka (Antushṭubh); and in the next five verses.⁶ Read nishkriti, for nishkritiḥ.⁷ Metre, Śālini.⁸ Read pārthivēmdram.⁹ Metre, Kanda.¹⁰ The metre is faulty here.

water thrown up by the waves of the holy river Gaṅgā (that flows through the coils of his hair); which has for fresh sprouts his dangling matted hair; which has as its growing fruit the ambrosia-rayed moon (on his forehead); which is pleasing with boughs that are his arms; and which is embraced by a creeper that is the goddess Gauri (Pārvatī),—give to Rāma,¹ in particular, with perpetual activity, an abundance of such fruits as are longed for by a petitioner! May Śrīkaṇṭha (Śiva), who is Īśa (in the form of) Vira-Sômēśa, surrounded by all the Gaṇas,²—who is adorned by feet in which there are set here and there the numerous crimson rays of the clusters of the jewels in all the tiaras of the multitude of the gods; who is the best of the immortals; and who is the abode of the splendour of the rays of the glances of (Pārvatī) the daughter of (Himālaya) the lord of the mountain of cold,—always confer good fortune upon Rāmadēva, upon him who is of unequalled greatness!

(Line 5)—Round about it (namely Jambūdvīpa) is the ocean, which is met by banks of clouds that are the trunks, blowing out spouts of water, of numerous herds of elephants which agitate the waters by the blows of the tips of their tails that are as efficient in doing so as the shoals of great fish which fall out from the mouths of the fierce monsters of the sea that glide to and fro; from which there rise the rays of many jewels and the lustre of large pearls; which has lines of mountains on its shores; and which is enclosed by the broad hips of the woman who is the Earth. And there, on the south of Jambūdvīpa, which is girt about by the salt ocean which is thus beautiful as being the abode of numerous marine animals and the place of very high waves, among all the Nīla, Nishadha,³ and Himālaya mountains, the cold mountain (Himālaya),—which has vast glens for rest after the fatigue of the great dalliance of love of the crowd of the daughters of the Siddhas; which is full of rows and rings of huge rocks falling down from the many piles of mountains that are pounded by the torrent of the waters of (the Mandākinī) the river of heaven; and which is irradiated by the mass of the tremulous lustre of the cold-rayed moon,—is beautiful with a length stretched out so as to measure the eastern and the western oceans.⁴

(L. 10)—In the land of Bhāratavarsha, which lies on the southern flank of that same Himālaya, the king of mountains, there shines, with exceedingly great comeliness, the country of Kuntala; and there there is beautiful the city that is called Alande, full of grace and splendour, and ever esteemed to altogether surpass Amarāvati (the city of the gods) with learned people and with a countless wealth of cattle and grain and water. Moreover:—As is well known, in Amarāvati there are Sukēśi and Mañjuhōshe,⁵ these two; but in that town there is a whole multitude of women, all of them with beautiful hair and sweet voices. It is charming with various plantations of sweet-smelling rice,⁶ with parks and gardens which are

¹ I.e. to the Rāmayya, or Ēkāntada-Rāmayya, who is the subject of the record. In the next verse he is mentioned as Rāmadēva. He is called simply Rāma again in lines 41, 42, 43, 99, 101.

² The Gaṇas are the attendants of Śiva. Mention is made of them again in lines 21 to 23, below. The leader of them was Nārada (line 22); and some of them were deceased or translated Śaiva saints, who are named in the same passage.

³ According to Monier-Williams' Sanskrit Dictionary, Nīla or Nīlādri "the blue mountain," is "one of the principal ranges of mountains dividing the world into nine portions and lying immediately north of Ilāvṛita or the central division," and Nishadha is a similar range "lying immediately south of Ilāvṛita and north of the Himālaya."

⁶ Gandha-iddi is explained in Monier-Williams' Sanskrit Dictionary as 'a sweet-smelling kind of rice.' He also gives mahā-iddi, 'a kind of large and sweet-smelling rice.' And Hiuen Tsiang mentions the "Mahāiddi-rice; this rice is as large as the black bean, and when cooked is aromatic and shining, like no other rice at all; it grows only in Māgadha, and nowhere else; it is offered only to the king or to religious persons of great distinction, and hence the name rice offered to the great house-holder," (Life, p. 100; see also Records, Vol. II. p. 82, where it is called "the rice for the use of the great"). The gandha-iddi is mentioned again in G. below, line 4, and also in one of the Managōḷi inscriptions (page 30 above, line 13).

in bloom through all the seasons, with plenty of well-filled tanks and wells and pools, with sounds everywhere of cranes and buzzing bees and cuckoos and ruddy geese and peacocks and numerous flights of parrots and blue jays, and with the music of lutes in the diversions of courtesans. And when it had thus become a place of many charms, as being known to be the site of an infinite number of parks, and pleasing with inexhaustible pools of water, and crowded with many people, and the dwelling-place of innumerable courtesans, and the abode of a countless number of merchants, there came down there, from the silver mountain (Kailāsa),¹ accompanied by Girijā (Pārvatī), with great gladness, the god Sōmanātha (Śiva), who has the water-lilies that are his feet made tawny by the mass of the multitude of the rays that dart forth from the jewels inlaid in the tiaras of all the gods, and who is a very tree of paradise having for the ripening of its fruits the accomplishment of the desires of worshippers who bow down before him in supplication.

(L. 17)—Among the residents of that town of Sōmanātha,² in the Brāhmaṇ quarters, amongst the Brāhmaṇs, there became famous one who resembled those (well-known) Vyāsa and Śuka and Vāmadēva and Parāśara and Kapiḷa and others; namely he, Purushōttama, who was called the best of Brāhmaṇs,—belonging to the Śrīvatsa gōtra; praised by (all other) Brāhmaṇs; acquainted with all the Vēdas and Vēdāṅgas; of an excellent disposition through possessing the virtue of pure behaviour. The good wife of that Brāhmaṇ was Padmāmbike, of pure behaviour, devoted to her husband, who by her virtuous disposition caused herself to be likened to both Sītādēvī (the wife of Rāma) and the wife of that (well-known) Satyatapas(?).³ And, that husband and wife having remained for a long time without offspring, one day, having come to know the saying of the Vēda that “there is no heaven for him who has no son,”⁴ the famous Purushōttama, who practised truth and purity, did worship, together with his wife, to Śaṃbhu, in order to obtain a son, saying “Īśa is the protection from misfortune.”

(L. 20)—At that same time, when Mahēśvara (Śiva), whose feet, resembling water-lilies, are worshipped by the crowd of gods and demons,—with Kēśava (Viṣṇu) and Vāsava (Indra) and Abjābhava (Brahman) in attendance upon him, and surrounded by countless Gaṇas, and accompanied by Umā (Pārvatī),—was enjoying the delight of an interchange of pleasing conversations in royal darbār in a delightful part of the mountain Kailāsa, Nārada, the leader of the Gaṇas, spake thus:—“While Ōhila, Dāsa, Chenna, Siriyāḷa, Halāyudha, Bāṇa, Udbhaṭa, and Malayēśvara who came here in human form, and Kēśavarāja,⁵ and innumerable other Gaṇas, resigning the happiness of earthly life, have been dwelling here in this

⁵ The reference here is to various famous Śaiva saints, most of whom appear to be mentioned in the Basava-purāṇa.—Mr. H. Krishna Sastri has obliged me with other references for some of these persons: for Siriyāḷa (in Kanarese) or Śiruttōṇḍaṇyaṅār (in Tamiḷ) the fourteenth āśvada of the Vṛishabhēndravijaya of Śhaḍakshari, and also the Tamiḷ Periyapurāṇam (prose version, Madras edition, p. 217 ff.), with the difference that Siriyāḷa is here represented as the son of Śiruttōṇḍa, and not identical with him, as asserted in the other work; for Halāyudha, the fifteenth āśvada of the Vṛishabhēndravijaya, which incidentally mentions also Dāsa and Chenna (verses 4, 6, after the introduction); and for Malayēśvara (in Kanarese) or Śrēmaṇḍ-Perumāl (in Tamiḷ), the Periyapurāṇam, p. 220 ff., which says that, when ruling at the town of Koṇḍuṅḡūr, he became a especial excellent abode of faith, the congregation (of Śaivas on the earth) has been afflicted among the Jains and Buddhists." On his speaking thus, Mahēśvara, with a smile on his face that resembled a water-lily, said to Virabhadra—"Do thou, in the world of men, beget a man with a portion of thyself, and then put a stop to those hostile observances." And thereupon Virabhadra came in a dream, in the guise of an ascetic, to Purushōttamabhaṭṭa, and said "There shall be born to thee a son, who shall suppress hostile observances;" and he further said "Those many people, in the region of the south, who have trodden in the paths of the Jains, all of them shall be put to shame, O master!, by thy son (who shall be called) Rāma." Having thus spoken and having manifested great graciousness, he went away. And Purushōttamabhaṭṭa, full of content at having succeeded, obtained a son, and performed the birth-ceremony and other rites, and bestowed the name of Rāma in accordance with the bidding of the god.

(L. 27)—And while he (Rāma), having become imbued with meditation on Śiva in a manner suitable to his divine birth, was practising observances with strict indifference to other things, it came about that, through the intensity of his devotion which was directed entirely to one object, he was called one who had one sole aim; and, having worshipped Śiva with great exclusiveness, he acquired the name of Ēkāntada-Rāma. And in the course of practising observances, with speech and body and mind always devoted to the feet of (Śiva) the lord of Gaurī (Pārvatī), at various sacred places prescribed by the Śaiva traditions and on all the numerous great and small rivers where there are altars of Śaṁbhu, he came and beheld with joy the Sōmanātha of the South,¹ honoured by the gods, who drives away all sin. And when, having thus come, he was worshipping that Sōmanātha of Huligere, whose feet are beautified by the cluster of the rays of the jewels in the tiaras of the greatest of the gods who unceasingly bow down before him, that supreme lord became manifest, and said,—(Here are two ślōkas)²—"Go, O Rāma!, at my command, to the excellent village of Abbalūru, and take up thy abode there at ease, and sacrifice to me with strict devotion; and, without any apprehension, enter into controversy with the Jains, and wager thy head; and be victorious, O son!"

(L. 33)—And when, on the god Sōmanātha having thus given his commands, Ēkāntada-Rāmayya was abiding, with complete indifference to other things, at the shrine of the god Brahmēśvara of Abbalūru, some of the Jains, together with that Saṅkagaupḍa,³ concerted together, and came to obstruct him, and with great resoluteness persistently sang the praises (of their own god) in the proximity of Śiva, saying "Jina is the (true) divinity." When he heard that, Ēkāntada-Rāmayya became very full of wrath, and said "It is forbidden to praise any other deity in the proximity of Śiva:" but, refusing to desist, they continued vociferating; and then he spake thus:—"Who is it that creates the earth?; who is it that protects it in the time of calamity?; and further, who is it that is able to destroy it, when his anger becomes great?; it is that same Śaṁbhu; and, in the face of the existence of him, who pervades everything, how can he (Jina) be a god, who came by chance into the world, and lived⁴ in bewilderment, and applied himself to practising austerities, and (only thus) attained happiness?; does your Arhat bestow gifts as Hara (Śiva) does?; has he ever given even ever so small a thing?; (it is) from follower of the famous Śaiva devotee Sundaramūrtināyaṇār (see id. pp. 1 to 51), and visited various Śaiva shrines in the south, and eventually followed Sundaramūrti on horseback to Kailāsa, and which, in connection with the same story, mentions a certain Bāṇa or Bāṇabhadra as a musician who received presents from Śēramāṇ on the recommendation of the god at Madura.

⁴ Bardu seems to be a form of the past participle of baḷ, 'to live,'—a root from which we have bardu, baddu, 'increase, greatness, etc.'

Hara (that) in former days the devout Gaṇas Bāpa and Diniśāla, and so many others, obtained boons." On his having thus spoken, the Jains said—"It may be so !¹ but why dost thou simply talk of former worthies ?; cut off thine own head, under such conditions that all people may know of it, and offer it to him, and get it back from him, (and then we will admit that) thou art indeed a pious man and he is indeed the god."

(L. 38).—When they had thus spoken, Ēkantaḍa-Rāma said "If I offer my head to (Śiva) the foe of Love, and obtain it back, what is the wager that ye will pay to me ?;" whereupon they replied, in anger, "We will pluck up our Jina and set up (an image of) Śiva." Then, saying "Give me (it in writing on) a palmyra-leaf," and taking the palmyra-leaf that they gave, Rāma brought (his image of) Śiva into the presence (of the Jains) at the place where he was to straightway cut off his head and make an offering of it, and spake thus :—"If I have ever not said that thou alone, O Śaṃbhu !, art my protection without fail, and if my thoughts have ever gone astray after other gods, my head shall not go from me by the edge of this scimitar;² but, otherwise, O Śiva !, let it roll down before thy feet :;" and, thus speaking, the brave Rāma, with a loud shout, and with an unfaltering hand, set himself to cut off his head and lay it at the feet of Śiva. While the disciples were saying "Surely he inflicted but a small wound; he drew the sword and thought, indeed, to do a bold thing, but then he became afraid and has preserved his body unhurt; he must have devised some mischief to the sword (blunting it, so that it shall not wound him)," Rāma, that man of ability, quickly and instantly cut through his own neck with as little difficulty as if he were shearing through a bundle of grass, and placed (his head) at the feet of Īśa (Śiva), and caused joy to the attendants of Śaṃkara (Śiva).

(L. 43).—After the severed head had been exhibited in public during seven days, Hara kindly gave it back: the head became sound again without any scar; and Rāma received it back, to the knowledge of all people. In much perturbation, all the Jains, in great distress, bowed down on the ground and seized his feet, imploring him to abstain from destroying their Jina; but, refusing to abstain, he fell on it like a thunderbolt from a clear sky,³ and broke the head of the Jina. Just as a wild elephant in rut plunges into a grove of plantain-trees, and, though alone, sweeps everything away before him, so he, putting forth his strength, scattered the heroes who guarded it, and the horses, and the chieftains, and, while the opposing ranks of the Jains, crying out that Māri (the goddess of plague or death)⁴ had come upon them, were running away in flight, he beat the Jina till it fell; and there he made them accept the holy Vīra-Sōmēśa.

(L. 46).—When the Jains, having gone in a body, and having related all the matter in a cunning way to king Bijjana, were, with enmity, making a very slanderous complaint about it, king Bijjana became mad with anger, and looked at Rāmayya with wrath, and said "Why hast thou done this evil thing ?;" whereupon he shewed the palmyra-leaf that they had given, and said :—"This is the palmyra-leaf that they gave; weigh it in thy mind, and place it in thy treasury; let them wager again; if they dare further stake, in thy presence, (all) their various Jinas, then I will cut off my head and place it as the stake in their hands, and will recover it even after they shall have burned it; but they shall wager to me the various Jinas of their eight hundred shrines, the chief of which is the Ānesejjeyabasadi." Thereupon king Bijjana said "We will see this marvel;" and he summoned the wise men of the shrines, and the (other)

⁴ There is a reference to Māri in line 28 of the Nēsargi inscription (Jour. Ro. Br. E. As. Soc. Vol. X. p. 248); and another occurs in an inscription at Balmuri (Ep. Carn. Vol. III., Br. 147), in which she is called Māriya-mūri, "the destroying deity Māri."

Jains, and said "All of you wager your shrines, and give (it in writing on) a palmyra-leaf. But they said "We came to lay a complaint about the shrine which has already been ruined; we have certainly not come to lay a wager and lose (any more of) our Jinās!" Then king Bijjana laughed, and dismissed them, bidding them to go without any further words, and to live in peace; and he gave to Rāmāyā, in such a way that all of them knew of it, a certificate of victory.

(L. 51)—A very Indra to the mountains that are hostile kings; a very Agastya to the ocean of hostile kings; a hot fire to the fuel of hostile kings; a very Śiva to Love in the form of hostile kings; a great Garuḍa to the fierce serpents that are hostile kings; such is the glorious Bijjana, the friend of those who swing the sword in seizing the wives of inimical kings, and the favourite of the woman Fame. Having put down the Chōḷa, having humbled Lāḷa, having deprived Nēpāla of stability, having crushed Andhra to pieces, having made the Gurjara captive, having broken the greatness of the king of Chēdi, having ground Vaṅga in a mill, and having fought and killed the kings of Baṅgāla, Kaḷiṅga, Māgadha, Paṭasvara,¹ and Māḷava, the brave king Bijjanarāya has protected the whole circuit of the earth. Agastya was born in a pitcher, and drank up the ocean; and in Bijjana, that excellent man, born among the Kaḷachuryas, (there was displayed) the power of drinking up, without vomiting, the ocean that was the lineage of the Chāḷukyas.

(L. 55)—Hail! The glorious Bijjanadēva,—who was possessed of all the glory of the names of, among others, the Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara who attained the pañchamahāśabda, the supreme lord of Kāḷaṅjara the best of towns, he who had the banner of a golden bull, he who was heralded in public with the sounds of the double drum called ḍamaruga, he who was the sun of the water-lily that was the family of the Kaḷachuryas, the fierce in fight, the hero in the clash of battle, the sun of good warriors, the elephant-goad of brave men, a very cage of thunderbolts to (protect) elephant-like chieftains who sought refuge with him, a very (Rāvaṇa) lord of Lankā in prowess, (he who behaved like) a uterine brother to the wives of other men, he who was successful (even) on a Saturday, the wrestler against hill-forts, a very Rāma characterised by firmness of character, the wrestler free from apprehension,—was pleased with the great boldness that was displayed by Rāmāyā, and with his unsurpassed devotion to the god Mahēśvara; and, for the repairs of whatever might become broken or torn or worn-out belonging to the enclosure,² with beautiful pinnacles, of the temple of the god Vira-Sōmanātha, and for the aṅgabhōga and the perpetual oblation of the god,—having put forward (to manage the grant) Chāṭṭarasa, the chieftain of the Sattaḷige³ seventy which was a kampaṇa of the Banavase twelve-thousand, and the chief Prabhuḥ and village-headmen of that kampaṇa, and having laved the feet of the holy Ēkāntada-Rāmāyā,—he gave, with libations of water, the village named Gōgāve to the south of Maḷugunda in the Sattaḷige seventy, with its established boundaries and (to be enjoyed according to) the tribhōga,⁴ and so maintained (religion).

(L. 61)—Om! When many kings, possessed of glory and renowned fame and valour, endowed with prowess (that has been preserved) in legends, had passed away in the lineage of the Chāḷukya kings which was considered to be the chief ornament of the Lunar Race, Tailapa (II.),—as an instance of a typical king,⁵—who may be called one of the seven principal mountains of the earth which was the Chāḷukyas, with happiness possessed (the world). that Tailapadēva there was born a son named (Iṛivabedāṅga)-Satyāśrayadēva; his son was Vikramadēva (V.); his younger brother was Daśavarmadēva; his son was Jayasiṅgarāya (II.);¹ his son was Āhavamalla-(Sōmēśvara I.); his son was Tribhuvanamalla-Permādirāya-(Vikramāditya VI.); his son was Bhūlōkamalla-Sōmēśvaradēva (III.); his son was the Pratāpachakravartin (Porma)-Jagadēkamalla (II.); his younger brother was Trailōkyamalla-Nūrmāḍi-Tailāpa (III.); and his son was Tribhuvanamalla-Sōmēśvaradēva (IV.), whose prowess and majesty were as follows:—

(L. 65)—When eighty fierce tusked elephants in rut were massed together (to oppose him), laying aside fear, and not relying upon (any other means), with one tuskless elephant he repulsed them as if they were but one or two,² and fought and conquered the countries, the towns, the elephants, and the horses; (and so) Sōmēśvara uprooted that race of the Kaḷachuryas, as if it were but a billa-tree. In such a way that the Earth became free from enmity, and Fortune, having come under his control, became herself a very mine of generosity to him, and Fame laid his commands on the mouths of all the rulers of the points of the compass, and the lovely woman Victory was ever fettering the sword of his arm (to restrain him from altogether too excessive conquests), Vīra-Sōmēśvara (IV.), whose valour was unassailable, and who was the moon of the water-lilies that were the eyes of the wives of his foes, acquired the sovereignty. A very close connection between the earth and himself being formed at that time when the dense darkness that was the Kaḷachuryas dispersed before his brilliance, the Chāḷukya king Sōma became famous.

(L. 69)—That same Tribhuvanamalla-Sōmēśvaradēva (IV.),—when the humāra Bammayya,³ the chief of all the leaders of the army, the establisher of the Chāḷukya sovereignty, and he himself, were at the small village of Seleyahalliyakoppa with the pleasure of an agreeable interchange of communications, and were one day engaged in a discourse about religion and were reciting the praises of ancient and recent devotees of Śiva,—heard the story of how Ēkāntada-Rāmayya, when he was at Abbālūru, and when all the Jains assembled and came and entered into a great disputation with him and made a wager that, if he would cut off his head and could get it back⁴ from the hands of Śiva, he might break their Jina and set up Śiva, and gave (it in writing on) a palmyra-leaf, took the palmyra-leaf that they gave, and cut off his own head, and then, after doing worship to Śiva, on the seventh day got back his head free from all injury just as it was before, and obtained a certificate of victory, together with respectful treatment, from the hands of Bijjanadēva, and broke the Jina, and destroyed the shrine and flung it down, and laid waste the site, and set up the god Vīra-Sōmanātha, and in accordance with the Śaiva traditions founded a temple with three pinnacles, as vast as a mountain. And Tribhuvanamalla-Sōmēśvaradēva (IV.) was astonished, and, from a desire to see him, caused a letter of deferential invitation to be written, and made him come, and met him with respect, and took him along with himself to his own house, and did worship to him with great reverence, and,—for the repairs of anything that might become broken or torn or worn-out belonging to the enclosure⁵ with beautiful pinnacles of the temple of the holy god Vīra-Sōmanātha, and for the aṅgabhōga and the raṅgabhōga and the perpetual

² Compare a verse in the Gadag inscription of A.D. 1192 (Ind. Ant. Vol. II. p. 300, text line 29 f.), which, properly translated, describes Brahma (the general who helped Sōmēśvara IV. to recover the kingdom, and who is mentioned by the name of Bammayya in line 70 below) as conquering sixty tusked elephants with one young tuskless elephant, when, in contempt of (i.e. in mutiny against) his father, he was depriving the Kaḷachuryas of the sovereignty.

⁴ Paḍadey-appaḍe, line 71, from paḍadey, for paḍadey, + appaḍe, is a somewhat stilted equivalent of paḍadeḍe or paḍadode.

oblation of the god, and for the occasions, among others, of the purificatory ceremony of the month Chaitra and the festival of spring, and for the giving of food and the imparting of knowledge,—saying that the village was to belong to that god,—with the very greatest devotion, having put forward Mallidéva, the chieftain of the kampana, (to manage the grant), and having laved the feet of Ēkātada-Rāmayya, gave, with libations of water, (by) a copper-plate charter, as a grant to the god Paramēśvara (Śiva), the village of Abbalūru in the Nāgarakhanda seventy which was a kampana of the Banavase twelve-thousand, together with the customs-duty called mēlālike-manneya of that village, and with (the right to) fines and punishments and buried treasure, and with its boundaries established in former times and with the tribhōga; and he seated him on an elephant and paraded him in public, and thus with the very greatest devotion maintained (religion).

(L. 80)—Om! Ēkātada-Rāma, who worshipped the water-lilies that are the feet of Śrīkaṇṭha with thoughts free from any perplexity, and who became famous in being considered to be the bulwark of the Śaiva rites, delighted in devotion to Śiva!

(L. 81)—May the holy god Vīra-Sōma,—who is the greatest among all the gods; who carries the moon (on his forehead); and who wears the garb of an actor in the dance of amorous dalliance which is lovely on account of the beauty imparted to it by the smiling, white, trembling, full glances of the sweet smiles of (Pārvatī) the daughter of the mountain (Himālaya),—day by day confer fortune and long life and fame upon Kāmadēva, upon him who is endowed with nobility!

(L. 82)—Hail! When the illustrious Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Kāmadēvarasa,—possessed of the string of names of, among others, the Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara who attained the pañcamahāśabda; the supreme lord of Banavāsi, the best of towns; he who acquired the excellent favour of the god Madhukēśvara of Jayanti (Banavāsi); the delight of learned people; the ornament of the family of Mayūravarma; the lion of the Kādambas; the fierce in fight; he who excelled in audacity; the elephant-goat of brave men; a very Rādhēya (Karna) in truth; a very cage of thunderbolts to (protect) those who sought refuge with him; a very cow of plenty to petitioners, —was governing the Pānumgal five-hundred, punishing the wicked and protecting the good, he came and saw the god Vīra-Sōmanātha of Abbalūru, and beheld the temple, as large as a mountain, which Rāmayya had had made according to the precepts of the Śaiva traditions, and listened in detail to the daring that he had displayed, and was pleased, and took him along with himself with the very greatest affection, and went away; and,—when his ministers and himself, together with the Maṇḍalika Madukeya, were seated (in assembly) at the capital of Pānumgal with the pleasure of an agreeable interchange of communications, with the very greatest devotion he made the village named Mallavalli, on the north of Jōgēsara which is near to Mundagōd in the Hosanād seventy which is a kampana in the Pānumgal five-hundred, together with its established boundaries and including the tribhōga, into a namasya-grant for the god Vīra-Sōmanātha, and laved the feet of Rāmayya, and gave it, with libations of water, with the very greatest devotion, for the repairs of whatever might become broken or torn or worn-out belonging to the temple of that same god, and for the aṅgabhōga and the raṅgabhōga and the perpetual oblation of the god, and for the purificatory ceremony of the month Chaitra and the festival of spring and the other occasions, and for the giving of food; and thus he preserved religion. May it be well! Om!

(L. 91)—Those who preserve these acts of religion shall obtain the reward of fashioning in gold the horns and hoofs of a thousand tawny-coloured cows at the sacred Vāraṇāsi or Prayāga or Kurukshētra or Arghyatīrtha or Śrīparvata or any other holy sites, and giving them to Brāhmins versed in the four Vēdas at such meritorious times as an eclipse of the sun, an eclipse of the moon, a vyatīpāta, a passage of the sun from one sign of the zodiac to the next, etc.; those who destroy these acts of religion shall incur the sin of slaying those same cows and Brāhmins at the Ganges or Vāraṇāsi or Kurukshētra or any other sacred sites! And, to shew that there is no doubt about this, he¹ quotes the sayings of Manu of former times:— The earth has been enjoyed by many kings, commencing with Sagara; whosoever at any time possesses the earth, to him belongs, at that time, the reward (of making this grant, if he continues it)! The dust of the earth may be counted, and the drops of rain; but the reward of preserving a religious grant cannot be estimated even by the Creator! He who confiscates land that has been given, whether by himself or by another, shall be born as a worm in ordure for the duration of sixty-thousand years! He who, though capable (of better things), displays neglect in act or thought or speech,— whether he be a person of good condition or a man of low caste, he is outside the pale of all religious rites! The maker (of a grant) shall raise seven times seven times seven families (to heaven); but he who confiscates shall cause the same number of families to sink down (into hell)! There may be absolution for one who slays a cow or a Brāhmaṇ on the Ganges or at any other sacred place, but not for men who confiscate the property of gods or Brāhmaṇs! “This general bridge of religion should at all times be preserved by you;” thus does Rāmachandra make his earnest request to all future princes! May it be well and auspicious; and may there be good fortune! Ōm! Ōm!

(L. 99)— Saying “(As) I am thus (notoriously) a very treasury of austerities directed towards Hara, any small effort is not (becoming to me),” Rāma, the abode of devotion to Śambhu, constructed (this great) temple of (Śiva) the destroyer of the cities (of the demon Tripura). Without spending or asking for anything, even so little as a hāga,² which devotees, standing in front of him in reverence, might offer for the shrine, but going with great humility to the princes (and obtaining their contributions), through the inexhaustible favour of Śiva Rāma made this temple, resembling (Kailāsa) the mountain of Hara; how successful he was!

(L. 101)— Kēśavarāja, the leader of the forces, spake this record; and Sarapa,— the slave of Īśa; he whose refuge is the water-lilies that are the feet of Śiva,— put it into proper shape, and wrote it with facility. Ōm!

(L. 102)— Hail! Mallidēvarāja,— [who belonged to the race of*] Mukkappa-Kādamba who was born from the holy Hara (Śiva) and the Earth; the supreme lord of Banavāsi, the best of towns; the worshipper of the water-lilies that are the sacred and holy feet of the holy god Madhukanātha,— of Nāgarakhaṇḍe, gave

F.— Of about A.D. 1200.

This record is on a stone tablet outside the temple of Sōmanātha.— The sculptures on the stone are, at the extreme proper right end, a liṅga, with an officiating priest standing to it, and with a human head on the front part of the abhishēka-slab and the headless body below it, propped up against the lower part of the stand of the liṅga; and, along the rest of the stone, a representation of a fight: next to the liṅga, there are five standing figures, armed with spears and shields, and facing away from the liṅga, and evidently intended to be Śaivas fighting in defence of it; in front of them, there are five or six standing figures, armed with spears only, and attacking them; immediately behind the latter, there are four smaller figures, each blowing a large horn held up in its circular shape over his head;³ further on, there are two groups,

³ The horns are of the kind called in Kanarese kakāḷe, kāḷāḷe, or kāḷe, and in Marāṭhī śing. They are used in the services of temples, as well as in religious and secular processions, at weddings, and so on; and evidently in former days they were used as battle-horns. They are made sometimes all in one piece, sweeping round in a continuous curve covering rather more than half a circle, and sometimes with a joint in the middle so that, in each of four standing figures, apparently spectators; and some seven or eight men are lying stretched out wounded or dead, all along below the feet of the combatants and of some of the spectators.—The writing runs along the top of the stone, above the sculptures, and covers an area about 5' 2½" broad by 0' 2¾" high. It is in a state of very good preservation, except that at some time or another trimmed at that end, and that these letters have been cut away, and perhaps, with them, some sculptures,—possibly some horsemen and, at the extreme end, an image of Jinendra. The purport of what is lost at the end of line 2 is plain enough, though it need not be supplied with exactly the same aksharas that I shew in square brackets in the text; but it is impossible to say how the missing word or words at the end of line 1 should be filled in. The second line of writing commences below the s of saṅka-gāvunḍa in line 1.—The characters are well formed and boldly engraved Kanarese characters of about A.D. 1200. The size of the letters ranges from about ¾" to 1".—The language is Kanarese.

The inscription is not dated, and does not refer itself to the reign of any king. It simply marks the place where, according to tradition, Ēkāntada-Rāmayya cut off his head and offered it to Śiva, and then obtained it back again, as recorded in the long inscription, E. above.

TRANSLATION.

The place where, at (the temple of) the holy god Brahmēśvara, Ēkāntada-Rāmayya, when the Jina of the shrine had been wagered, cut off his head, and received it back again! When Saṅkagāvunḍa would not let him destroy the shrine, and arrayed his men and horses (to defend it), Ēkāntada-Rāmayya fought and conquered, and broke the Jina, and set up a liṅga.

G.—Of the time of Singhana.—A.D. 1219.

This record is on a stone tablet standing against the wall, or perhaps built into the wall, outside the back of the temple of Basavēśvara.²—At the top of the stone there is a compartment addition to being used in the circular shape, the two parts of them can be turned so as to stretch out in reversed curves like an elongated S. To the European ear, they are chiefly associated with nothing but a discordant tumult of sound; and not incorrectly, when they are blown in processions, with simply the object of making as much noise as possible. But this use of them does not do justice to them. In the Kanarese country (and doubtless elsewhere also) some of the men, whose profession is to play these large horns, have well-merited reputations, reaching far and wide; their services are much in request, and are well rewarded; and it is a great treat to get hold of one of these skilled players and hear his performance. He will first stand upright, and "wind" the horn, which for this purpose he holds in its circular shape, sweeping right up from his mouth over his head. He will then sit down, with the horn, in the same shape, slung by a cord round his neck and running from his mouth down under one arm-pit and then up over the other shoulder; and it is surprising what sweet sounds he will produce with it, especially when he places the mouth-piece inside his mouth and sings an air through the horn. And he will usually finish by placing the mouth-piece against the outside of his cheek, or against his throat, and then also, apparently, playing it in the same soft mode; but this, which is also done by some players on the saṅka-shell, is of course only a trick,—though it is a very clever one. I do not know what authorities confer the distinction; but the more specially skilled players are entitled to carry turdys or plumes, which are fixed into sockets in the rims round the mouths of the horns. Similar plumes for drums are mentioned in some of the Kanarese ballads (Ind. Ant. Vol. XV. p. 352, Vol. XVIII. p. 359).—The kāḍi was one of the five instruments used in producing the pañcamahādāḍa; see page 216 above, note 3.

² That is, according to the return made to me. But in Carn-Dēsa Inscr. it is described as being inside the temple.

of sculptures, shewing, in the centre a linga, with a priest standing to it; on the proper right, two seated figures, with two standing figures waving chauris over them, and with the moon above; and on the proper left, the bull Nandi, with the sun above it. Then come lines 1 to 10 of the writing. Then comes another compartment of sculptures, shewing two seated figures, each inside a small pavilion, and with a standing figure, holding a chauri, on each side of each pavilion. And then comes the remainder of the record.—The writing covers in lines 1 to 10 an area about 2' 1½" broad by 0' 7" high, and in lines 11 to 16 an area of the same breadth by about 0' 4" high. It is in a state of good preservation almost throughout. But down the proper right of the tablet there is some projection which more or less hides the first akshara of each line in lines 1 to 8 and 10, and prevents it from appearing fully in the ink-impression. And the record appears to have been left unfinished in the last line.¹—The characters are Kanarese, of the regular type of the period to which the record refers itself; and they are well formed, though the engraving is rather thin and not very deep. The size of the letters ranges from about ⅛" to nearly ¼". The anusvāra is formed in two ways, as in E. above; sometimes on the line of writing, and sometimes above it. The virāma is represented throughout by the sign for the vowel u; and a noticeable instance of this is in tatu-kṣhaṇādi, line 12. The lingual ḍ is represented throughout by its own distinct sign.—The language is Kanarese, of the same transitional kind as that which we have in E. above. And the record is in prose and verse mixed. In line 3, we have the word baḷiya,—a variant of the baḷiya of other records,—which according to dictionaries means "near to" (lit. "of the vicinity of"), but which in such passages as the present is equivalent to the Sanskrit madhyavartin or antarvartin, "in the middle of, or included in."² In the same line, we have bāḍa,—a tadbhava corruption of the Sanskrit vāḍa,—which usually means, as here, "a town," but is sometimes used in the sense of kampana, which Kittel's dictionary gives in the sense of "a district," and which I have sometimes translated by "an administrative circle of villages." And in line 15, we meet with the rare form ḍgu, for hḍgu, in ḍdar, = hḍdar, "they went."—In respect of orthography, the only points that call for special notice are (1) the use of auvu for au, in pauvurnṇami, line 1, and in gauvuḍa, lines 5, 8, 10; and (2) a very uncommon use of the initial long i in the middle of words, owing to which we have āvaḷiṇ for āvaḷiṇ, line 3, śāḷi and ḍḷi for śāḷi and ḍḷi, line 4, līlet for līleyiṇ, line 6, sāira for sāyira, line 9, and, still more extraordinarily, vāiri for vairi, line 12.

The inscription refers itself to the reign of the Dēvagiri-Yāḍava king Siṅghaṇa; and to a time when (a feudatory) Siṅgaṇadēvarasa was governing the Banavāsi twelve-thousand province. The tablet is a virḡal or monumental slab, in memory of the death of two local heroes, Mācha and Gōma, in battle, on the occasion of a cattle-raid at Ablūr. The raid was led by Īsvaraḍēva of Belagavatti. From Mr. Rice's Mysore, 2nd ed., Vol. II. p. 448, we learn that Belagavatti³ is the modern Belagutti in the Honnāli tāluka of the Shimoga district, Mysore,—the 'Bellagooty' of the Indian Atlas, sheet No. 42, in lat. 14° 11', long. 75° 35', twenty-four miles S. S. E. ¼ S. from Ablūr,—and that Īsvaraḍēva belonged to a family of local chiefs mentioned in records there, which give another date for him in A.D. 1216, and give also the names of Mallidēva, A.D. 1196, Simhaladēva, A.D. 1232, and Bīradēva, A.D. 1249.

The record is dated on the full-moon day, coupled with Monday, of the Pramāthin samvatsara, specified as one of the years of Siṅghaṇa. The regnal year is not cited, though it is usual to cite it in any date expressed in this manner.⁴ The name of the samvatsara, however,

² For this word, and bāḍa, both of which occur also in A. (see page 280 above, notes 7, 12), see a note in Jour. Bo. Br. E. As. Soc. Vol. X. p. 280.

³ Mr. Rice writes the name 'Belagavatti.' In the present record, however, the vowel of the second syllable is distinctly a,—not e.

fixes the year as Śaka-Samvat 1142 current. And this date, again, has not been recorded correctly; for the given tithi ended, not on a Monday, but on Saturday, 29th June, A.D. 1219, at about 9 hrs. 4 min. after mean sunrise (for Ujjain).

TRANSLATION.

Om! Hail! On Monday the full-moon day of the month Âshâdha of the Pramâthin samvatsara of the years of the glorious Simhanadêva, who was possessed of all eulogistic titles; while the powerful and brave Singanadêvarasa was governing the Banavase twelve-thousand,—to describe the excellence of Abbalûru, a town that was included in the Nâgarakhaṇḍa seventy which was a kampana of those parts:—

(Line 3)—Abbalûru is truly charming on the surface of the earth, in a most exceedingly beautiful manner, by reason of a park which is pleasing with flights of parrots and numbers of cuckoos, by the sweet-smelling rice⁴ that grows luxuriantly, by a number of temples of the god Śiva, by a shrine, to which (much) adoration is paid, of that same god in the form of him who carries a third eye in his forehead, and by a multitude of brave men who excel in strength and are skilled in arts and sciences.

(L. 5)—To give a description of the merits of Biragaṇḍa of the Abbalûru that is thus charming:—Saying that he is devoted to the welfare of others, that he bestows gifts, and that he is a very ocean of virtue, the multitude of good and wise people joyfully praise Biragaṇḍa, who is in mien as radiant as the hot-rayed sun,—who is in every way devoted to the water-lilies that are the feet of spiritual preceptors,—who is possessed of the very greatest resoluteness,—and who is a very tree of paradise in giving support to all people who proclaim his praises.

(L. 8)—While that same Biragaṇḍa was continuing in happiness:—Belagavatti-îṣvaradêva, with various chieftains and with the Nâyakas of the Satalige district,⁵ together with ten thousand men and a thousand horses, came along, and descended on Abbalûru, and seized the herd of penned-up cows; and then, to describe the bravery displayed by Mâcha and Gôma, sons of Baḍagi-Kêtôja, in rescuing the penned-up cows at the command of Biragaṇḍa:—

(L. 11)—While the valiant Baḍagi-Mâcha, having rained blows on the array of horses that he drove away, was still attacking them, and while Gôma, having stared fiercely at them, was shooting arrows, the whole of the hostile force immediately fell down in all directions. What words can I use?; if you consider, it surpassed all comparison!: meeting them in the most terrifying manner, Mâcha, the son of Kêtôja, plunged recklessly into the hostile force, and pierced many of them. In such a way that the bravery of these two brothers was a wonder to the earth, Mâcha and Gôma fought in battle with many people, and killed numbers of them, and went with great fame to heaven.

³ After this, there should come another line, containing the completion of this well-known verse, viz., pi sur-ôṅgaṇḍa khaṇḍa-viḍhvamsini kalyâṇa kâ chintâ maraṇḍa ranyê. These words may perhaps be somewhere on the side or back of the stone, and may have been overlooked by my copyist. But there is no reason why they should not have been engraved on the front of the stone, immediately below line 15; the stone was smoothed in order to form the subscript k of kkôdar at the beginning of that line, and was not smoothed any further; and it seems, therefore, that the completion of the verse was carelessly omitted, either by the engraver or in the written copy from which he worked.

(L. 15)—He who conquers obtains fortune;¹ and even one who dies [wins a woman of the gods: since the body perishes in a moment, why should one distress oneself about dying in battle?].

No. 26.—A NOTE ON THE ALPHABET OF THE DONEPUNDI GRANT.

By F. KIELHORN, Ph.D., LL.D., C.I.E.; GÜTTINGEN.

Dr. Hultzsch having kindly consented to publish the accompanying photolithograph, which has been prepared under Dr. Fleet's supervision, of the Donepundi grant of Śaka-Saṃvat 1259, edited by me above, Vol. IV. p. 356 ff., I take the opportunity of adding a few remarks on the writing of that most beautifully engraved inscription. I have already stated that the characters are Telugu. In general, they are the same as those of the Vānapalli plates of Anna-Vēma, published with a photolithograph above, Vol. III. p. 59 ff., which are only about forty years later; but there are one or two interesting differences between the characters of the two inscriptions.

Of initial vowels the Vānapalli plates contain a, ā, i, and ri; in the present grant i and ri do not occur, but, on the other hand, we here have also ī, in the word ī in lines 42 and 51; u, in Umā, l. 1; and ē, in ēvaṃ, l. 15, ētaḍ, l. 38, etc.

Of the ordinary Sanskrit consonants, gh, ñ, jh and ḍh do not occur in the Donepundi grant; and the signs for chh and ṇ only occur in conjuncts, as subscript letters, anvichchhan, l. 31, yāvachchhrīman, l. 39, and vijñāna, l. 34. The signs which may be specially drawn attention to are those for k, ph, and bh.

In the sign for k the horizontal line between the top-stroke (talakuṭṭu) and the circle is joined with the latter by a straight line, which forms a sharp angle with the horizontal line, as may be seen from kari, l. 1, kruta, l. 2, etc. This (cursive) sign for k, which does not occur in the Vānapalli plates and is not found in any of the published palæographic Tables, is also used in the Dibbida plates of Śaka-Saṃvat 1191, published with a photolithograph above, p. 106 ff., and in the three inscriptions of Kāṭaya-Vēma² of Śaka-Saṃvat 1313-38, published above, Vol. IV. p. 328 ff. It clearly is the immediate precursor of the k of the modern Telugu alphabet.

The sign for ph is distinguished from the sign for p by a separate semicircular line, placed below the sign for p; compare the pha of phala, l. 4, with the pa of lampata, l. 6. The same sign for ph is used in the Vānapalli plates, e.g. in phalaka, l. 7. In a Chêbrôlu inscription of Jāya of Śaka-Saṃvat 1157, we still find the earlier sign in which the distinguishing semicircular line intersects the proper left vertical line of the sign for p.³

The sign for bh, in the aksharas bha, bhu, bhū, bhya and bhyā, is distinguished from the sign for b by the top-stroke of bh; compare the bha of bhava, l. 3, with the ba of bubbū, l. 9. In aksharas where there is no room for the top-stroke, bh sometimes is distinguished from b by a small opening in the lower part of the sign for bh, as in vibhāvyatē, l. 14, and nabhō, l. 11; but just as often there is no difference at all between bh and b, as may be seen e.g. from a comparison of vibhōr= (for vibhōr=), l. 19, with bolam, l. 48, or from vibhinu- (for vibhinu-), l. 14, abīshk- (for abīshk-), l. 36, etc. It is interesting to observe that in all such cases (where in the Donepūṇḍi grant bh practically does not differ from b), in the Vānapalli plates, the sign for bh is generally distinguished from the sign for b by just such a separate semicircular line as above we have found to distinguish ph from p; compare in the Vānapalli plates vīphātī,¹ l. 3, Śambhōr=, l. 4, nābhī, l. 7, etc. Moreover it may be noted that in the inscription B. of Kāṭaya-Vēma, above, Vol. IV. p. 329, in the bh of Bhīmēśvara in line 8, the distinguishing semicircular line has been changed into a downward stroke, so that the sign for bh looks exactly like the bh of the modern Telugu alphabet.

In addition to the signs of the ordinary Sanskrit consonants, the Donepūṇḍi grant also contains the sign for the Dravidian ḷ, e.g. in sunirmala, l. 11, and the sign for r, e.g. in ēru, l. 44. In the sign for the r of taruvāta in line 49 the engraver erroneously has omitted the horizontal line in the interior of the letter.

Regarding the signs of subscript consonants it may be noted that in the conjuncts nn and ṇṇ the same sign is used for both (the second) n and ṇ,² as in nnamaḥ, l. 1, and ṇṣaṇṇa(ṇṇa), l. 13. Attention may also perhaps be drawn to the form of the subscript ḷ, e.g. in Emḍapalli, l. 45, and puḷlu, l. 53.—Of final consonants which are not joined with a following letter, only t occurs, in aramjayat, l. 17, and dhā(dā)nāt, l. 23.

As regards medial vowels, I have already indicated that there is hardly any difference between the signs for i and ī; compare e.g. gīta-kīrtiḥ, l. 5, and dīdhitīm, l. 27. In engraving the akshara mī of ktum=īshkē in line 21 the engraver has made a mistake, which, to judge from the impression, was subsequently corrected by him. Another mistake was made by him in engraving the akshara nō at the end of line 15, as may be seen by a comparison of the proper sign for nō in śānur=nnō, l. 24, or the no of Jaganobbagamḍḍa in line 27 of the Vānapalli plates.

That the plates, near the proper right margin of the first inscribed side of each plate, contain the numeral figures from 1 to 5, has been already stated.

² The same practice is followed in some very much earlier inscriptions; compare e.g. in the Sātārā plates of the Eastern Chalukya Yuvarāja Viṣṇuvardhana I. (Ind. Ant. Vol. XIX. p. 809, and Plate) sāṃpannaḥ, l. 4, and paurṇamdayān, l. 13.—It may be noted that both in the Donepūṇḍi grant and in the Vānapalli plates the conjunct ṇṇ is always written by the sign for ṇṇ.

APPENDIX

A LIST OF THE INSCRIPTIONS OF NORTHERN INDIA FROM ABOUT A.D. 400.

BY PROFESSOR F. KIELHORN, C.I.E. ; GÖTTINGEN.

IN compliance with the request of several scholars who are interested in Indian epigraphy, I publish herewith part of a list of Indian inscriptions, which primarily I had prepared for my own use only. What I offer at present, may be roughly described as a list of the inscriptions of Northern India, from about the end of the fourth century A.D. Similar lists of the more numerous inscriptions of Southern India, and of the inscriptions before A.D. 400, are under revision and may be published hereafter.

Within the limits indicated, this list gives, or is intended to give, all inscriptions of any importance that have been published, or noticed with details of their contents, in the periodicals and official volumes accessible to me ; and it includes some unpublished inscriptions of which rubbings or impressions have been kindly presented to me from time to time by Drs. Burgess, Fleet, Führer, Hoernle and Hultzsch, and by the late Sir A. Cunningham. I shall be grateful to every one who will draw my attention to any inscription which may have been omitted. As it stands at present, the list deals with rather more than 700 inscriptions:¹ about 250 copper-plate inscriptions, and the rest, with one exception,² inscriptions on stones and rocks.

In arranging the list, I have been guided partly by the eras³ according to which the inscriptions are dated, and partly by the localities where the originals were discovered. Thus Nos. 1-568 give the inscriptions dated (or, in some cases, supposed to be dated) according to the Málava-Vikrama era (1-328, marked V.), the Śaka era (346-386, marked Ś.), the Kalachuri-Chêdi era (387-425, marked K.), the Gupta-Valabhi era (436-507, marked G. or Valabhî-s.), the Harsha era (528-547, marked H.), and the Newâr era (559-568, marked N.) ; together, generally, with those undated inscriptions the time of which may be approximately determined by reference to the inscriptions dated according to one of the eras mentioned (329-345, 426-435, 508-527, and 548-558). Nos. 569-587 give the small number of inscriptions which are (or have been taken to be) dated according to the Saptarshi era (569-574), the era of Buddha's Nirvâna (575), the Lakshmanasêna era (576-578), and the Simha era (579-584), with references to three inscriptions which, dated according to other eras, also quote the corresponding years of the Hijra era, the "Bengâli San," and the Ilâhi era of the emperor Akbar (585-587). And Nos. 588-688 give the remaining inscriptions, which either contain no date at all or are for the most part¹ dated in regnal years, broadly arranged according to the tracts of country where they were found, from Rājputāna and the Pañjāb on the west to Orissa and Gañjām on the east coast of India. I am aware that a number of the inscriptions towards the end of the list, as well as others which are dated according to the Śaka era, properly belong to Southern India, but have given them here on account of the connection of some of them with northern inscriptions. To draw an absolutely strict line between the north and the south appeared to me as unnecessary as it would be impossible.

³ The list includes all Indian inscriptions known to me which are dated according to the Saptarshi era, the era of Buddha's Nirvâna, and the Málava-Vikrama, Kalachuri-Chêdi, Gupta-Valabhi, Harsha, Newâr, Lakshmanasêna, Simha, and Gâṅgêya eras. But it contains only 21 inscriptions dated exclusively according to the Śaka era, and none which are dated according to the era of the Kaliyuga, and the Kollam and Châlukya-Vikrama eras. Years of the twelve-years cycle of Jupiter are quoted in the Gupta dates of Nos. 451, 453, 456 and 459, and in No. 522 ; years of the sixty-years cycle of Jupiter in only eleven (Vikrama) dates ; and śaka (regnal) years only in Nos. 367, 369, 370, and 671.

On the information given under each number little need be said here. As far as I was able to do so, I have tried to state, not merely where an inscription has been discovered, but also where it is now. I have also indicated whether Plates of an inscription are available.² When an inscription has been edited several times, I generally have thought it sufficient to state where it has been published last. In the case of dated inscriptions, I have given throughout the original dates, and have added their European equivalents when they could be ascertained with confidence; moreover, I have shewn whether the numbers which may occur in a date are denoted by numerical symbols or by numeral (decimal) figures. As regards other details, I have mostly confined myself to recording the genealogy or line of succession (where it is given in the original) of the king or chief to whom an inscription belongs, and the names of the princes who are mentioned in connection with him or his predecessors; but, in the case of copper-plates, I have also given the names of the places from which the grants were issued, and, in the case of prāśastis, the names of their authors.

I venture to hope that this list will be of some service both to these of my fellow students who are engaged in the publication of Indian inscriptions, and to any one who would wish to ascertain whether an inscription on stone or a copper-plate inscription, which he may meet with, is new or has already attracted the attention of scholars. To render the list more useful, the principal names that occur in it are given in an Index.

A.—Inscriptions dated according to the Mālava-Vikrama Era.

1.—V. 428.—Gupta Inscr. p. 253, and Plate. Bijayagaḍh pillar inscription of the Varika Viṣṇuvardhana, the son of Yaśōvardhana, grandson of Yaśōrāta, and great-grandson of Vyāghrarāta :—

3.—V. 493 and 529.—Gupta Inscr. p. 81, and Plate. Mandasōr inscription of the time of Kumāragupta [I.] and his subordinate, the governor at Daśapura, Bandhuvarman, the son of Viśvavarman; (composed by Vatsabhaṭṭi) :—

(L. 19).—Mālavānām gaṇasthityā yāt[ē] śata-chatusṭayē | trinavaty-adhikē=bdānām=ri(ṛi)tan sēvya-ghanastanē || Sahasya-māsa-śuklasya prāśastē=hui trayōdaśē |

⁴ Dr. Fleet suggests sauṃyēsho=śīta-; compare Gupta Inscr. p. 73, note.

(L. 21).—Vatsara-satēshu pañchasu viśamty-adhikēshu¹ navasu ch=ābdēshu | yātēshv=abhiramya-Tapasya-māsa-śukla-dvittiyāyām ||

4.—V. 589.—Gupta Inscr. p. 152, and Plate. Mandasôr inscription of the time of the *Rājādhirāja*² Yaśôdharmā-Vishṇuvardhana,³ recording the construction of a well by Dakṣha (?), the younger brother of Dharmadôsha who was a minister of Vishṇuvardhana, in memory of their deceased uncle Abhayadatta; (engraved by Gôvinda⁴):—

(L. 21).—Pañchasu satēshu śaradām yātēshv=ēkānnanavati-sahitēshu | Mālava-gaṇasthiti-vaśāt=kāla-jñānāya likhitēshu ||

5.—V. 718.—Ep. Ind. Vol. IV. p. 31, and Plate. Udaypur (in Rājputāna) inscription of the time of the Guhila Rājā Aparājita, recording the construction of a temple by the wife of his leader of the forces, the Mahārāja Varāhasimha; (composed by Dāmôdara, the son of Brahmachârin and grandson of Dāmôdara):—

(L. 12).—samvatsara-satēshu saptasu(sv=) ashtādaś-ādihikēshu) Māgra(rga)śirsha-suddha-pañchami(myām).

6.—V. 746.—Ind. Ant. Vol. V. p. 181, and Plate. Jhālrapāṭaṇ inscription⁵ of the time or Durgagana; (composed by Bhaṭṭa Śarvagupta):—

(L. 16).—samvatsara-satēshu saptasu shatchatvârimsad-adhikēshu.

7.—V. 770.—In his Annals and Antiquities of Rājasthân, Vol. I. p. 799, Colonel Tod gives a translation of an inscription “of the Mori Princes of Cheetore, taken from a column on the banks of the lake Mānsurwur, near that city.” It contains the passage: “Seventy had elapsed beyond seven hundred years (samvatistîr), when the lord of men, the king of Malwa,⁶ formed this lake.”

8.—V. 794.—Ind. Ant. Vol. XII. p. 155, and Plate. Dhiniki (spurious) plates of the Mahārājādhirāja Jaikadēva of Saurāshtra, issued from Bhūmilikā:—

(L. 1).—Vikrama-samvatsara-satēshu saptasu chaturnavaty-adhikēshv=amkataḥ [79]⁴ Kārttika-mās-āpara-pakṣhē amāvāsyāyām Aditya-vârē Jyēṣṭhā-nakshatrē ravigrahaṇa-parvvaṇi | usyām samvatsara-māsa-puksha-divasa-pūrvvāyām tithāv=ady=ēha.

The date is irregular; see ibid. Vol. XIX. p. 369, No. 190.

9.—V. 795.—Ind. Ant. Vol. XIX. p. 57, and Plate. Kapaswa inscription of the prince Śivagana, the son of Saṅkuka who was a friend of the king Dhavalā of the Maurya lineage, (composed by Dēvaṭa, the son of Bhaṭṭa Surabhi; and engraved by Śivanāga,⁷ the son of Dvārasīva):—

(L. 14).—Samvatsara-śatair=yātaiḥ sa-panchanavaty-arggalaiḥ saptabhîr=Mālav-ēsānām

10.—V. 811.—In his Annals and Antiquities of Rājasthân, Vol. II. p. 764, Colonel Tod reports that at Chitôr in Rājputāna he found an inscription which was dated—

“Sambut 811, Māgha-sudi 5th, Vṛishpatwâr (Thursday).”

Thursday, 3rd January A.D. 754; see Ind. Ant. Vol. XIX. p. 373, No. 196.

² This occurs in verse, and is not a formal title.

³ In the published edition Yaśôdharmā and Vishṇuvardhana are taken to be the names of two princes, see Ind. Ant. Vol. XIX. p. 227.

⁵ For another, fragmentary inscription which is on the same stone, see Ind. Ant. Vol. V. p. 182, and Plate.

11.—V. 847.—Zeitschr. D. Morg. Ges. Vol. XXXVIII. p. 547; Ind. Ant. Vol. XIV. p. 45. Shērgaḍh (Kōṭā) Buddhist inscription of the Sīmanta Dēvadatta; (composed by Jajjaka):—
(L. 20).—samvat śa 847 Māgha-śudi 6 |¹

Vindunāga; his son Padmanāga; his son Sarvanāga, married Śrī; their son Dēvadatta.

12.—V. 898.—Zeitschr. D. Morg. Ges. Vol. XL. p. 39. Dhōlpar inscription of the Chāhavāpa Chaṇḍamahāsēna:—

(L. 21).—Vasu nava [a*]shṭau varshā gatasya kālasya Vikram-ākhyasya [I] Vaisākhasya sitāyā[m*] Ravivāra-yuta-dvitiyāyām || Chandrē Rōhini-samyuktē² lagnē Singhasya³ Śōbhanē yōgē |

Sunday, 16th April A.D. 842; see Ind. Ant. Vol. XIX. p. 35, No. 57.

Isuka; his son Mahisbarāma, married Kaphullā (who became sati); their son Chaṇḍa (Chaṇḍamahāsēna).

13.—V. 918.—Jour. Roy. As. Soc. 1855, p. 516. Ghaṭayāla inscription of the Paḍihāra (Pratihāra) Kakkuka:—

(L. 16).—Varisa-saḍsu a navasum aṭṭhārasam-aggalēsu Chettammi | paḍḍhattē vihu-hatthē Buha-vārē dhavala-biāē ||

The date is irregular.

⁴ With the epoch which best suits the later Kalachuri dates, the original date would be expected to fall in A.D. 704-5, not in A.D. 705-6.

Genealogy as in No. 481.—The inscription mentions, as dūtaka, the king's daughter (rāja-duhitṛī) Bhūpā (see No. 484).

⁴ This probably is the prince who afterwards ruled as Dhruvasēna III.

The date apparently falls in A.D. 648¹ (in Kaliyuga-samvat 3749 expired) when, by the rules of mean intercalation, there was an intercalated month which might be called either Pausa or Mārgasira²; (see Sewall and Dikshit's Ind. Calendar, p. xiii, and Gupta Inscr. Introduction, p. 93 ff.).

Genealogy as in No. 481.—The inscription mentions, as dātaka, the king's daughter Bhūvā (see No. 483).

490.—G. 372.—Ind. Ant. Vol. V. p. 209, and Plate. Bhāvnagar plates of the Mahārājādhirāja Śīlāditya IV. of Valabhī, issued from the camp at the tank of Bālāditya :—

¹ The year 830 of the date would thus correspond to the [Kārttikēddi] Vikrama year 830 + 375 = 705 expired; see Ep. Ind. Vol. III. p. 308.

² The case, however, is not free from difficulties. According to the Sārya- and Ārya-siddhāntas, and by the modern rule of naming intercalated months, the intercalated month would be Pausa; and it would be Pausa also by the Brahma-siddhānta and the earlier (Brahmagupta's) rule. And Mārgasira it can be called only on the supposition that it was calculated by the Sārya- or Ārya-siddhānta, and named in accordance with Brahmagupta's rule. Compare below, No. 530 of R. (?) 34.

Genealogy as far as Śīlāditya [III] as in No. 487; his son, the Paramabhaṭṭāraka Mahārājādhirāja Paramēśvara Śīlāditya [IV].—The inscription mentions, as dātaka, the king's son (rāja-putra) Kharagraha.

Genealogy as in No. 528.—The inscription mentions, as officials, the Mahāsāmanta Skandagupta and the Sāmanta Mahārāja Śśvaragupta.

530.—H. (?) 34.³—Prof. Bendall's Journey, p. 74, and Plate. Sundhārā damaged inscription of the Mahāsāmanta [Amśuvarman⁴], issued from Kailāsakūṭabhavana :—

(L. 16).—samvat 30 4 prathama-Pausa-śukla-dvitiyāyām.

Judging by the date of No. 542 of H. 155, the month of Pausa of Harsha-samvat 34 would be expected to fall in A.D. 639-40 (in Kaliyuga-samvat 3740 expired), but in that year no month was intercalary. In (Kaliyuga-samvat 3741 expired=) A.D. 640-41, by the rules of mean intercalation, there was an intercalated month which might be called Pausa on the supposition⁵ that it was calculated by the Brahma-siddhānta, and named according to the modern (not Brahmagupta's) rule for naming intercalated months, but which ordinarily would be called Mārgaśīra. (See Sewell and Dikshit's Ind. Calendar, p. xxiii).

531.—H. (?) 34.—Ind. Ant. Vol. IX. p. 169, and Plate. Bungmatī (near Kātmāṇḍu) fragmentary inscription of the Mahāsāmanta Amśuvarman, issued from Kailāsakūṭabhavana :—

³ Prof. S. Lévi, in the Jour. Asiatique, 1894, Juillet-Août, p. 62, has referred this date (and those of the following dates, in which a sign of interrogation has been put here after H.) to a local era the epoch of which would fall in A.D. 595. But since for Amśuvarman we have the date No. 533, of the year 44 or 45, even the adoption of such a new era would not meet one of Prof. Lévi's main objections to the assignment of this date (of the year 34) to the Harsha era—the objection, namely, that according to Hiuen Tsiang's account Amśuvarman could not have lived after A.D. 637.

⁵ This supposition would be the very reverse of the supposition made above, under No. 484 of G. 330.

With this reading, the date is irregular; but with vadi instead of śudi, it would, for Simha-s. 93, correspond to Sunday, 25th March A.D. 1207.—According to Dr. Hultzsch, the inscription probably is one of Bhīmadēva I., and the samvat 93 of the date, therefore, might be intended for Vikrama-samvat 1093;³ but for that year also the date would be irregular. ⁵ This part of the list (Nos. 588-688) includes 42 inscriptions, dated (apparently) in regnal years, and one (No. 671) dated in an aśka year. It also contains three inscriptions (Nos. 682-684), the years of which are distinctly referred to the reign of the Gāṅgāya-vamāsa, and six others (Nos. 676-681), the years of which probably belong to the same era, the exact epoch of which has not been ascertained yet. The same era may possibly have been followed in the date of No. 655, the reading of which is doubtful. Regarding the years of the dates of Nos. 606 and 653, the reading of which also is doubtful, I cannot offer any suggestion.
